Approaching exams prompted the following parody on Mark · Barrett and Alice Jones they Anthony's speech from "Julius Caesar." Apologies are offered to Shakespeare by author, Alice Jones.

Here, under leave of the principal and the rest ---He hath brought many cheaters to the office, Whose cries did fill the halls: Did this in the professor seem cruel? When punishment must be given, The professor deth weep. Oeniuses should be made of sterner stuff: The the professor says my friend is a crammer; And the professor is an honorable man. You all did see that in Math. class I thrice did offer this friend some information. Which he did thrice refuse: was this cheating? Yet the professor says my friend is a crammer: And, sure, the professor is an honorable man.

of agony? Oh judgment! Though art fled to brutish brasts. You turn the hands of the professors on us and make us lose our reasoning.

Just as I am of necessity cramming, my mind doth wander. Incresore am I a dreamer, so then have I lost my power of reasoning.

Bear with me. O teacher, pardon me, for Friends, teachers, students, lend me your brains; I come not to fail tests, but to pass them. The marks that one gets live after them; The bad is often interred with their records; So let it be with me. The noble principal Hath told you I was a crammer: If it is so, then it is a grievous fault, And grievously so have I done it. For the principal is an honorable man; So are the teachers, all honorable men ---Come I to speak for my friend. He was my friend, faithful and just to me: But the professor says he is a crammer: And the professor is an honorable man!

I speak not to disapprove of what the professor spoke, But here I am to speak what I do know. You all did love my friend once, not without cause: What cause withholds you then, to help this friend in his hour

My heart is in the office with my friend; And I must pause 'till it come back to me!

A NOTICE elsewhere on this page will draw the readers' notice to the fact that the editors of the school page are sponsoring a contest for the design of the 1955 school annual. The editorial staff feel that this is a good opportunity for the students of this school to display their artistic ability and also to show that the Booth spirit is still strong.

Printed by THE PRINCE RUPERT DAILY NEWS LIMITED

Bublished by the Booth Memorial Newspaper Club under Mr. C. Graham .

All amateur artists are given the opportunity of entering, no matter what their artistic bent may be. The results of the contest may be varied and the editors are prepared to accept bizarre and even amazing results. The main thing, however, is to contribute something to this contest. Whether the contributors lean to the Da Vinci, the Michael Angelo, French Impressionist or Surealist trend, the main thing is to submit some sort of design.

Keep the school spirit strong!
