THE OTHER GERMAN BOATS DESTROYED--BRITISH LOOSE NONE--FIRST NAVAL BATTLE IN THE NORTH SEA

(Special to The News - 7:00 p.m.) London, August 28.—It is reported that the British fleet has sunk two German cruisers and destroyed a German torpedo boat off Heligoland. A third

British ships were lost in the battle, it was added, and the loss of life was not heavy.
Heligoland is the German fortress which stands in the North Sea off the mouth of the Elbe. It was presented to the Germans by the British and cost millions in turning it into a harbor and fortress. The British fleet has been taking possession of this fortress ever since the war started.

TERRIBLE FIGHTING AT MONS-- BRITISH MOWED DOWN GERMANS

THEY WERE SICKENING AS ADVANCING LINES THREW THEMSELVES BEFORE MACHINE GUNS--LIKE FIRING ON HERD OF CATTLE

London, August 29.—Butchery was the word to apply to the fighting at Mons as described by a British officer who has returned home and who described the scene which was presented at that memorable fight.
The British regiments, accustomed to training to take advantage of any scrap of cover, suffered in comparison with the Germans. In describing it, he said: "One got a picture of a long, strung line of brown infantry lying flat on the ground under what protection had been broken up and firing continually with incredible rapidity.

Each rifle and machine gun was fired slowly from left to right during the firing. This was all the bidding of the British officer, who whistled, and worked decision.
The Germans advanced cour-ageously in fairly close order something like the insensible of the savage races. At the comparatively short, much

GERMANS RECAPTURE MALINES GERMANS RETREAT TO BRUSSELS

THE SITUATION IN BELGIUM IS CHANGING GRADUALLY--THE GERMANS SEND MORE TROOPS TO HOLD BELGIANS BACK

(Special to The News - 8:30 a.m.) London, August 29.—The situation in Belgium is changing gradually. The Belgian army is forcing the German army back upon the river. The Belgians have recaptured the town of Malines and train service there was resumed yesterday morning. Trains reached Vilvoorde which is about ten miles of Brussels.
The Germans are entrenching themselves north of Brussels.
The German army corps has been old officers. Vice Admiral Beatty and Rear Admirals Christian and Moore conducted the combined operations right under Heligo-land where the enemy has all its strength at its command.

The triumph was complete. The German light cruisers Mainz, another of the Koln class, and a third of unknown name, were destroyed as well as two destroyers. It was complete as a victory. The British suffered little.
All our ships are afloat and in good order. We must officially note the high efficiency of our gunnery. Not a German cruiser escaped. Their destroyers scattered wildly to shelter.

Defied Heligoland Forts

The importance of this daring raid is the fact that the British fleet passed behind the German heavily armed outpost of Heligo-land Island and engaged the German fleet guarding the mouth of the Elbe at the entrance of the Kaiser Wilhelm Canal.

less than a mile, the spectacle exposed was such as to create a feeling of sickness. It was like firing at a herd of cattle.
"The front line of the enemy as it advanced under this murderous fire would falter. Then, slowly wheeling, the rifles and the maxims would waver it to nothingness. Another line came on to take its place, and then another, until the attacks slackened away and finally ceased.

"All the while, from positions deep in the woods where no smoke showed, the British artillery with smokeless powder shelled the advancing lines with shrapnel."

Dashing Cavalry Charge

The officer also gave a vivid picture of the shock between the light cavalry regiment of the British and the Uhlans of the German army. The British troopers charged the enemy in their shirt-sleeves, spurring their horses forward until inside lance reach in order to use their swords.
"It was just organized slaughter," said the officer.

BATTLE OF TOURNAI WILL FIND PAGE IN BRITISH HISTORY

(Special to The News - 12:30 noon)
London, August 29.—The battle of Tournai is fit to go down in British history with Magersfont-ein and Rorkes Drift. At Tournai, a force of five thousand German cavalry overwhelmed five hundred British infantry.
The British stood their ground for hours, waiting for reinforcements, and finally the survivors retreated coolly, taking away their wounded.
The Germans mounted quickfiring guns on wagons and also sent hordes of Uhlans on the little British troop.

GERMANS CLAIM ANOTHER VICTORY AT ST. QUENTIN

(Special to The News - 12:30 noon)

The report of the possible confiscation of the property of German investors in this Province is hardly along the right line. Canada has been seeking immigrants and investors from the whole world in the last few years.

therefore, have right on our side even in confiscating the property of our enemies, it would be much more along the line of British tradition to leave them alone.

As a matter of fact, nothing should be done inconsistent with national safety and honor to antagonize the German residents in this country. We have always boasted to be a refuge to the down trodden nations of Europe and we should continue to be so even in the face of provoking circumstances.

