BALKAN WEATHER NOW CLEARED UP.

sighs of relief over the passing of the Balkan war cloud. It is hard to get used to the clear atmosphere again. No doubt there is a deal of bickering to go through yet over the delimitation of frontiers, and the pacification of the disturbed regions, but the real crisis is passed. Out of the tangle of bluster and intrigue Britain has emerged with increased prestige. Her attitude of sweet reasonableness throughout, coupled with her insistence upon the needlessness of war, was largely instrumental in keeping Austria and Russia from flying at one another.

Europe is still heaving deep

But there were other rea-Contrary to their custom, fear and distrust worked against war. The powers distrust one another, even in time of peace, and remain always armed to the teeth. In time of war their trust, if they have any grows less. A war that would involve all the powers would be too dreadful to contemplate. The most inveterate war lord would hesitate to provoke it, knowing that the Napoleonic conflict of a century ago would be child's play compared with it. At the same time, such is the terrible cost of war in these modern days that none of the great nations dare indulge in it, while an important rival is left at peace. The victor could not hope to escape with much less damage than the vanquished, and both,

As will be seen in our press despatches of today, the budget brought down yesterday in the commons showed a revenue of $136,000,000 and an ordinary expenditure of $98,000,000. Add to the latter the $35,000,-000 which Borden purposes giving away to help meet an imperial emergency which does does not exist, and Canada's DISPUTE AS TO LOCATION OF national credit is reduced to three millions.

DR. FRIEDMANN IN A CHILLY ATMOSPHERE.

This is a picture of the famous German scientist (in the centre) when he arrived in Toronto last week to make a second injection of the much flaunted tuberculosis cure into his Toronto patients. His last appearance here was like the welcoming of a great victor, the conquer of the dread white plague; this time the atmosphere of the reception was cold and critical. This is accounted for by the fact that in the meantime grave doubts have been thrown upon the merits of his so-called discovery by the leading scientists of the continent. On the left of the doctor is Dr. Divinelli, his new assistant; on the right his legal adviser, D. G. Arnold.

Indian from Essington Arrested for Being Drunk-Sentence Suspended

Silas Maitland, an Indian from Essington, came in on Sunday evening's train to enjoy the sights and lights of the big city. While at the wharf yesterday afternoon enjoying the balmy breezes that were blowing over the harbor, Silas says he got acquainted with a "half nigger," who invited him to go to the latter's place on Comox. The col ored friend was most hospitable. Silas says, and invited him to imbibe some fire water out of a bottle. Silas became drunk and was taken in by the police. This morning before Magistrate Carss he pleaded guilty and told his story. Sentence was suspended in order to give the Indian an opportunity of locating the man who supplied the booze.
