MR. AND MRS. HENRY WILKINSON

wed three score and 12 years.

Couple Observes Years of Marriage

Who enjoys a joke, even on himself, is Henry Wilkinson, a resident of Prince Rupert.

Three years ago when he was due to a heart condition he had but a few short to live. But he fooled on Christmas Day Wilkinson and his wife celebrated their 72nd anniversary.

Occasion was marked at fifth Avenue East, the Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McElroy residence and daughter here.

Ninety-three-year-old Mr. Wilkinson and his 92-year-old wife have lived in Prince Rupert since 1947, when they joined their son-in-law and daughter here.

Wishing them well on their wedding anniversary were five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. They also have one great-great-grandchild. The five grandchildren are Donald McAra of Edmonton, Keith and Neil McAra of Prince Rupert and Mrs. R. Heeks and Mrs. R. McMurray of Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson were in Marystown, England, Dec. 23, 1902. They came to Canada in 1909 and Mr. Wilkinson was employed by the City of over until 1921 when he at the age of 50. They moved to Edmonton to reside there 26 years.

Bishop Blesses

Memorial Bible

A new lectionary Bible, a gift to St. Andrew's Cathedral was dedicated during the Christmas morning service by the Rev. Horace G. Watts, Bishop of Caledonia.

The Bible is a memorial gift from the family of the late Bishop James B. Gibson, who include Dr. J. Henry Gibson of Sarnia, Ontario; Mrs. Norcan Parker of Stoney Creek, Ontario and Miss Eileen Gibson of Courtney, B.C.

This gift is part of a larger bequest given by the family to assist the training of the Theological students, for work in this diocese.

Simplicity Keynote For Well-Dressed Look

VANCOUVER (CP)—Women who want that "well dressed look" might follow the basic rules of Marie Moreau, Vancouver fashion editor.

At a charm clinic here, Miss Moreau of the Vancouver Sun set out 10 rules for proper dress. Here they are:

1. Keep it simple. Simplicity is

Householder Determined To Keep Toilet

LONDON (CP)—David Millwood has launched a fight to give his new home here the same sort of toilet he says is used in Buckingham Palace, flushed by a press button valve and not by the old-fashioned pull chain.

Millwood installed such a chainless wonder in his new house. The metropolitan water board told him it would cut off his water supply if he doesn't switch to the chain pull by Jan. 30.

"These things are liable to waste water," said a board official of the new equipment. "Our by-laws stipulate they must be of the chain-and-cistern type."

Millwood retorted that he intends to keep the valvular version, adding:

"I happen to know that this is the very same pattern used in Buckingham Palace, in Prime Minister Churchill's country home, in three big hotels and in hospitals and schools. It's up to the board to remove the ban or at least treat everyone alike."
