ONE FROM DISTRICT 504

Rotary gives six men trip to New Zealand

An all-expense paid trip to New Zealand awaits six young men in the Pacific Northwest and Prince Rupert Rotary club has been asked to supply the name of a nominee from this district.

The tour of travel and study is arranged through Rotary Overseas Travel Award (ROTA) and is designed to promote good citizenship, international understanding and good will.

Prince Rupert Rotary club, a member of Disctrict 504, has named a six-man committee to handle the selection of a local candidate that could be the one from this district to have the chance to visit New Zealand.

Chairman of the committee is Earl Gordon assisted by A. E. Field, S. D. Johnston, Dr. W. S. Kergin, E. H. Knight and Edwin Enwright.

The nominee for the trip must be within the ages of 20 to 25. He must be presently employed and actively engaged in community work. He must be of good character, able to mix with the public and should be a reasonably good speaker.

Young men wishing to apply for the Rotary Overseas Travel Award should get in touch with Charles R. Roberts president of the Prince Rupert Rotary club.

The Rotary Overseas Travel Award was launched two years clubs and six young business ago by New Zealand Rotary men from that country visited British Columbia and Washington. Because of the success of the New Zealand to North America tour, Rotary clubs in District 502, 504, 506 and 508 decided to send six outstanding young businessmen from their areas.

The local Rotary nominee, if selected will join five others from the other Rotary districts and will travel to New Zealand under the leadership of Dr. Lyman N. Patridge of Central Washington College of Education. The nominee's travel and living expenses will be paid from district funds to which the Prince Rupert club contributes. The group leaves Vancouver February 4, 1959 and returns March 25.

The unsolved mysteries of HOUDINI

Even in death, the master escape artist of all-time preserves his secrets. Houdini still keeps the world baffled. His escapes from 'fool-proof' prisons, buried coffins, and ice-bound lakes defy explanation. Not until the Houdini Papers are opened in 1974 will anyone know his secrets. But there have been lots of theories. The author of Sherlock Holmes claimed Houdini's feats could only have been achieved by supernatural powers. What do you think? Read the powerful story of the unsolved mysteries of Houdini, in the Star Weekly. Also in this issue is "Singing in the Shrouds" a full-length murder novel by Ngaio Marsh. Plus a wide range of articles, picture sections, and short stories to give you the best in interesting reading. The Star Weekly is on sale now.

Motoring holiday

This is another in a series of stories by Mrs. Eugene Bartlett, 123 Emerson Place, giving an account of her trip by car to southern British Columbia and the northern United States during July and August. Mrs. Bartlett was unable to finish the account while on her trip and by popular request, it will be concluded in several instalments this week.

By EMERALD BARTLETT

When finally, we left the Oregon coast, for the interior, we found the coast mountains less rugged but as heavily forested as farther north. On their eastern side the heat descended on us as we descended into rolling fields which grow walnuts for money and oak trees for fun.

Within two hours we were in the fast-moving traffic which converges on Portland over several bridges on the Willamette River. It is important in leaving the downtown section of the city to cross by the correct bridge. An original error here of two or three blocks can land you miles from your objective in a few minutes.

I would like to dwell on the many delights of this large friendly city but have reluctantly decided to cut my original pages to lines.

We liked the liberal use of lawns and trees almost into the heart of the business area; the attractive stores with pleasant clerks; the good food in colorful surroundings.

We saw the rows of dental chairs through the windows of the Dental College and hope to go back for another look when school is in session. Below here we found an outdoor cafe in a garden against a cliff—lit by a flaming brazier and torches at night. Probably a favorite spot with the students.

While here two hours worthy of mention fell to my lot. The first was, I imagine, rather unusual. It isn't every day that eight Greyhound buses make a tour of a logging operation.

In the 185,000-acre Clatsop Tree Farm, operated by the Crown Zellerbach Company we saw, at close range, trees topped, felled and yarded. At the booming grounds we saw them dumped into the water in "asparagus" bundles. Forest experts explained the proceedings informally and understandably.

The tour ended late in the afternoon, at the Astor Column at Astoria. I had seen it as we crossed the Columbia entering Oregon a few weeks before.

Mrs. Fedyk wins contest

Mrs. J. Fedyk of 2040 Atlin Avenue is the winner of McRae Bros., "Store Change" contest, it was announced today by J. D. McRae, company president.

Contestants were asked to write their reasons for their approval of a new store layout and Mrs. Fedyk's response was the hands-down winner. Grand prize in the contest was a leather-encased portable transistor radio.

Mr. McRae, who has just returned from Vancouver where he attended a 1959 Frigidaire model showing said today that it "was an education to see all the improvements the Frigidaire company has incorporated in its new washers and dryers."

MOTHERLY POET

Mrs. Felicia Hemans, the English poetess who died in 1835, was the mother of five sons.

PRGH nurse among 150 RNs

Miss Joan Kedey RN, of the Prince Rupert General Hospital staff, is among some 150 operating room nurses who are attending an institute in Vancouver this week in Hotel Vancouver.

The institute, sponsored by the Registered Nurses' association of British Columbia, is the first of its kind to be held in this province.

Miss Genevieve McFadyen, supervison of the operating rooms of Shaughnessy hospital will direct the session.

Lecturers and demonstrators will include Vancouver and Victoria physicians and nurses, as well as Miss Edna Prickett, nursing consultant for the American Sterizer Company, Erie, Pennsylvania.
