Far North MPs Demand New Deal For Indians

OTTAWA (CP)—The Far North's two representatives in the Commons have demanded a new deal for their Indians.

Mervyn A. Hardie of the Northwest Territories and James Aubrey Simmons of the Yukon, both Liberals, have made it clear that they think there are shortcomings in government administration of Indian affairs in the North.

Mr. Hardie said Indian agents provide relief to destitute Indians which "isn't worth the powder to blow it to Hades." Instead, the government should provide jobs.

"These people are interested in working and making a living if they are provided with the work. There is no work in that part of the country."

FOUR FOR 4,500

Mr. Hardie said there is a game warden staff of 23 persons to look after wildlife in the Northwest Territories, but only four Indian agents to look after 4,500 Indians.

Mr. Simmons said more education and vocational training is needed to raise Indians from their status as government wards.

Some Indian agents tended to "pass the buck." Instead, they should work among the Indians to provide personal supervision.

Mr. Simmons called for an end to discrimination against Indians.

1956 Sockeye Catch Seen Less Than Half of 1954

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lloyd A. Royal, a director of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, says the total 1956 catch of sockeye salmon in B.C. will be less than half the 1954 catch.

Mr. Royal estimates this year's catch will about equal last year's total of 244,000 cases. In 1954, the total was 680,000. Experts blame the over-abundance of gear that has been strung across rivers and channelways in the last few years for the shortage.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Angus Macdonald, who wishes to go back to the Vancouver police force to find those responsible for blowing up his car early Tuesday, was told Wednesday his request is being considered.

Macdonald resigned from the force a week ago but asked permission to withdraw his resignation.

Chief constable George Archer told him to put his application in writing and promised to give it consideration.

Union Nationale Sweeps Back; CCF Returned In Saskatchewan

Douglas' Majority Reduced

By JIM PEACOCK

Canadian Press Staff Writer

REGINA (CP)—The CCF party of Premier T. C. (Tommy) Douglas, its majority reduced from 1952 and its popular vote cut to its lowest point since it was first elected in 1944, today starts its fourth-straight term as Canada's only Socialist government.

Premier Douglas and all but one of his cabinet ministers were returned in Wednesday's general-election balloting. But the CCF's majority was cut by a possible seven from 1952.

The election, a full-scale three-cornered fight for the first time since 1938, also saw:

The Social Credit elect its first representation to the legislature in 18 years, taking three seats from the Liberals.

MAY BE UPSETS

The Liberals take several seats from the CCF in voting so close that an upset could occur in any of a dozen seats when absentee and declared ballots and advance polls are counted in two weeks.

The Progressive Conservatives lose the lone seat they won with Liberal support in a 1953 by-election.

ONE SEAT IN DOUBT

With one seat still in doubt when counting ended early today, the Canadian Press' standing, compared with 1952, was:

	1956	1952
CCF	35	42
Liberals	13	11
Social Credit	3	—
Deferred	1	—
Doubtful	1	—
TOTAL	53	53

The doubtful seat is Turtleford, in west-central Saskatchewan, where the Liberal candidate, Franklin Foley, had a nine-point margin over R. H. Woof, CCF member of the last House. Four polls were still to come.

In far-northern Athabasca, held by the Liberals in the last House, voting was deferred until July 4 because a late breakup was still setting up election machinery.

CUTS POPULAR VOTE

Social Credit's first all-out bid for power in Saskatchewan ate into both the CCF and Liberal popular votes. With about 35 per cent of the polls accounted for today, the CCF's popular vote share was cut to 46 per cent from 54 per cent in 1952 and 48 per cent in 1948. The Liberal's share dropped to 31 per cent from 30 in 1952.

Social Credit, with 52 candidates running for the 92 seats at stake Wednesday, polled 21 per cent of the total vote, compared with four per cent when it unsuccessfully ran 24 candidates in 1952.

EARLY LEAD

Early returns gave the lead to the CCF candidates and 68 minutes after the polls closed the Canadian Press sold return of the government was indicated. At the same time, the heavy vote for Social Credit was evident.

Voters went to the polls in shirtsleeve weather, with temperatures in the 60-degree range in the south and around 80 in the north. A record 615,000 persons were eligible to cast ballots and some officials said they believed nearly 85 per cent turned out at the polls.

WAIT FOR FIGURES

In 1952, a record 410,373 persons—92.0 per cent of the 505,000 eligible—turned out, but the 1956 figures won't be available officially for at least two weeks and possibly longer because of the late voting date in Athabasca.

The only member of the Douglas cabinet defeated was Provincial Secretary J. W. Burton, beaten by a woman in what was

Socreds Cut Deeply Into CCF, Liberal Votes

REGINA (CP)—Social Credit, in its strongest run yet in Saskatchewan, bit deeply into CCF and Liberal shares of the popular vote in Wednesday's general election.

Social Credit candidates three were elected—captured 21 per cent of the vote compared with four per cent in the 1952 election and eight per cent in 1946.

The CCF, which won re-election with a reduced strength of 35 members, received 45 per cent of the vote compared with 54 four years ago. The Liberals, who elected two more members than in 1952, saw their share of the vote shrink to 31 per cent from 39.

With 91 per cent of the province's 2,973 polls reported, the vote was as follows, compared with the vote in the last election (percentages bracketed):

	1956	1952
CCF	201,450 (45)	200,557 (54)
Lib.	130,025 (31)	209,463 (50)
SC	90,420 (21)	21,002 (4)
PC	8,708 (2)	12,177 (3)
Others	4,114 (1)	2,763 (1)
TOTALS	450,603	535,003

These figures, however, do not indicate number of voters but number of votes cast. In the province's three multi-member constituencies, a voter can mark his ballot for as many candidates as there are members in his constituency.

Duplessis' Victory Third in Succession

By D'ARCHY O'DONNELL

Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's Union Nationale government, its majority increased in heavy voting in Wednesday's general election, today inaugurated a record fifth term in office.

The hard-hitting premier described the victory as an example of the province's faithfulness to the policies of his government. His 20 cabinet ministers were all re-elected.

"How to the public's choice was the only statement Mr. Duplessis made to newspapermen gathered with him at the Liberal party's Reform Club in Montreal," he said. "He would make a fuller statement in a few days."

There was speculation that in the fuller statement Mr. Duplessis might indicate his future plans. The defeat was his second since assuming the party leadership in 1950.

Swinging Exchange of Seats

In the vote there was a free-swinging exchange of seats. The Union Nationale won 13 formerly held by the Liberals. The Liberals took nine Union Nationale constituencies. The exchanges occurred in both urban and rural ridings and followed no set pattern.
