LIFE BOAT WITH CREW OF BURNED STEAMER ADRIFT ON ATLANTIC--GRANBY BAY'S SMELTER

LITTLE TRIP TO GRANBY BAY HOME OF BIGGEST MINE IN B. C.

WHERE THE JUNGLE OF THE COAST HAS BEEN TRANSFORMED TO TOWN OF INDUSTRY AND ARTISTIC HOMES--UNIQUE LOCALITY HAS ONLY ONE MUNICIPAL VOTE

Three years ago Goose bay was one of a thousand little spots on the coast line map of British Columbia. It was a quiet bit of water where the wild ducks found a shelter, with nothing to disturb them but the rise and fall of the tide. The shores were just as nature had made them through a thousand years of seasons--hills and mountains covered with a blanket of muskeg and fallen timbers and a tangle of spruce and hemlock and underbrush. Then came the Granby Consolidated Mining & Smelting company, and Goose bay took on the more dignified cognomen of Granby bay. Its boats and steamships chased the wild fowl from the waters; its picks, shovels, dynamite and the genuity of man cleared big places on the hillsides, wharves spoke up the shore line of the bay, while the boom of the blast and the rattle of steam drills kept the echoes busy among the snow-capped peaks. Granby bay is preparing to pay tribute to man. It was in the process of evolution; civilization had come. A Great Mine

Nature has many great caches of wealth hidden away in the mountains of British Columbia. She made one of them at Granby bay and a keen-eyed prospector found it. It was a copper claim, and steam drills and dynamite proved it was a big one--a whole mountain of ore. It is the biggest mine in British Columbia. A treasure house that will be yielding wealth for a lifetime, and more. This treasure house looked good enough to induce the Granby Bay company to invest millions in machinery, railroads, wharves and ships, and to build a little city in the midst of a jungle. Its discovery brought about a transformation that overdoes the imagination of a fairy tale.

A Modern City
A few years ago a visitor to Goose bay would have had to paddle a canoe. Today he can go in on a palatial steamer and is First in School Attendance Among Western Provinces

Ottawa, May 6.--School attendance in Canada is set forth in a statistical work just published by the census branch and based upon the last census. The total population between the ages of 6 and 20 years was 2,141,909, of which number 1,124,800 were attending school in 1910. The percentage is 52.51. Of the total 991,534 were Canadians, 58,115 British, and 75,151 foreign born. In the eastern provinces the highest percentage of attendance between 7 and 14 years was in Prince Edward Island, with 84.60 per cent, closely followed by Ontario with 84.27; Nova Scotia, 82.86; Quebec, 80.96, and New Brunswick, 80.05. In the west, British Columbia led with 75.33 per cent; Manitoba second with 74.64; Saskatchewan, 66.71, and Alberta, 62.83.

MISSING LIFE BOAT WITH CREW BELIEVED YET AFLOAT

SEVERAL STEAMERS CONDUCT SEARCH--NO TRACE FOUND SO FAR BUT SEARCH IS STILL ON--CHIEF STEWARD AND SECOND OFFICER MISSING

(Special to The Daily News)
Boston, May 7.--The search by several steamers in the waters south of Sable island has failed to find any more survivors of the burned steamer Columbia, who are believed to have escaped in a boat. The chief steward and second officer with from 17 to 24 of the crew are likely drifting about. The search is still progressing.

AN AIRSHIP FREIGHT LINE FOR THE DOMINION?

DIRIGIBLE BALLOONS ARE CHEAPER THAN NEW SYSTEM OF CANALS, SAYS BURN HAM OF PETERBORO

Ottawa, May 7.--J. H. Burnham, Conservative member for West Peterboro, has sprung a new one on the house of commons, and apparently in all seriousness. He advocates the expenditure of one one-hundredth of the money the Georgian bay canal would cost in the building of dirigible balloons for freight-carrying purposes. Why should war have the full benefit of air transportation? urged Br. Burnham. In twenty-five years every man of means would have his aeroplane.

