TIME ON THEIR HANDS - Whittling away the time between scenes, Frank Sinatra and Italian star Sophia Loren wait for the sun to shine at Torrelaguna, Spain, where they were making "The Pride and the Passion". The production was filmed entirely in the rough mountain country of Spain and not having studio facilities, the cast was subject to the whims of nature and often found time on their hands as they waited for clouds to pass by. -- The film is currently playing at the Totem Theatre.

U.S. Westerns Popular Fare On British TV

NEW YORK (A)--Can you think of a more typically American entertainment product than the Western?

Well, they are popular in Britain, too. So much so, says a British TV executive, that British firms may start making some themselves—possibly i Canada.

Britain as a proprietary item as much as in the United States," says Dennis Foreman, executive producer of the Grenada-TV network of Manchester, Eng-
