PRESIDENT WILSON'S MEXICAN POLICY.

In an editorial dealing with the mission of Mr. John Lind to Mexico, the London Times points out that the United States had no inducements to offer that would be likely to tempt President Huerta to strive for the crown of a self-sacrificing patriot.

"He might be willing to accept the good offices of an American commission to mediate between himself and the revolutionary leaders," the editorial says, "but he would surely require in return the removal of the embargo on his candidacy."

"President Wilson, however, is clearly entitled to take his own line, although that line be opposed to the whole of the foreign diplomatic opinion, because American action in Mexico carries with it greater implications and liabilities than the action of any other power. Foreign critics who disclaim against the seeming ineffectiveness of the American attitude may be invited to remember that a false step might commit the United States to a greater struggle than any since the civil war and to subsequent responsibilities, the end of which no man can foresee."

"The Washington government fairly is entitled to ask the world to exercise patience until the unusual procedure adopted to meet an unusual emergency has proved either that it has succeeded or failed."

A TALE OF TAMMANY.

Tammany is a private organization which for more than half a century has been running the public affairs of the City of New York, and for more than a quarter of a century the public affairs of the State of New York, for private profit.

Sulzer was elected under Tammany auspices to a public office in the state.

After Sulzer had been elected to the office he refused to perform according to the schedule laid down by Tammany.

When Sulzer refused to perform Tammany accused him of corrupt actions, all of which had been committed before Sulzer left Tammany.

So long as Sulzer stayed with Tammany nothing was heard of corruption on his part.

Tammany does not want to get Sulzer for the crimes he is alleged to have committed, but for his failure to conduct public affairs entrusted to his hand for the private profit of Tammany.

There is no moral to this; none is necessary.

RAW PORCUPINE IS ONLY FOOD OF PROSPECTOR LOST IN WILDS

KLONDIKER ON WAY TO HAMMOND RIVER DIGGINGS—RAFT WAS WRECKED AND OUTFIT DUMPED IN RIVER

Lost for nearly a week in the wilderness of the Chandlar district of Alaska with nothing to eat but raw porcupine and some poisoned moose meat was the experience recently of "Kid" Anderson, known to Klondikers as Joe Anderson. The story of Anderson's adventure was related at White Horse recently by Wm. Yanert, who was on his way from his home at Purgatory, in the Yukon flats, to the outside.

From Yanert's story it appears that Anderson started overland from Fort Yukon soon after the break-up, intending to make his way to the Hammond river diggings of the Koyukuk, the "farthest north" gold camp in the world, there to engage in mining.

Either the directions given the musher were not of the best or conditions conspired to befuddle Anderson's sense of direction. But at any rate he lost his bearings when nearing the Chandlar camp. Try as he might he was unable to find the trail and was forced to wander about for several days.

Coming to a river he built a raft and endeavored to cross the stream. The craft struck a rock and dumped his whole outfit into the river. He escaped with his life and managed to gain the shore, without matches or provisions of any kind.

He continued to travel down stream, growing more and more famished and weary day by day and utterly fagged out by scrambling through the brush along the shore of the river.

He ran across a porcupine and killed it with a club. Its meat, eaten raw, served to keep him for a few days more, when he happened to run into a deserted prospector's or trapper's cabin. On the roof of the cabin he found a piece of moose meat, evidently left from the winter. He ate the meat, and soon became seriously ill. He thought he was going to die, but finally managed to purge his system of the meat, which he thinks was poisoned.

Finally he turned up at Yanert's cabin, on the right limit of the Yukon, some distance below the settlement of Beaver. Yanert says Anderson was nearly all in, thin and emaciated and worn out from his diet of roots, berries and raw meat, but after a week's rest with Yanert he improved sufficiently to proceed down the river to Tanana.

In the Letter Box

The following letter from Arthur Cuthbert concerning a very startling statement which he made at the public meeting last Wednesday should set matters to rights. He then gave many people to understand that there had appeared a statement in the Canadian Municipal Journal to the effect that it would take ten years to complete the building of the dry dock. It now appears that this refers to all the works connected with the dry dock.

