Good news is reported on the senior baseball front . . . good news for Prince Rupert fans, anyway. Word passed on last night by Rusty Ford, Gordon and Anderson manager says that Neil McKerracher's nine will play at Roosevelt Park next Sunday, giving Rupert fans a chance to watch the final game. Game time is 1:30 and it's a lead pipe cinch that a strong contingent of Terrace fans will be on hand at Acropolis Hill to witness the close-down of the ball season.

Speaking of Terrace fans, a word of thanks goes out from this department which we're sure will be concurred with by all G & A players and fans who were at the Terrace Rod and Gun grounds following last Sunday's game. That word of appreciation is for Alf Davy and all these fine Terrace people who engineered the spread put on at the Rod and Gun Club clubhouse.

When the curtain finally falls on the baseball scene for the 1954 season, how about a special award for G & A's Dave Hill? To Dave should go the best actor's trophy (an Oscar maybe) for those heartwarming sequences when, with nose in close proximity to the umpire's mask he gives forth with "No ... No ... No!" The slugging second baseman brings to the local baseball scene what Technicolor did for movies, and the fans love it.

An innovation for ball games is that used by the Ottawa Athletics for the International Baseball Leage for their home games at Lansdowne Park in Ottawa. Canadian Press reports that Mrs. Kay Denison plays an electric organ during games to spur on the Athletics. For instance, when a player is slow fielding a ball, embarrassment is neightened by the strains of "Lazy Bones.' If the Athletics are losing, they're reminded by "It's Later Than You Think," or if they're ahead, with "Let's Do It Again."

However, Mrs. Denison went too far, and was severely reprimanded the day she heralded the appearance of the umpires on the field with "Three Blind Mice."

Understand someone else went too far Saturday at the second football semi-final for the North Star Trophy at Roosevelt Park, Art Gurney, captain of the Port Edward Paramounts objected strenuously to a free-kick decision by referee Bill Eaxter and a report will probably go in to the Association on the incident.

It was a sadly disorganized Local 708 team that played Gondola Cafe in the first game of the semis last Wednesday. With 10 men, they failed to turn in as good a performance as they did with nine on the previous time the two teams met. Oh, where are the heroes of yesteryear??

Reports that a mother bear and cubs is wandering around near Algoma Park puts Game Warden Cliff Walker in the bight. Whatever action he takes will probably result in censure. If he destroys the animals, he may get a blast from those who feel black bears are harmless to humans in almost all cases yet failure to get rid of the animals_prompts the thought that someone might get hurt by the unpredictable bruin. His advice to avoid the area is sound. It's always been our understanding that a black bear will run 90 percent of the time, but why buck the odds just to become a statistic?

Showing signs of being a crack trap-shooter in the not too distant future is young Bob Armstrong, 12-year-old son of Bob and Tona Armstrong, who fired a shotgun for the first time last Wednesday. With his Dads new Remington automatic, Bob got his first "bird" on his third shot. Tona also tried out father's new gun and did mighty fine in the "buddy shoot" with Brick Eby . . . Also having a first fling at trap-shooting was genial Len Griffiths who knocked down five birds in six Henry Lindquist, of this paper's job printing department reports the Letts family (mother Thelma and children Freddic, 10 and Janet, five got more fish than they bargained for last Thursday. Fishing off the Oona River on Porcher Island for salmon, they hooked on to a halibut that went 200 pounds, so Henry reports. The trio lost the monster fish once but finally managed to beach it.

It's to be hoped that more entrants apply for a chance in the Labor Day Soan Box race, sponsored by the Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council. A whole flock of boys and girls are needed to make the annual event a success, and to justify the hard work put in by John Dyck, race committee head.

On the subject of the soap-boxers, at hand is a letter of appreciation from Mrs. E. Pedersen and son Billy who went to Mission for the July 1 Derby.

It's gratifying to note that Mrs. Pedersen stresses that the keynote of the Derby was sportsmanship. Billy's mother is strong in her praise for the Trades and Labour Council for their support undiguidance in doir of the derby is definitely in order for the TLC, not only for what they do for the soanboxers but for their interest in providing the children with other sports on Labor Day.
