SURGING AFRIC ... The continent of Africa is in ferment, and its political and ideological turmoil adds up to the biggest question mark in the world today. The continent divides roughly into four great regions: Northwest Africa, formerly dominated by France and Spain, now in the throes of a struggle to complete its independence; northwest Africa, overshadowed by Egypt and the ambitions of dictator Nasser who reputedly seeks a sphere of influence southward to the Sudan, Ethiopia and Somalia; Black Africa, the all-Negro countries of Centraly Africa largely dominated by Britain, France, Portugal and Belgium; and the apartheid lands, South Africa and the Rhodesias.