The following is Mr. Cuthbert's letter:

To the Editor The News:

I would like to correct the misapprehension which appears to have held regarding the statement I made at the recent public meeting concerning the period for completion of the dry dock. In this connection it will be well to quote the item from the Canadian Municipal Journal, which shows that the plan includes general harbor improvements in addition to the dry dock and ship repair plant. The item reads:

"It will probably take ten years to complete the whole works planned, which include berths for big ocean liners, ship yards, lumber yards, finishing plants, saw mills, ore dock elevators, warehouses and other industries. The plans are sufficiently comprehensive to command all the requirements of a city of several thousand people."

This paragraph, which I quoted at the meeting, I submit should cause our people to consider and devise a plan upon which Prince Rupert should strive to advance, and not to follow a policy of reaching out to the different parts of the municipality with improvements, as that policy might readily be termed a temporary disadvantage to the development of the port of Prince Rupert.

Yours truly,
 A. CUTHBERT.

BUFFALO BILL TO GET HIS OLD CHARGER BACK

Nebraska Man and Indian Compete for Privilege of Returning the Horse.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 23.—Colonel C. J. Bills of Lincoln, Neb., today paid $150 for Isham, the famous white horse ridden for twenty-five years by Colonel W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill). Colonel Bills came by automobile from Lincoln for the auction sale of the bankrupt Buffalo Bill Wild West Show, held today at the order of the United States District Court.

The Nebraska man opened the bidding with $10. Carlo Miles, an Indian, competed with Bills, and did not withdraw until the price went to $150, which was more than the sum he had raised by selling his own saddle and other personal effects. The Indian had planned to present the horse to Cody.

"If that man doesn't give Isham back to Buffalo Bill, I'll steal the horse and give it to him myself," he threatened. He was appeased when informed by his rival bidder that he had the same intention.

Watch for the Big Opening Announcement HUBERT

Years ago, when the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific was first located through Central British Columbia, we made a most careful and systematic survey and investigation of this new territory.

FACTS ABOUT THE NEW CITY HUBERT. The new city of Hubert is located in the heart of the Bulkley Valley at its widest part. It is on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and is the centre of a large and proved agricultural district, surrounded by an enormous field of bituminous coal.

MURDER SOCIETIES EXIST IN AFRICA

Organizations Use Poison and Strange Equipment—Members Are Branded.

London, Aug. 21.—Government papers rarely contain such startling reading as a despatch from the governor of Sierra Leone published the other day, dealing with certain baneful organizations, or secret societies, known as the "Human Leopard" and "Aligator" societies, which have blacker records than the "Black Hand" and more dramatic methods.

The organization exists, apparently, for the contradictory purposes of murder and medicine, for the medicine men have established the belief that their most famous drugs, especially that known as "horfima," need human sacrifices in order to renew their full efficacy.

The members of these murderous cannibalistic societies, which have terrorized certain neighborhoods, have mystic marks and strange equipment. Among the dry array of sections, subsections and amended schedules of the official publication there are references to clothes made of baboon skin, the "kukoi," or whistle commonly used for calling together members of an unlawful society, and the iron needles used for branding mem-

RITCHIE MADE BIG PROFIT ON ACCOUNT OF WELSH'S ACCIDENT

HE RECEIVES EXACTLY $2,500 PER WEEK DURING THE TIME OF THE POSTPONEMENT—WELSH'S ANKLE MENDING RAPIDLY

Vancouver, Aug. 26.—It is an ill wind that blows nobody good, in the opinion of Willie Ritchie, world's light weight champion. Ritchie came to Vancouver to meet Freddie Welsh on Labor Day for the world's light weight championship, and was to receive $15,000 for his end, win, lose or draw.

for his bout with Welsh for the world's title on Sept. 20th at the local arena. Welsh's ankle is mending rapidly, and he was a spectator at Saturday's match, being introduced with Ritchie from the ring. The British champion will rest until the week after Labor Day, giving the ankle a chance to thoroughly heal, and then start his training for the crucial match of his career.

Ritchie and Ray Campbell hook up here on Labor Day afternoon for fifteen rounds, at reduced prices, the highest priced seat being $5. Ritchie's opponent was decided by an elimination bout held here last Saturday afternoon.

MURDERED FAMILY

Richmond, Aug. 23.—Charges that Henry Sternweis, a wealthy farmer, murdered his wife and three children, set fire to his farm property and then leaped into the flames were made tonight by Coroner Voelker and other officials after a day's investigation of the tragedy brought to light in the country fifteen miles northwest of here early today.
