Saturday Sermon

ROCK OF AGES
By REV. W. T. KENNEDY — Pentecostal Tabernacle

O come let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise to the ROCK of our salvation. Psalm 95:1.

One day a young student listened to a Methodist minister who could scarcely write, but was an eloquent of the gospel. During the sermon, light dawned upon the pathway of the listener and he found peace with God.

Later, August M. Toplady became an ordained elder in the established Church of England. He was born at Barnham, Surrey, England, November 4, 1740.

In his doctrinal debates with Wesley, he was a harsh controversialist; but his piety was sincere, and marked late in life by exalted moods. Physically he was frail and his fiery zeal wore out his body.

In 1779 he wrote an article regarding the debt we owe to God. In this work he declared that none would ever be able to pay his debt to God or atone for his own sins, but God laid upon Christ the iniquity of all of us.

Headline the article, these words appear:

A prayer in life and death for the most holy of Christian believers, and following this a poem: Rock of Ages, cleft for me, Let me hide myself in thee.

The song swept around the Christian world. Who has not many times poured his heart in worship through the words of this hymn? Many are those who have found lasting comfort in this song. A company of Armenian Christians sang: "Rock of Ages" in their native tongue while they were being massacred in Constantinople. And the last sounds heard by the few saved from the steamer "London" in the Bay of Biscay 1854 were the voices of the helpless passengers singing "Rock of Ages" as the ship went down.

During a mine accident in England many years ago, a number of miners were imprisoned in one of the shafts. Rescues washed night and day. After two days they seemed to hear a voice of life within the darkness. "Are there anyone there? They heard a weak voice saying, "Yes but my feet are crushed under a rock." "Are you alone?"

"No! Jesus is with me: I learned to know Him through a song my mother taught me." Then they heard a quivering voice singing: While I draw this fleeting breath, When my eyes shall close in death, When I rise to world unknown.

And behold thee on thy throne, Rock of Ages cleft for me, Let me hide myself in thee. Nothing further could be heard. The day after, the rescue party reached their destination. The hands were folded, and there was a powerful expression on the thin gray face. Thus he had gone to sleep—Let me hide myself in Thee.

August Toplady wrote many other hymns, particularly during the last two years of his brief life, continuing until there was no strength left; then he joyfully passed away August 11, 1796, only 20 years of age. Let us a live that our lives shall be a blessing to our fellowmen and bring glory to God.
