Hurt Hip Hinders Hippo

MILAN, Italy (A) - Poppea, a hippopotamus, mingled with the hurrying crows Tuesday in Milan's biggest square. She appeared not to mind city life one

The two-ton, 10-year-old lady hippo had hurt her leg in her cage at a circus. She was being taken to an institute for treatment when the truck on which she was riding braked suddenly in a narrow street. Poppea suffered some more bruises as she tumbled out of the truck.

The hippo ambled into nearby cathedral square, where about 1,000 persons were rushing about their business. The passersby came up close to look at Poppea, and she gazed back. After two hours, she was coaxed back aboard the truck by the offer of 11 pounds of bread.
