The interior smalter city of Trail remained the chief troubled spot with a number of low-lying waterfreni dwellings and business premises inundated by the swollen Colins, la giver,

However, weary dike patrols in the Trail area were cheered by reports that the Columbia had dropped almost four inches Sunday upriver at Revelstoke, B.C., about 150 miles to the north. A similar drop was reported at | Revelstoke Saturday.

A six-inch rise Sunday brought i the Columbia level at Trail close to the 41-foot mark, four feet below the danger level and well short of the peak level of the disastrous 1948 floods.
