Providing, Supplying, Staffing Area Schools Responsibility of District Board of Trustees

Governing body, which watches over the affairs of the school district, providing, supplying and staffing schools is the Board of School Trustees for District 52, elected by the people and acting as liaison between the public and the department of education.

Heading District 52 board, is Dr. R. G. Large who has held the position of chairman since January 1945. The well-known city physician is active in Masonic, yachting and musical circles.

A. Bruce Brown, city barrister and member of the legislature for this district during the past session has been with the board since January 1947.

The same year, A. J. Dominato, hardware store owner, was elected to the board.

37 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

Hardware merchant W. J. Scott trustee. The Columbia Cellulose joined the board the next year, and the four trustees bring a total of 37 years' experience in school matters to back their decisions.

Among newer members to the board are Mrs. W. D. Lambie, appointed in July 1955 to complete the unexpired term of Mrs. L. M. Greene, who was away from the district for a year.

D. J. Doswell, is another new trustee. The Columbia Cellulose

School District 52 classrooms of the University of Toronto and long time Prince Rupert resident takes over the duties of librarian.

Last Year of School Best
Grade 12 Student Advises

By SHEILA JAMES

Grade 12—Booth School
Being a Grade 12 student is like driving on a gravel highway and seeing the blacktop just ahead.

One greets it with mixed feelings, because the gravel was what one was used to, and the blacktop might require different driving. But still, one knows it will be exciting driving until the destination is reached.

Adult life does not come in one big bang, like a rocket ascending in a shower of sparks. It began poking its head over the horizon in Grade 7 and has been creeping up (in fits and starts) on us, the proud new Grade 12s ever since. The hard school of experience has taught us a lot and the gentler academic one has been giving us a large amount of knowledge for further reference.

"TOP BRASS" AT LAST

This last year of school can be the very best of all the other 12. Here we are "top brass" at last, after all the years of looking on at graduations. This year we finish up the courses we have been working at since Grade 7 and say goodbye to all the school activities that we have enjoyed. No more school dances, no more games, no more secrets told beside the lockers between bells. This time next year we'll be out in the world.

This year must be lived to the full, for there won't be a next year. The exam we fail can't be written again . . . the game we don't go to, won't be played again. This year is an ending and a beginning.

ADVENTURE TO ADULTHOOD
Grade 12 (and graduation at the end of it) mark the beginning of adulthood, the real beginning of the state of mind that has come on us occasionally in our teens.

We begin to live in that new world where we must be more responsible than we have ever been before, where we will be constantly in competition with others, and where there can be no relapses into childhood.

All through Grade 12 we must think ahead to this world and leave all we can.

NOT ALL WORK

But it won't be all work and through the long winter we'll be, as I've said, "top brass," an example and a power to all the other grades. The Student's Council president comes from our class and we'll be giving the orders at this year's graduation. Most of us have been looking forward to this for quite a few years. It's going to be fun as well as a serious responsibility.

To end all this, fellow Grade 12s, do you feel any different from the way you did last year? No, I don't feel so old and wise myself.

ROOSEVELT PARK SCHOOL

John Steele and Gordon Freehan remain as principal and vice-principal respectively. A graduate of Victoria Normal School, and local Prince Rupert resident, Roald Feness enters the staff as does another local woman, Beverley Comer, winner of the prized Meyerhoff Scholarship in her last year in Booth Memorial High School.

From Port Kells, B.C., comes Vancouver Normal School graduate Barbara Thomson; and from Trail, B.C., comes Gaylene Ervin, a graduate of Victoria Normal School.

Mrs. Gertrude Anderson of Lethbridge, Alberta, also joins the staff of Roosevelt Park School, the city's newest.

Staff returning from holidays are Mrs. Doris Cobb and Mrs.
