AUSTRALIA'S NAVY TO COME INTO BEING

Under the heading "Australia's Navy's Birth," we find this interesting statement in the current issue of the United Empire:

"The present year will see momentous naval changes in the Commonwealth. On Jan. 1 the imperial flagship Drake left for England. The Commonwealth first class dread-nought cruiser Australia will replace her as soon as possible.
The Sydney station will not be transferred by the Admiralty to the Commonwealth authorities till July 1 next, but in the meantime important preliminary changes will be made.
Admiral Sir George King-Hall will remain in charge of the station till the end of June, when his successor will assume control of what will be the basis of a purely Australian fleet unit. In addition to the Australia, the Commonwealth fleet will include the second class cruisers Sydney and Melbourne.
Until the third Australian second class cruiser Brisbane is built the Commonwealth will have the use of H. M. S.
Encounter, which is to be lent by the Admiralty. In addition to these four cruisers, three destroyers of the same type are to be built. Then there are a number of submarines due from England. The whole will form the nucleus of the Australian fleet of the future. It is hoped that by July the Australian station may be complete, with the exception of the destroyer section."

Some of these vessels have been built in Great Britain, some in Australia; but they are being assembled in Australian waters to form the basis of a "purely Australian fleet unit." On July 1st the Australian fleet, under the direction of an admiral who in turn will be subject to the control of the Commonwealth Government, will come into being.
That is to say, Australia has actually done what Canada is told by its public men that it cannot do; or can only do at the cost of embarking upon a separatist policy which will take Canada out of the Empire. The situation is humiliating beyond expression to Canadians.

ONE GET-RICH-QUICK SCHEME THAT FAILED

The sentence of imprisonment pronounced upon Julian Hawthorne and two others on the charge, of which they have been convicted, of using the United States mails to defraud, will arouse interest chiefly because Hawthorne is the son of one of America's best writers of fiction, and perhaps her most graceful and cultured employer of English prose.

The name of Nathaniel Hawthorne is a household word wherever the English language is spoken, and his son, who has just been committed to jail, is himself a man of more than ordinary ability as a writer. The crime of which the court declared Hawthorne and his partners guilty was that of promoting mining properties in the Cobalt district of Ontario which they knew to be worthless.

It was a get-rich-quick scheme in which Hawthorne is said to have been engaged, and the wealth, to be shared by the partners in the project, was to come not out of the Cobalt mines but out of the public of the United States. It is possible that Julian Hawthorne lent himself to such a design. In an age when the world honors success without scrutinizing the methods by which that success is achieved, it requires strong character to resist the temptation to engage in practices which are every day making one or more leaders of the financial world.

If the convicted men were really guilty, for, of course, the verdict of an ordinary jury is not regarded with much respect, Hawthorne deserves his sentence, and he deserves it the more because he had a revered name to protect from stain. But, after all, the prison stripes he will wear during his enforced retirement from good society might more fittingly become many of the Napoleons of finance whose success has given them title to be called empire builders.

Survivor of Crimea Buried.

Prince Albert, Sask., March 26.—Mr. William Ware, one of the last few survivors of the Crimean war, was buried yesterday with military honors. Mr. Ware was a gunner of the Fifth

New World's Balloon Record

Paris, March 26th—A new world's record for height in a balloon was made by Rene Rumpelmayer, who has just completed a successful flight from Paris to a point near Kharkov, European Russia. The distance travelled was 2400 kilometres, approximately 1492 miles.

EASTER PARADE OF FASHION IN NEW YORK CITY LAST SUNDAY

CHROMATIC BLOUSES OF THE BULGARIANS MAKE THE GO-THAMITES SIT UP AND TAKE NOTICE

New York, March 24—There is still some bickering down Tchatalja way, they say, and Adrianople is stubborn, but the Bulgarians have captured New York. The Easter parade on Fifth Avenue revealed to dazzled eyes the gorgeousness of the Bulgarian blouse, the Bulgarian girdle and the Bulgarian ribbon, which is not a ribbon—it's a riot.

