

Booth Soup Program Planned Again But Price Per Bowl To Be Boosted

The high cost of living has caught up with the Booth Memorial High school lunchtime soup program which runs from November through to the Easter holidays members were told at last night's meeting of the Parent-Teacher association.

Following a report of soup-program convener Mrs. Eugene Bartlett the membership voted to increase the price of soup from eight cents a bowl to 10 cents in order to raise enough money to compensate the cook for the hours she spends on the program.

Originally, Mrs. Bartlett said, the plan had been to provide the soup at cost but the revenue was not sufficient to cover expenses of the cook. The new price, she said, will take care of expenses and probably leave a slight surplus that can be allotted to the PTA bursary or to another Booth PTA project.

The women volunteers, of which 45 are needed throughout the soup-program period, will have the satisfaction of both helping the children with their efforts and also of helping to earn money for the PTA. Mrs. Bartlett said.

PTA President H. J. Marchant said that while the PTA hadn't wanted to make the soup program a profit-making project, it was felt that the price should be raised to cover the contingencies and that 10 cents was a reasonable price for a bowl of soup.

Any surplus would be turned over to a PTA project he said.

In other business, treasurer

Mrs. Yet Wong reported that the PTA had a balance of $299.95.

On hearing that at the moment the association had a paid-up membership of 107, Mr. Marchant urged members to encourage others to join as all of the $1 membership fee didn't go to the PTA.

"Forty cents," he said, "goes to the Parent-Teacher Federation, 10 cents goes to the Prince Rupert Parent-Teacher council and 50 cents to Booth PTA."

"You need 200 members to realize $100 for the bursary," the president said.

Vice-president Dodd, P.T. council delegate reported that the council and the Civic Centre were sponsoring the production "Hansel and Gretel" to be presented in Prince Rupert by the Holiday Theatre November 5. All PTA presidents in the city had been named to a committee to help make the presentation a success, he said.

A letter from Prince Rupert General hospital advised members that blood donors were asked to re-register for blood donations at the hospital between 6 and 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Mary Pack Here To Aid CARS Drive

Miss Mary Pack, executive secretary of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, B.C. division, arrived in the city today to speak to the Prince Rupert Rotary Club this afternoon, to address a public meeting at the Civic Centre tomorrow night and help in the CARS fund appeal Monday. At the meeting the CARS sound and color film "Never Surrender," showing the work of CARS clinics across Canada.

Miss Pack, said today that the film was shown five times in Terrace over the weekend in conjunction with the forthcoming CARS fund appeal there, where a quota of $750 has been set. The movie was seen by the Terrace Curling Club, the Rebekah Lodge, a public meeting and two high school groups.

It was shown to the school groups to encourage girl students to go in for careers which would help in CARS work such as physiotherapists, occupational therapists, laboratory technicians and research workers. Miss Pack said that a new committee was being formed by the Terrace CARS branch to assist in the care of patients in that area.

Presentation to George Scott Recalls Carpenter Local's Growth

Memories of Prince Rupert's boom town days and later of the first carpenters' strike here were recalled Monday night when the executive of Local 1735 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners honored a senior member of its craft.

Making the presentation at the Carpenters Hall was president Johnny West who pinned a gold 50-year membership pin on charter member George Scott.

Other Local 1735 executive members present were A. C. Cameron, first vice-president; J. S. Black, business agent; Ernest Carlson, executive officer and Mel Matthews, treasurer.

Mr. Scott first joined organized labor in Scotland at Port Glasgow, 1904, where he was a member of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters of Great Britain. He came to Canada in 1906, seeking carpenter work and staying in Toronto for a short time before he crossed into the United States. There he joined Local 361 in city of Duluth in 1906. From there he worked in Chicago until the building boom created by the San Francisco earthquake and fire found him working in that city.

When the boom began to taper off many districts in the Pacific northwest were just on the point of opening up and Mr. Scott again found himself on the Canadian side of the border.

Following his pioneer spirit he landed in Prince Rupert in 1908 to find a tent town being set up. The townsite had yet to be cleared.

Among the carpenters drifting in were some who came from the Klondike where the lure of gold was beginning to fade, some from the Canadian prairies and others like Mr. Scott came from the U.S.

Wages were $5 per day for nine hours work and it very soon became clear that conditions could only be improved by organization.

Many and varied were the union cards held by the members who attended the first organizational meeting which decided to apply for a charter.

This was granted August 1909, the installation of which established Local 1735 as the most northerly local of the brotherhood in western Canada, for many years.

The members pledged themselves to donate a day's pay or one day's labor and built them selves a small labor hall, even to making a replica of its emblem. The hall still stands on Fraser Street and through good times and bad has been donated by the Carpenters for many meetings for other trades. The wage for the eight-hour day with no reduction in pay was then organized, which resulted in the first carpenters' strike in Prince Rupert.

After a short struggle the contractors conceded to the request of the union and thus the eight-hour day for $5 per day was put into effect.

The newly-formed local made such a good job of the first carpenters' strike that ever since that time Local 1735 has been able to conclude all negotiations without resorting to strike action.

During his membership in this local, Mr. Scott has held the position of president and for many years, treasurer. His work as a craftsman is of the highest calibre and standing to his credit today are lighthouses, schools and many other public buildings.

It is the hope of the local that Mr. Scott will be able to continue his work for many years to come.