Mr. German of Welland said there were some 400 miles of Georgian bay canal, either actual or submerged, to build or dredge if the project is to be carried through. There are 24 miles in the Welland canal, and as that 24 miles is to cost $50,000,000, the 400 miles to the cost of the Georgian bay canal, he argued, figured out to a billion dollars. Taking only one-third of this amount, the interest of $300,000,000 would pay for all the wheat moved east of the northwest for the next hundred years, he said. "The newest grain boats are nearly 700 feet long," Mr. German told the house. "They draw 250,000 bushels of grain. But they don't make their money on the grain. They make their profit in carrying return cargoes of coal from the Erie ports. "Now, to say that the boats can navigate the Georgian bay canal for 400 miles is an absolute absurdity. The curves are too short. There is not one man living who operates one of the big freighters who will say that the Georgian bay canal is a feasible proposition. They couldn't make four miles an hour. The Ottawa water powers are another question; they are a matter of dams. They should not be considered with the proposition of making a ship canal 400 miles long. This is the first time I have said a word on this proposition, and I tell you it is an absolute absurdity."

Mother Dies of Grief

New Westminster, May 6.--Stricken with grief over the news of the murder of her son in New Westminster, Mrs. Taylor, mother of James H. Taylor, who was murdered in this city recently when leaving a Sapperton poker game, died while on her way home from California to Jeffersonville, Ind. She had been spending the winter in California with another son when the sad news was received. She at once started for home to receive the body of her boy for burial, but died on the train. The funeral of mother and son was held on the same day. The brother is making an effort to solve the mystery of who struck Taylor the fatal blow on Easter Sunday in New Westminster.

S. A. Corley with a party of friends left early this morning in Mr. Corley's motorboat the Royal on a trout fishing trip up to the Kyax river and expect to be gone several days. It is said that the trout fishing is very good up the Kyax just now.

CONSTITUTIONALISTS ARE MAKING SECRET PREPARATIONS

REPORT MINOR VICTORIES--BIG BATTLE IS LIKELY TO BE PENDING--UNITED STATES GENERAL ARRANGING LINES OF DEFENCE

(Special to The Daily News)
Washington, May 7.--While the Mexican situation outwardly seems calm, an active undercurrent is unseen in the preparation of plans and definite reports of a constitutionalist victory near San Luis Potosi and other points in South Saltillo, where it is thought the next big battle will be fought.

A significant part of the constitutionalist successes lies in fact that San Luis Potosi is only three hundred miles from Tampico and west of Mexico City. General Funston has given instructions to increase the lines of defensive measures as required.

EXCITING WAR PICTURES AT THE WESTHOLME

"The Battle of Gettysburg" a five-reel war picture, was shown at the Westholme opera house last night to crowded houses and proved to be all that had been claimed for it and more. The pictures are realistic in the extreme. The cavalry and infantry charges and storming of positions fairly takes one's breath away, and it is sometimes difficult to convince oneself that the battle is not a real one. The story woven around the battle scenes is splendid and commands attention and interest from beginning to end. As a relief to strained nerves, a two-reel Keystone comedy entitled "Zuzu, the Band Leader" follows the battle picture, and it is certainly a scream. It is the funniest Keystone ever shown here and that's going some. This program will be repeated tonight.

PRISON FARM IDEA HAS BEEN GIVEN UP

Police Commission Estimates for 1914 Amount to $14,352

The city prison farm idea was up at the meeting of the police commissioners again yesterday afternoon; when the mayor stated it had practically been decided to abandon the idea as it would make an additional expense. He thought it would be better to press the government to have a district prison established here. Just at the present time he thought it would be unwise to press the matter as the city had some other things it wants first. City Solicitor Peters enlarged on the mayor's statement. In addition to the expense of building a prison at Shawatlam there would be heavy expense in maintenance and the expense of shipping prisoners to and fro. Besides he doubted whether the city had a right to build such a place outside the city limits. The chief's monthly report showed $492 in fines collected in April. There were also 39 drunks convicted, an increase of ten per cent. The police estimates for the year are made at $14,352, an in-

DAILY EDITION

Thursday, May 7, 1914

The morning apologist boasts that the people of this province are now more secure in their guaranty of the Canadian Northern railway bonds in that the Dominion government has also advanced some forty millions to the same concern. On the surface this looks like good logic. A first mortgage is usually more secure when another strong lender advances a large sum on a second mortgage. But if the mortgagee is one and the same party this does not follow. Indeed in such a case the security of both loans is jeopardized. This is just what happens in our deal with the C. N. R. The people of British Columbia, who in the first place guaranteed their bonds, are now compelled to advance their share of a second mortgage. If this is a sample of Tory financing as commended by the morning paper may the good Lord deliver us.

