TALK ABOUT MORAL SUPPORT! For six full rounds, Johnny Fusco, brother of boxer Carl Fusco, kept up a steady barrage of words, whistles, gestures and general acrobatics that apparently helped a great deal. Carl won his fight with Hipolito "Paul" Pacheco at St. Nicholas Arena in New York - and Johnny was with him every inch of the way. He did his vociferous coaching from the aisle behind his brother's corner. The dialogue went semething like this: (top row, first photo) "Hit "im with the 1-2;" (second photo' "Push "im away, push;" (third) "That's it --- keep punchin';" (fourth) "You got 'im — you got 'im, now;" (lower row, first photo) "Knock 'im out!" (second) whistled jubilation; (third) "Keep it up -- keep going";" (fourth) "Thatta boy, Carl, you got a winning streak going now;" (The last shot shows Carl Fusco leaving the ring after beating his opponent.)
