TAKING THE SPOTLIGHT Friday night on stage of the Civic Centre auditorium before more than 1,000 adults, teenagers and children are nine entertainers pictured, who with some 35 stars entered in 19 acts, contributed to the fabulously successful Order of the Royal Purple second annual talent show. Shown above in their song and guitar act are Anne and Jake Compton, who vyed for fourth place with winner Kay Schooley, pictured second from top left, in her humorous act of impersonations. Next is Victor Wells, popular singer, who last year took second prize and snown next are placard holders, introducing contstant numbers. Ellen Jefferies and Barbara Ayres. In Scottish garb is John Arduini top right, who gave a perfected exhibition of the "Sword Dance". Pictured directly right are young stars David Greissel and Kristen Berg in an accordian duet. First prize of $50 went to Alec Leighton for his sensational singing and guitar "rock 'n roll" music. Taking second prize was sister and brother team Marion and Doug Pierce, who last year took first prize. Third prize went to nine-year-old hula-hoop twirler Irene Cameron. Applause meter was recorded by CBC producer Rod Falconer and emcee was Harley Lewis.
