Vancouver Pair Much Impressed On Visit Here

Prince Rupert is a nice spot to spend a week's holiday according to a Vancouver couple who paid a visit to the Daily News offices yesterday to say how much they liked this city.

They are Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Greaves who arrived here Sunday aboard the Princess Norah and will return south this weekend to settle an argument with friends as to whether or not Prince Rupert is a suitable place for a visit.

They'll be ready to do battle for Rupert, armed with facts on the museum, the totem poles, the cold storage plant and other interesting items.

They were so impressed with the museum after one visit, that they planned a second, and they were set for a visit to the Cold Storage plant today.

They also attended the Little Theatre's second-night presentation of "Blithe Spirit," and enjoyed it thoroughly.

But most of all they are impressed with the friendliness of city residents. They met Mrs. J. S. Black, through asking directions, and were marched off to the Canadian Legion for an enjoyable afternoon, with Mrs. Black telling them much of the history of the city.

Their impressions haven't all been favorable though. Mr. Greaves suggested that the city could use more tourist camps and laughingly remarked that a loaded paint brush "wouldn't do any harm on the back street."

SLAVES FREED

President Abraham Lincoln of the United States proclaimed the freedom of slaves Jan. 1, 1863.

"FISH STICKS? Never heard of the like! What will you Canadians think of next?" says John Cross of Colchester, England, as he learns how to eat them from his pretty instructress, Carol Sedgwick of Vancouver. John is one of a group of 50 students visiting Vancouver as a member of the Commonwealth Youth Exchange. The above picture was taken during their tour of the B.C. Packers Limited plant at Steveston, who are, in conjunction with MacMillan and Bloedel Limited, sponsoring the tour.

Bloused Look Latest News In American Fall Fashions

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's going to be smart to be slouchy next fall, the international fashion press learned with the opening of the New York wholesale collections of fall styles.

Comfort also is given a large play by American designers, who are introducing the bloused silhouette after a session in which the tight midriff and princess lines made women suffer for the sake of fashion.

The newest dresses shown by leading designers have an easy, loose look above the belt, retaining the slim skirt for day-time wear and hemlines about the same or occasionally a trifle shorter than those of spring and summer. The "blouson" jacket seems a favorite. This is a bloused effect ending in a belt at the waist, similar to the Eisenhower jacket of the Second World War.

The fur-trimmed suit and even the suit with reversible jacket lined in fur are seen frequently often as a part of the popular costume suit, which consists of a smart dress covered by a tailored jacket.

The costume is the favorite in practically every collection, shown either as dress and jacket, dress and matching full-length coat or suit with co-ordinated blouse. This is the highly versatile "breakfast-to-dinner" outfit which permits a woman to go from office to cocktail party or dinner perfectly dressed for the occasion when she removes her jacket.

Handsome fabrics make new headlines for fall, with much emphasis on tweeds for any hour. There are tweed dress-and-jacket combinations in which the dress emerges with open neckline and brief sleeves, ready for any after-five occasion. There are feather-weight silk-and-wool tweeds suitable for the dressier costumes, and there are all-silk tweeds used for sport suits and dresses. The combination of sat-in and tweed is a new note for fall, highly effective and apparently slated for wide acceptance.