On the word of a lady who knows, a girl might just as well have stayed at home and minded the parrot, unless she could display, between Madison Square and the Plaza, one of those Bulgarian effects, which look like a Post impressionist's sketch of the solar spectrum. A ray of sunlight had no chance whatever with these Bulgarian wrappings. It broke into a million pieces before it fairly lit.

Shades of Tolstoy!

You have seen pictures of Tolstoy pottering about his estate in a loose blouse, and maybe you have watched Russian peasants enter America through the gates of Castle garden wearing things that looked like skirts which had not been properly tucked in very well. That gives you a sort of ground plan of the Bulgarian blouse that all the girls are crazy about this year, but unless you elbowed in the Easter parade you missed the high lights of the thing.

Take a Mujik's baggy blouse, color in Pompeian red, drape a yellow sash loosely around the hips, add a shirt so narrow at the bottom that no lady can step more than twelve or fourteen inches at a time, and slit at one or both sides so as to show at least $1.50 worth of a $3 pair of silk stockings, and you have some idea of the show that crowded spectators four deep against the house walls of Fifth Avenue side walks and convinced old gentlemen in club windows that life was worth living after all.

Proletariat Has Inning

There was a time, generations ago, when the best people stalked solemnly to and from church while the dubs watched reverently from the side lines. Nowadays the best people week-end in Tuxedo or Lenox or somewhere else, and the proletariat whose only social register is the city directory own the Easter parade and possess the avenue utterly from Dr. Pankhurst's church to the Vanderbilt mansion. Today's parade proved once more that there is no show like it anywhere.

About 1 o'clock, when the parade was in full swing, you can get some notion of the practical value and commercial side of the annual show. From one hundred small towns near and far, milliners, shopkeepers, hat designers, dressmakers, buyers and manufacturers who were keen for the first glimpse of the new styles and the latest color effects had come to make notes.

Dressmakers on Watch

Sharp-eyed milliners and dressmakers were on the watch for fashion's new freaks, and they made hasty notes of every effective and striking gown or hat that passed before their eyes. It might as well be said right here and now that the Bulgarian blouse and the sash that went with it were not the whole show by any means.
Take hats: Lids are little this season, only blots of color, enough to roof the head. There was the canoe, which is all that its name implies, a boat-shaped hat with a shaded feather jutting out like a mast. The canoe is about the newest hat that is.

But even the canoe was lost sight of when you caught the slashes. The slashes are not a hat; they are a misdemeanor—a slit running northward from the hem of the skirt to somewhere south of the knee and displaying considerable hose. It is popular because it looked like the very thing—black.

Oh, Yes, the Shoes

All the girls are crazy about shoes with colored tops. When you were not busy wondering how far a girl could go with the slash and still be a lady you were watching the blue-topped and white-topped and green-topped and gray-topped shoes.

THE SONG OF SONGS.

Over the roar of the cities,
Over the hush of the hills,
Is heard a song that never stops, A voice that never stills.
Epic loud as the sea is,
Lyric low as the dew, It sings and sings a soul into things,
And builds the world anew.
Dauntless, deathless, stern but kind,
Bold and free and strong,
It sweeps with masterly touch man's mind,
And rolls the world along.
From soul to soul it wings its work,
And lo the darkness flies;
And all who heed that song of songs
View earth with other eyes.
New eyes, new thoughts, that shall go on,
Seeing as beauty sings, Until the light of the farthest dawn Shall fold its rainbow wings.

WILD HORSE HERDS ROAM THIS PROVINCE

Progeny of Steeds Owned by Cariboo Gold Seekers Have Multiplied Fast.

