The monument stands on the Wallace's Dept. Store original site of the Ellis homestead. The ranch, embracing [thousands of acres between here and the international border, was carved out of the bush by Mr. Ellis when he came here from If Ireland in 1866.

Miss Kathleen Ellis, a daughter who was the second white child born in Penticton, unveiled the | monument which was inscribed: | "Ellis Homestead. On this land in 1866 Tom Ellis, the first white settler in Penticton, built his ranch house here. Helped and encouraged by his wife Wilhelmina, he raised his family, planted the first fruit trees in Penticton and established his famous cattle ranch. His cattle, bearing the 69 brand, ranged the thousands of acres between Naramata and the international boundary." Miss Ellis expressed appreciation to the many oldtimers who attended the ceremony. "There Revenue are so many memories of home just beside the juniper tree. This is a proud day for me. Mother helped father in everything he

.. No one hates the overlapping of sports seasons worse than |erful nuclear submarines. we do, what with the hockey season extending into May. However, a letter of import dealing with basketball has arrived in | first atomic-powered submersible power. town and deserves mention. It also calls for a little speedy | revealed some of the reasons for | FUTURE RULE UNLIMITED action. It's from owner-coach Abe Saperstein of the Harlem | the navy's thoughts of the long-Globetrotters. The letter was sent to Booth Memorial High dreaded polar regions as an ice-been a discussion on the role of ing television. School and handed over to Fred Jones, general-secretary of the Civic Centre.

Sum and substance of Abe's missive is that the Globetrotters. current holders of the Seventh Annual World Scries of basketball championship trophy, plan a repeat trip to Japan, China, the Philippines, Indonesia, Australia, New Zealand and Hawaii.

"En coute to Alaska and Japan," says Abe, "we have drawn up a rough schedule of selected slopovers. Recalling our visit to your immediate sector about five years ago, it is our hope that we could show our group to your sports public along about Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 1, 2 and 3, 1956 With the Globetrotters will be travelling what Mr. Saper-stein calls "one of the finest programs of variety entertainment ever "offered your section... six to seven topflight acts... 'two-in-one' sports spectacle." For this Abe mentions a nominal guarantee with a percentage arrangement.

To us this is strictly a Civic Centre deal. After last winter's ghastly basketball season, immediate plans should be made to ensure that the Globetrotters re-visit here and also that it will be a successful venture. We can think of several steps to be taken at the earliest possible moment.

The present luckless and bankrupt Prince Rupert Basketball association should immediately place it dealings and its $200 worth of debts in the hands of the Civic Centre. Then it should quietly fold its tents and join the Arabs.. The absorbtion of a $200 deficit by the Civic Centre should not hurt operations one wit since the Civic Centre executive was quite willing to drop $1,000 for the sake of culture in the form of The Alaska Music Trail this winter. This was done, we are told, so that a minority | John Gollan, 44, was named new wasn't overlooked. Well, if ever there was a minority, it was the paying customers at the league basketball games this past season.

Secondly: It was strongly recommended in the Civie Centre Commission report that the Centre have a strong basketball program. Therefore the Civic Centre association should call a meeting with the managers and coachs of existing or prospective basketball teams to decide what is going to be done about basketball next year. Particular emphasis should be placed on the future of senior basketball.

The Prince Rupert system whereby a little clique of players get together and pick a coach should be reversed. The coaches should sit down, with the Civic Centre sports committee, and for the benefit of basketball in this city, choose players from a pool. Yes, just like Little League. They should try to line up as evenly a balanced league as possible with the hope that some good, wide-onen cage games will result. This tight, defensive basketball with a minimum of shooting, that has featured the past two seasons has been enough to put the average fan to sleep. What, few fans there were, that is. Oh, you say — that won't work! Grown men won't be chosen and assigned to teams and still play their best. Knowing the senior basketball fraternity here, we are inclined to agree, but did it work the other way? Did it work when the pick of Manson's joined with the best of Gordon and Anderson to form the Challengers and only played à dözen games all winter? "Nobody wants to play us," they whined half-way through the season. Why should anyone want to knowing they were going to be shellacked? Who's kidding who?

However, these are just thoughts for the high and the mighty to kick around. The main thing is that the Civic Centre association should make sure that a good senior basketball team is ready for the Globetrotters in November. Besides the best in basketball, Abe promises that we'll get a "topflight" variety show thrown in as well folks. Maybe even Trades and Laber Council members will attend.

POST SCRIPTS: what with the sudden change in the weather and the poles-apart competition provided in the Senior Men's Softball league opener Saturday, the game was a bit of a washout in more ways than one. Called on account of rain at the end of five innings, it saw Bill Hardy of Local 708 chalk up a 22-run shutout at the expense of an impotent Army-Navy team. It was 1-2-3 for the militia-reserve squad while the pulpmillers had a batting practice Whether the weatherman will co-operate for the Pony League opener tonight at Roosevelt park, remains to be seen. It will by Gyros versus Elks if the rain holds off. This is the last week until Fall for the Civic Centre Bantam boxing class we've been holding for the past two months. Last class Wednesday.
