VANCOUVER Of - Samoans' recipe for freshly-caught British Columbia salmon calls for just a dash of lemon, a pinch of salt and papper, no cooking.

"It's delicious that way," said Varea Mani, bo's un of the Curpenter line steamship Lakemba, just before sailing from here for the south sens.

Crew members, who have made many friends on their trip to Vancouver, quickly consumed a large Coho salmon presented as a parting gift.

Whonever the liner calls here the Samaons are in demand as enterlainers. Music is in their blood, and they all sing, play and dance to their native rhythms,

Bo'sun Mani has organized a small orchestra equipped with gulturs and ukelcles. The crew come from many different islands and don't all speak the same native tongue, so orders. are given in English.
