Ever Since Eve

WHEN YOU ADD chopped fruits or nuts to packaged cake mix, chop them very fine. Pieces that are too large sink to the bottom and the whole cake may fail.

NEXT TIME you bake bread, try letting the dough rise in a large plastic bag.

IF YOU have some lovely old leather-bound books you want to clean up and recondition, a saddle-soap treatment softens and cleans the leather. Art gum erasers seem the best to clean dust and finger marks from the pages.

FOR YOUR mirrors are streaked, don't wash them with soap to try to remedy the condition! One quarter-cup of ammonia added to one gallon of water will help cut the streaky film. Polish with a lintless, soft cloth.

IF THE fruit pies you make run over on your oven, sprinkle a tablespoon of quick tapioca on the uncooked shell before adding the fruit. Better still, mix it with the fruit to be added. Put larger slits in the top crust to admit the steam. As an extra precaution, place a sheet of aluminum foil under the pie plate (not on the floor of the oven) and turn it up at the edges to catch the drip.

KEEP YOUR good china that's hidden away on top shelves for special occasions in plastic bags or cover it with sheets of plastic. The plastic keeps dust off the dishes between usings.

IF YOU find any of your canned goods with bulging sides or tops, throw them out immediately. A bulge usually means the food inside has gone bad.

Saturday Sermon

By CANON BASIL S. PROCTER
Rector of St. Andrew's Cathedral

GOD CARES

There are two places in the Gospels where Jesus speaks of the sparrows. In Matthew 10: He speaks of two sparrows being sold for a farthing and in Luke 12: of five being sold for two farthings.

At the market stall in those days it would seem that the cheapest item of meat obtainable would be sparrows. Nobody cared much about them, but perhaps they were better than nothing. And on towards evening when the vendor was wanting to get rid of his stock he would throw in an extra one if you bought four. He would give you five. The mention of the extra one thrown in gives added intensity to the unimportance of the dead sparrow in the sight of man, and by contrast, points up the lesson of the loving care of Almighty God.

Notwithstanding all evidence to the contrary and the indifference of humankind to all which is not immediately for their benefit or gratification, we are asked to believe that the Creator of us and of this world is really like that, and that He cares that much that He is aware and concerned even about dead sparrows.

Suppose you don't believe it. Suppose you think that He neither knows nor cares about that or anything else. Then you will not care either, unless it is to your pleasure or profit to seem to take an interest. But if you will cling to the truth in spite of all the tragedy and evil and suffering in the world, there is the Author of it all who is aware and cares infinitely then you will care too. You will feel able to bear a full share of the burden and your heart will be lightened by knowing that the Everlasting Arms are underneath what you cannot bear.

But don't think that the only reason why you should believe this is that it is good for you. It is part of Eternal Truth. Part of that knowledge which we can only have if it is told to us. Knowing it, persons of all generations have found plenty of justification for believing that it is so. Otherwise, it is perfectly safe to say that we who live at such an historical distance from the utterance of these words, would never have heard or read them.

SUNDAY SOUP BREAK

The convivial custom of "dropping by" after church is on the increase, and a more commendable way of socializing is hard to imagine. Hot Buttered Soup makes an ideal beverage to serve to Sunday visitors. It quickly warms them when they come in inclement weather and serves as a first course for mid-day dinner as well. Offer a "drinking" soup, such as tomato, consomme or beef broth, with a pat of butter afloat in each cup or mug. And pass toast strips, pretzels or cheese sticks as crunchy texture contrasts.