But let us look for a moment at the form of security handed to this province by the C. N. R. for the millions that were advanced to them. Certainly they gave a first mortgage on the road. That is to say they gave as security whatever interest the C. N. R. had in the road. But the C. N. R. did not own the bridges, nor did it own its own terminals. Those bridges and terminals are all owned by a subsidiary company in which Bill and Dan are the chief parties. So all the security this province has for its millions is a few bits of railway that starts nowhere and ends nowhere; a railway that could not be operated; an asset that is not worth five cents to the people of the province. What wonderful financiers we have in our legislature when a case like this could occur.

Perhaps, however, it is not fair to say that our legislators were so blind that they could not see this. Men who are that stupid could not have amassed great fortunes in the last few years. Some of our legislators have done this. We must therefore look for a deeper plot. There have been rumors to the effect that the men high up in government circles are partners of Mackenzie and Mann and that they shared in the spoils. This would explain the royal treatment accorded the C. N. R. by the government, and they have never refuted the insinuation, which leads a great many people to believe it is true.

Wouldn't it strike you funny if somebody who didn't like you overly well should allow you to get a $35,000 government rakeoff without him wanting a piece of the plum?

That was a rather feeble attempt King Joseph made at forming a Highland regiment. The Highlanders are not made of stuff that bows the knee to the image of Baal.

It is cheaper to canvass this constituency than stay at home, especially when you can live aboard a government launch while making the tour. Who wouldn't be a Tory politician?

DISPUTE ABOUT PRICE FOR SPRING SALMON

Indians and Naden Harbor Cannery Finally Come to Agreement

(Queen Charlotte Islander)

Manager Picketts of the Wallace canneries has been negotiating with the Indians and white fishermen during the week regarding the price to be paid for spring salmon this season, and up to the present no settlement has been reached. The company offer 3 1/2 cents per pound for spring salmon, the fishermen to remove the entrails. Another offer of one dollar for fish over 25 pounds and 50 cents for fish under 25 pounds was considered. The fishermen demand four cents per pound for all red fish as taken from the water.

Mr. Picketts left on the Albert to announce the result to the head office. He returned to Massett today on the company's power boat Nahmint, when another conference was held. We understand that the fishermen will fish for the 3 1/2 cent rate, providing the company remove the entrails. Whether the company will accept had not been decided until going to press.

Later.—Mr. Picketts received a wire stating that the company will pay 3 1/2 cents per pound, un-gutted.

AN ULSTERITE DRILL HALL AT LIMAVADY

The building to the left (low section) was built by the Ulsterites at Limavady specially for drilling purposes. The money was raised in the town, which has 2,500 people, half Catholic. Sir Edward Carson spoke there lately.

off on to a city wharf. He will see surrounding him great cement, brick and frame buildings. He will see steam engines and electric tramways, streets laid out, scores of buildings and hundreds of people. Up on the side of a nearby hill is the smelter plant with its series of great grey buildings. Towering above this is a gigantic cement chimney which vies with the mountain peaks in reaching skyward. From this chimney issues a never-ceasing cloud of light grey smoke, the sulphur fumes of the burning ore. The town itself has streets, sidewalks, bridges, electric light, sewers and water-works. The traveller puts up at a hotel that offers rooms with private baths and gives a service equal to any city. The town boasts of a three-storey office building, the best equipped hospital in British Columbia, a theatre, a sawmill, brick yard, and the biggest store north of Vancouver. The homes are all built from some half a dozen general designs. They are both comfortable and artistic. Probably the most striking feature is the general color scheme used in painting all the buildings in the town. There is a very pleasing blend of buffs, greens and browns, with every building having an individuality.

Use Water Power All the light and power used in the place is from electricity generated from the Falls river water power. A four-foot flume carries the water to an immense power house. In this same power house water wheels operate two big air pumps which furnish the blast for the smelter furnace and the air for the shafts and drills at the mines two and a half miles away.

Climb Up to the Mine The great copper cache itself is in the shoulder of a mountain. It lies two miles from the wharves, but an electric railway takes in the supplies and brings out the ore. Most people have the impression that to go into a mine you go down deep into the ground. At Hidden creek mine you climb up. The main shaft is 385 feet above sea level, and from that to the top of the hill the company has fifteen million tons of ore in sight. What lies below the 385-foot level is unknown, but test holes show there is still ore at sea level. Figures do not convey much to the average reader, but a solid mountain of ore such as the Granby company has is one of the rarest things in the mining game.

