One Slip By Defence Would Have Made Game

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

The bidding in today's hand looks a little silly with VOTES IN ONTARIO Mr. Muzzy and Miss Brash stumbling step by step into, a game at spades. We may assume, with some reason. that if Mr. Muzzy had bid five spades, Miss Brash would have found some excuse to go on to six.

In any case, they were plenty; high at four, although that contract could have been made if Mr. Meek made the slightest slip in defense.

The opening lead was the king: of clubs and it held the trick. As Mr. Meek paused to consider his next play, Mr. New whispered i to the other kibitzers that he had his hext play picked out-the king of hearts. Of course he hadn't seen Mr. Muzzy's hand at this point. As you see, this lead would have enabled Mr. Muzzy to take 11 tricks.

MR. NEW As Mr. New saw it, the only , way to beat the hend was to find | Mr. Abel with the ace of hearts. Mr. Meek could then ruff a third round of hearts and that would beat the hand if Mr. Muzzy were void in diamonds.

But Mr. Meek had other (and sounder) ideas for winning a trick with his thinly-guarded king of trumps. At the second trick he simply led another high quickly unless he wanted to foreclub. Mr. Muzzy ruffed with go the heart finesse and go up dummy's six of spades. considerable frowning and-PRECARIOUS