In the Letter Box

Mr. Editor.

Dear Sir.—In the issue of The Empire of the 25th instant I notice an article relative to a name for the new regiment to be formed in this city in which the writer intimates that any opposition to the appointment of Mr. Peck to command the regiment would be most unpatriotic.

Also in a former issue of The Empire a letter from Mr. Peck appeared in an endeavour to justify his position in endeavouring to secure the command of this new regiment over the heads of qualified men, in which Mr. Peck appealed to the patriotism of the citizens to stand by him in the hour of need, and branded as disloyal any one who objected to his appointment.

It is a well known fact that as an officer of the Militia of Canada qualified to hold command of a regiment, I take exception to the appointment of Mr. Peck to this new command, and in the fact of this charge of disloyalty I feel that in justice to myself and the other qualified officers in the city who also take exception to Mr. Peck's appointment, a statement of my position is due the public.

Days before there was any inkling of the formation of a regiment in this city, I, as well as four other qualified officers in the militia of Canada had freely and voluntarily offered our services to the Empire. Mr. Peck has endeavored to lead the public to believe that he offered his services to the department and that in recognition of this offer he was handed the command of the regiment.

He has also endeavored to justify his position by stating that as Captain McMullin had consented to serve under him there was no reason why other officers should not serve under him. He has not, however, informed the public that when Captain McMullin consented to act under him he did not know that Mr. Peck only held sergeants papers and was not an officer of the Militia of Canada.

It is only fair to the qualified officers in this city who feel that they could not with any self-respect serve under Mr. Peck, but who are nevertheless enthusiastic militia men that the above facts should be given to the public.

At tremendous expense the militia list of the officers of the militia are published from time to time, the one fundamental purpose of which is to preserve the seniority of the officers. Why this expense if in a case of this kind the lists are not to be consulted?

Representing five of the qualified officers in the city who are opposed to the appointment of Peck, a delegation waited upon Captain McMullin and registered a protest against Mr. Peck's taking command of the regiment, requesting that he use his best endeavour to have Mr. Peck stand aside and allow the regiment to be formed with Captain McMullin in command, and at least six other qualified officers in the regiment. Captain McMullin admitted that the protest of the qualified officers was justified and stated that he would take the matter up with Mr. Peck which he has since done.

Mr. Peck well knows that if he were given command of this regiment and same were required for service in two weeks or a month's time, he could not take command as it will take some months for him to qualify. On the other hand were he to step aside a regiment could at once be formed with its staff officers and company commanders all qualified men who would bend every effort to give Prince Rupert an efficient corps.

From the standpoint of loyalty and patriotism, I ask the public what is Mr. Peck's duty in this matter? Like Mr. Peck, I, too, have risen from the ranks but not with such meteoric rapidity, having won my rank after fifteen years continuous service with my home regiment, serving under Lt.-Col. Marsh, Lt.-Col. Alexander and Lt. Col. T. G. Loggie. I received my first commission as second lieutenant from Lord Stanley of Preston in 1890, and in 1895 got my first step in rank through service to the rank of lieutenant. Again in 1900, through service, I got my second step in rank to the rank of Captain, serving with the regiment until coming to the coast in 1903 when my name was carried to the reserve. During the last six years I was with the regiment I was on the staff as Adjutant, and during my service with same attended nine camps of instruction. My position must therefore be clear to any militia man and I believe will be fully appreciated by the public.

It must be evident to Mr. Peck that in order to have an efficient regiment in this city he must have the support of every qualified man in the city and as this is impossible, if he is the patriot he professes to be he should be a big enough man, considering the service of other men to step aside and himself take a command in the new regiment under a commanding officer who will have the entire sympathy and support of every qualified officer in the city. In conclusion I wish to say that under the regulations of the British Army a man in the ranks cannot be promoted in one step to a rank higher than that of lieutenant and that at the present time H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, our future King, is serving as a lieutenant with his regiment, thereby recognizing the seniority and service of the officers under whom he is serving and upholding the glorious traditions of the British Army of honour and chivalry.

Thanking you for your valuable space, ours very truly,

W. S. FISHER. P.S.—This letter was for publication on the 27th instant, and was on that date shown to Captain McMullin who requested that publication be withheld so that a further effort could be made to convince Mr. Peck that his stand was not in the best interests of the militia.

In the presence of Mr. Maitland the writer told His Worship the Mayor he felt that if he, in the best interests of the militia, in order to heal the breach which existed in Prince Rupert was willing to step aside and serve under two junior officers, Mr. Peck should also step aside and go in as a captain. This suggested compromise seemed fair to Mayor Newton, who requested that the letters be withheld from publication another day, promising to interview Mr. Peck and use his influence to have him agree to the above compromise. Nothing has been done in this regard.