Up at the mine there is another little town, with cottages for the married men, separate quarters for the officers, and big bunk houses for the miners and muckers. There is also a large recreation hall.

Should Be Gravitation City

Granby Bay should have been called "Gravitation City." The whole scheme of things has been planned with the idea of making the discovery of Isaac Newton do all the work. It is wonderful but true that the ore is never lifted from the time it leaves the hands of the muckers in the mine until it runs out as molten copper on the floor of the furnace room over two miles away. Everything runs down hill, excepting the company's profits, which run up in the ratio that tonnage runs down. When the ore drops from the walls of the mine tunnels it falls into cars; the cars run out to a dump on the hillside. Underneath the dump are other cars which are filled by the pulling of a lever. This tram line runs half a mile along the hillside and then automatically dumps the ore into a crusher set up in the bowels of the mountain. The ore drops fifty feet down a shaft into this crusher, and away below is another tram line which runs into a tunnel underneath the crusher. From this crusher the ore is taken by dump cars away over to the smelter down on the bay. At the smelter it dumps the ore into ore bins and from the ore bins to other cars, which run it into the furnaces.

The great ore shed adjoining the smelter building has many bins, some for ore, some for coke, some for silica, some for limestone, and others for custom ore sent in for smelting. The coke has to be brought in from Tacoma, but limestone and silica are found in the neighborhood. These have to hauled up from the docks by electric tram. Use Very Little Fuel

Naturally the fuel in a plant that is running four furnaces and four converters night and day is a matter of some economical importance. At Granby it is what a boy would call a "cinch." The percentage of coke needed to fire the gases in the ore is wonderfully small—only three percent at the present time, and the management expects to reduce it to two per cent. But it makes some fire, all right.

A Literal Inferno

"Do you believe in hell?" asked one of two visitors who stood looking into the seething depths of one of those furnaces. "Well, I was just thinking that if some theatrical man could only stage that fire in a Faust scene he would make the world believe that the hell of our grandfathers was no myth after all."

Scrambled Rainbows

The heat of it and the strangling gases of the burning mineral is not for word description. One has to feel it and choke on it to experience the sensation. But the picturesqueness of it is worth the experience. Scrambled rainbows amid a shower of stars may convey a meaning, and it would not be an extravagant one. It is sure some fire.

Burning Out Copper

From underneath the furnaces are two little white heat streams constantly running. One is the molten metal; the other the slag which runs down the hillside in a liquid dust. After the metal cools it is again boiled up in a converter furnace, where the last of the waste is removed. These converters are twenty-ton swinging pots which tip and pour the copper into enormous dippers. A big electric travelling crane with chains and arms that are almost human handle the dippers of metal and pour the copper into the molds. The capacity of the furnaces is 2,000 tons of mixed ore per day.

As may be expected this great plant has many subsidiary shops—assay offices with scores of delicate instruments, storehouses with enormous stocks of supplies and repairs, big machine shops, warehouses, car shops, and workmen that number a thousand. The organization is one of the wonders of modern business methods.

Only One Deed

Probably the most unique feature of this whole Granby Bay is the fact that there is only one deed in the registry office to represent it all. It belongs to the Granby Consolidated Mining & Smelting company, limited. There are no private interests or individual owners. Every building, every bit of machinery, every road, every store or stock, the electric lights, the water, the sewers, even the mayor, are all the property of the company. Every man in the town is working for the company. It is a company town. To all appearances it is just a well-organized frontier city with all modern conveniences, but in reality it is quite different. Nobody has a municipal vote but the manager of the company. He is boss and he appears to be a good one.

At the present time the smelter is being used for experimenting with the proper combination of ores and flux. This will take some time, but when the experiments have been completed the smelters will be turning out copper at a wonderfully low cost.

Duke of Argyle Dead

The death of the Duke of Argyle, which occurred in London last week, will be deeply regretted in Canada, especially by the old timers. He was born in 1818 and was the ninth Duke of Argyle. He held many offices and bore many titles, among them being that of Keeper of the Great Seal of Scotland. As Marquis of Lorne, the duke was governor-general of Canada from 1878 to 1883.

The two railways mentioned are the highways of the playgrounds of London—the south and east coasts, including Folkestone, Brighton and other summer resorts.
