Mr. Abel Bids Too High;

Fails To Take Advantage Of Break

After bidding his hand to the hilt, if not a little beyond, Mr. Abel was faced with a problem which often besets declarer—that of deciding which suit to

The spades had broken evenly as expected and Mr. Abel had his nine winners all set up. The trouble was that the defenders took five tricks first.

If he is going to bid aggresively, he must learn to plan his play better. Unless a miracie happened, he knew he would have to lose three club tricks and the ace of hearts. Obviously,