KEEPING BRITAIN'S TRADE ROUTES OPEN

Great Britain's arrangement for protecting her Atlantic commerce during the war is most efficient. The arrangement calls for ten first class cruisers in the main ocean trade route between America and United Kingdom ports.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE NOTES

The launch Westover returned Monday from Prince Rupert.

Miss Tingley, of Port Clements, returned Tuesday from a visit to Victoria.

Wes Singer, of Port Clements, spent Sunday at Masset. Wes says he is going to take up a pre-emption on the West Coast.

The beach all along the island has been flooded with pumice stones of a peculiar color, which came in on one of the tides last week.

Wm. G. Carr came in from the Oeanda this week for supplies. Mr. Carr says the crops are looking fine in that district and also left some photographs he had taken of several hundred yards of ditching he has done on his place.

Prof. Milnor Roberts, engineer in charge of the development work at Camp Wilson, spent Tuesday in Masset. Mr. Roberts says the work is progressing splendidly, two diamond drills being engaged to prove up the extent of the measures, and so far the results are most encouraging.

The Islander office this week looks as if we were holding a harvest festival. Splendid samples of Graham Island products are on exhibition, notably bearded wheat grown by Mr. James Martin; potatoes by Charles Harrison; oats by Dick Davis, and red top and oats by Wm. White, Oeanda.

CANNERS CANNOT GET NETS FOR NEXT YEAR

The canners on the Skeena are already worrying over the problem which is presenting itself on next year's supply of fishing nets.

On the Skeena the canners have to buy new nets every year. These are made in Ireland but the flax comes from Belgium and Russia. Already the manufacturers have refused orders for next year's nets and the canners do not know what the result will be.

Japan makes fishing nets but the fibre used in their manufacture is of very inferior quality and they only last about three weeks.

Canneries on the Skeena invest about $10,000 in nets every season.

On Rivers Inlet and along the coast canneries the net problem does not effect the packers in the same way because they can use a net two seasons but on the Skeena where there are many snags and rough water a net only lasts one season.

In fact some fishermen use two and three nets in a season.

"NATIONAL HERO SERIES" NO. 4

Lord Nelson—Old England's Great Naval Hero

WITHOUT Horatio Nelson, England would have been invaded and perhaps conquered by Napoleon. At Trafalgar he smashed forever the French Emperor's hope of creating a naval power. Never was man more idolized and beloved—not only by all of England's people who breathlessly awaited news of his telling victories, but by every man of his fleet. A true Anglo-Saxon, he detested tyrannous powers and legislative usurpations of every kind. He was particularly opposed to prohibitive enactments governing the diet of his men, who, like him, enjoyed Barley-Malt brews, even as their fathers did for countless generations before. Good beer, according to Lord Nelson, has ever been good food. Budweiser Beer for 57 years has been the product of an institution holding the highest ideals known to the ancient art of brewing. The output, due to Quality and Purity, has increased every year until 7,500 men are daily required to keep pace with the public demand. Budweiser sales exceed any other beer by millions of bottles.

18,000 ALIENS ENLIST TO FIGHT FOR FRANCE

Americans Included in List of Italians, Spaniards and Others

Paris, August 28.—The great square fronting the Invalides in Paris presented a striking spectacle today, when 18,000 foreign volunteers assembled in orderly formation under the flags of their various nations to be mustered in. There were 4,500 Jews from all countries who desired to serve as a separate command; there were also 3,000 Belgians, 4,500 Italians, 2,600 Russians, 2,000 Swiss, 1,000 Spaniards, 600 Rumanians, 335 Luxemburgians, and 125 Americans.

All these volunteers were obliged to wait until the completion of the mobilization of the French regular forces, which was accomplished yesterday. In the meantime 30,000 foreigners resident in France have inscribed their names provisionally on the rolls of a committee calling itself "the friends of France."

Only those volunteers resident in Paris presented themselves today. It will take several days to comply with all the formalities and examinations and make the men into anything like an organized body of troops.

TONEPAH-BELMONT CO. BOUGHT SURF INLET GOLD MINE

The taking over of the big gold property on Surf Inlet, Princess Royal Island, by the Tonopah-Belmont Company, of Tonopah, Nevada, is a matter of very great importance to the mining industry of this Province. The profitable operation of a great gold mine on our west coast will do more to stimulate the mining industry in this part of the world than anything that could possibly happen. It is particularly fortunate that this well-known property has fallen into the hands of so strong and progressive a concern as the Tonopah-Belmont, which is in the field for other properties of merit.
