A NEW MEDICAL TOURNIQUET which may help reduce the number of deaths in warfare has been developed by the defence research board. Made of black rubber, the tourniquet can be applied by the wounded person himself and requires no knowledge of pressure points. It is simply found around the limb and held in place by slots which fit over collar-button-type studs. W. E. Cowie, a chemical engineer who helped develop the tourniquet, demonstrates its use to Mrs. Joyce Acton, a laboratory technician

WOMAN CHANGES LOCATION OF PLACE TO HIDE MONEY

BRISTOL, Eng. (Reuters)—Mrs. Gladys Lloyd has decided to use her washing machine only as a washing machine. Mrs. Lloyd always put money in her machine.

Recently she forgot, switched it on—and £80 in notes were minced into shreds. The Bank of England, from the thousands of bits of paper, could only piece together £54. The rest is her loss, the bank says.