Edmonton, Alta., March 26.—Three thousand or more wild horses, in herds of from thirty to a hundred, are roaming over the hills and valleys in the interior of British Columbia, according to a report brought to Edmonton by James Bradley, who, with Gustav Reiland, a veteran prospector and miner known throughout the bonanza gold camps, has just returned from an extended exploration tour of the coast province. "Indians and white prospectors and pack train freighters value these unbrid animals more than high bred horses," said Mr. Bradley. "They are the progeny of horses turned loose on the trail by discouraged or dying men during the famous gold rush in the Cariboo country. Thousands of the veriest 'tenderfeet' stampeded to the new fields in the early 60's. Most of them were incompetent and, in fact, utterly helpless in that wild country, and the horses either broke away or were abandoned when the fortune hunter gave up on the long trail. "The horses made their feeding grounds in the vicinity of Barkerville for several years afterward, and their offspring wandered northward as the bands increased. They are wild and make trails on the mountains and timbered country much after the fashion of buffalo in the early days and deer at present. "The Indians and freighters working in the timbered districts catch them with snares, such as are used for lynx. In most cases the animals are easily broken, and they are better for the rough country than the high grade horses on account of their stamina and sureness of foot on the mountain trails. We lost horses from our train from time to time and replaced them with wild animals." Before making up your mind be sure that you have the right kind of material in stock.

PROSE AND SONG TO WAKEN CANADIAN PATRIOTIC SPIRIT

THE GREAT BRITISH NATION COULD NOT PLACE IN THE FIELD AS BIG AN ARMY AS THE LITTLE BALKAN STATES HAVE DONE.

Just now the eyes of all thinking men in the British Empire are fixed on the heroic but withal pathetic figure of Lord Roberts, who, while he might be taking his well-merited ease in the evening of life, is going up and down the Old Country seeking to awaken the nation to a sense of its danger in case of war coming upon it unawares, or at least while its preparations for self-defence are miserably inadequate. All men may not see eye to eye with the hero of Kandahar as to the best measures to be adopted for self-defence, but, at any rate, recent events in the Balkans show that each one of the "small states" involved has been able to put a larger army into the field than England could mobilize tomorrow if war struck her in the shape of an invading foe. And England is supposed to be a great power! The much-talked-of Territorial Army, on the showing of its own officers, a gigantic failure if not imposture. The question is: Is it the best machine we can devise? Of course, if it represents our best effort, then we must stand or fall with it—it is the best we can do, and that is all there is to be said. But is it the best we can do? Everybody knows it is not only a makeshift, but a make believe force—i. e., everybody on the continent whose war trained sent is not going to be led aside by a red herring like that.

Canadians are not indifferent nor apathetic in this matter. I guess they all know that if the British fleet were crippled in home waters Canada would have to do more than sing "The Maple Leaf Forever." Why, there is no country in the world easier to take than British Columbia—given the destruction of the British fleet.

Definite organization seems to hang fire, but there is the field free and open for every man TO LEARN HOW TO SHOOT. That at any rate is the chief thing for British Columbians to do; not a few of them here and there, but, as we say, "every man Jack of 'em." I am not one of those who believe that God is on the side of the heaviest artillery; but I do believe that from a national point of view every man should know how to put his "props" up.

KEEP THE FLAG FLYING.

(Dedicated to Lord Roberts.)

The world is changing fast, boys, Time flies on outspread wings; The sleeping hour is past, boys, Be up and doing things! Awake! Arise! Lift up your eyes Upon the land and sea; Where'er the Union Jack flies, There keep it flying free!

Both night and day the anvils ring In many an alien town, To swing a weapon that shall bring Our Union flagstaff down! Apprise! Apprise! Lift up your eyes Upon the land and sea; Where'er the Old Flag flies, boys, There keep it flying free!

The foe would like our wings to shear Upon the ocean tide, And from our Crown some gems to tear— Some fair lands far and wide! Advise! Advise! Lift up your eyes Upon the land and sea; Where'er the Old Flag flies, boys, There keep it flying free!

'Tis said we've more than we can hold, More realm than we require; We answer as in days of old: We'll keep what we desire! Then rise! Be wise! Lift up your eyes Upon the land and sea; Where'er the British Flag flies, There keep it flying free!

The testing time is on us, boys— Our manhood and our sword; The world would see what's in us, boys, So "READY" be the word! Revise! Devise! Lift up your eyes Upon the land and sea; Where'er the Union Jack flies, There keep it flying free!

'Tis very well to shout "Hurrah!" And "Canada for me!" But that is merely 'Uisgeabha,' Go, LEARN TO SHOOT—and see! Ye "Never-Dies," lift up your eyes Upon the land and sea; Where'er the British Flag flies, There keep it flying—See? —REV. JAMES B. McCULLAGH.
