GOOD DAY FOR THE BEACH—It's summertime down in the Antarctic, so naturally the weather is just right for the beach. Thousands of penguins crowd the waterside on Macquarie Island not far from the Australian National Antarctic Research Expedition Station. Though the birds pay little attention to the visitors, they are the favorites of the men stationed there.

HEADY WHEN THE DRIVER CALLS.

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

There is Always a Need for a "Proper Remedy"

Sometimes it is difficult to determine how deelarer plans to play a hand and sometimes it is easy. But even when it is easy, you must be careful to use the proper remedy.

In today's hand Mr. Champion led the king of hearts and when the dummy went down Mr. Dale knew the key to the proper detense was in his hands. The diag- i nosis of Mrs. Keen's probable in. tentions was that she was likely; to need dummy's club suit for discards. The problem was how to prevent her from establishing the suit and having entries to i at the crucial moment.

SUICIDAL TO WIN

Mrs. Keen won the first trick! with the ace of hearts and led the jack of spades, ducking in dunmy, Mr. Dale figured it; would be suicidal to win this trick, leaving the king in dummy for an entry. He ducked, too.

Now Mrs. Keen led the 10 of 1 spades and played low from 2 A dummy. This time Mr. Dale won : 4 📤 but he shot his last spade to knock off the king.

Winning in dummy, Mrs. Keen pulled out the king of clubs, hophig someone would take the ace prematurely. Mr. Dale played the six spot.

If that were a singleton, there was no way to shut out dumimy's clubs as Mrs. Keen would? then have four eards in the suit. If it were not a singleton, howpressions and plays on words. ever, then it was not Mr. Champion's lowest club.

SHOW DOUBLETON

The only club higher than the isix that Mr. Dale couldn't see was the nine spot. If Mr. Champioh had the nine and six, he The new translation of the would have played the nine, the accepted high-brow play to show "Our Heavenly Father, may a doubleton in this situation.
