DOCK EMPLOYEES' SEND OFF TO COMRADES

Dock employees at the drydock presentation with the pontoon yesterday presented their five fellow workmen with the contingent with gold and a pocket safety as a token of the high esteem in which they were held in these men left this morning for Victoria.

A presentation was made by Foreman Gonzalez on the No. 9 pontoon, and every wish for their speedy return and sound. Much credit is being given to Mr. Lothgren for his kind assistance in making collections during the presents.

Active service men are as follows: R. G. McKinnon, N. T. P. Woodland, R. Land and D. M. McDonald.

GER IS PRO-GERMAN.

After in the Toronto Saturday night has the following comment on John McCormack, the down Irish tenor, who appeared at a recital in this city (Vancouver) a little over a year ago. When the war is over Mr. McCormack may go to Germany to sing if he likes. His singing would, no doubt, be an improvement on the singing and bleating of the average routine German tenor. But McCormack cannot come back to us or let us hope to any day in this city. There seems to be a habitable testimony that in the days of the Middle West he was indulging in pro-German expressions—a la Sir Roger. It is not so much that he refused to sing "Tipperary" after collecting revenues by intoning the front of automatic singing machines. He could justify easily on artistic respect. But he is known to have expressed the view that it would be better off under a rule, and to have spoken freely and disparagingly of Great Britain. Now since McCormack would never have his present position of affluence without the aid of Covent Garden and of dependencies, more especially Australia, this savors of the hand that has fed him.

GERMAN SPIES' PLANS HAVE BEEN DISCOVERED

(Special to The Daily News.)
New York, Feb. 26.—The U. S. Federal authorities are investigating a report that Captain Boyd, a naval attaché at the German embassy, supplied Carl Hans Lody and other spies with forged American passports. Stegler, a spy now under arrest, disclosed the plans. He says a German-American with a forged passport is now on the Francoonia, due in England tomorrow to discover the whereabouts of the fleet of British dreadnoughts in the vicinity of St. George's Channel. Captain Boyd gives a heated denial.

New York, Feb. 25.—J. P. Morgan has sold the famous Mme. Du Barry Fragonard collection of paintings, now in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, to Duveen Brothers, who recently bought the collection of Chinese porcelain, also in the Morgan collection in the museum and said to be worth $4,000,000, it has just been announced.

The Fragonard pictures are said to be worth upwards of $1,000,000. These pictures were exhibited by the late J. P. Morgan about 1902 and were exhibited by him in London and afterwards placed in his residence there.

THE CALL OBEYED.

(To the Second Contingent.)
The summons stirs a hundred lands.
"Our Mother needs our aid!"
And swift the loyal strong right hands
Spring to the ready blade.
While Britain owns a single foe,
So long will Britain's bravest go.
God's benison on each heart, who
Answers the call today,
God-speed! Our wishes deep and true
Follow your onward way.
Praying that to fond hearts that yearn
Peace-crowned at last, ye may return.

CONTINGENT HONORED BY CITIZENS— HUGE CROWD GIVE THEM A SEND-OFF

130 Men Leave Today to Undergo Training at Victoria Prior to Active Service—Excellent Body of Men

The whole city turned out this morning to say farewell to the local contingent leaving for Victoria. Thousands of people were lined along the wharf and on the overhead approach.

The Prince George served as a platform from which the speakers delivered their farewell message. Acting Mayor Kerr, on behalf of the city, expressed the pride all felt in the boys who were going out to do duty for the Empire, and wished them godspeed.

Rev. H. R. Grant briefly expressed his pleasure in the bravery shown by the volunteers. While they were going out to fight those at home would be with them in spirit. When alone and lonely, he wished them to think of this and especially that God was always near. He wished them godspeed and a safe return.

Father Buzoz referred to the world as being sick and in trouble and the part the boys would take in restoring normal conditions during which national and personal characteristics would be changed. He was proud of the fine body of men before him, and wished them good luck and a safe return.

TERRIBLE DEATH IN VANCOUVER LAUNDRY

(Special to The Daily News.)
Vancouver, Feb. 26.—C. Lambert, engineer of the Model steam laundry, Third Avenue, was caught in the shafting while fixing a belt and was dashed to death against the ceiling.

PROCEEDINGS PEACEFUL.

Italian Deputies Think Government is Prepared for Eventualities.

Rome, Feb. 25.—The proceedings in the Italian Chamber of Deputies yesterday were comparatively peaceful, owing probably to the general belief among the deputies that the government has done everything in its power to prepare for eventualities. The first line soldiers now under the colors total about 1,000,000 and thus mobilization virtually has been accomplished. Should it be necessary, Italy can speedily call to arms the territorial troops for the local garrisons.

RECEIVED COMMISSION.

E. Bullock-Webster has received word that he has been given a commission in the 47th Battalion, now under training at Victoria. He is anxious to go to the front and has taken a short course at Work Point Barracks to prepare himself. He will proceed to Vancouver next week and enter upon his duty.

INDOOR BASEBALL.

Colts vs. Drydocks tonight at rink at 8:15.

The City Band and the bagpipes were there and helped enliven things up. Cheers upon cheers were given for the boys of the contingent and as strongly returned for those left behind.

Humorous and pathetic scenes were enacted as the boys filed on board ship. Most of them marched on board with a smile and a laughing remark such as: "I'll write you from Berlin"; or, "So long, old top"; but there were a few with tears in their eyes but it wasn't the tears of sorrow but of affection. The wives and sweethearts who were left behind were worthy of their race for they sent them along with a cheerful good-bye—a willing offering to the British Empire.

It is not too much to say that the body of men who left here today would compare favorably with any similar body in Canada. Most of them are young men in the prime of life and of splendid physique and a high standard of intelligence. Indeed, they are the class of men that Prince Rupert can ill afford to lose and nothing but the present crisis could induce the city to part with them.

The company is under the command of Capt. W. B. Clayton, with Capt. S. P. McMordie first lieutenant and W. A. Pettigrew second lieutenant. The non-commissioned officers were not appointed and will get their rank on merit as their ability develops at Victoria. The following is the list of the men, 130 in all:

Any violation of this subsection shall be deemed a criminal breach of trust within the meaning of this section."

CROWDS THRONGED AGR. HALL— GAVE FAREWELL TO CONTINGENT

LARGER CROWD THAN ON FORMER OCCASION—GOOD SPEECHES AND MUSICAL PROGRAM—RESPONSE GIVEN BY CAPTAIN CLAYTON.

The celebration given last night lacked none of the enthusiasm of that given to the First Contingent. The crowd, if anything, was larger, and every mention of the boys in khaki was received with cheer upon cheer.

The parade started from the City Hall at about 8 o'clock, a number of youths leading the way with burning brooms. After marching through the center of the city they made their way to the Agricultural Hall, where a splendid entertainment consisting of speeches and songs was given in their honor.

A number of local artists who are always appreciated were heard to splendid advantage. Principal Brady's rendering of a speech from Shakespeare's "Henry V." brought the house down. Miss Nauman delighted her audience with a song. The Misses Bailey gave a splendid exhibition of Spanish dances very creditable for little ladies of their age. Mrs. Scott, who has already been heard a couple of times in Prince Rupert, excelled herself and won an extra amount of applause. Mrs. Harry Birch, one of Prince Rupert's recent brides, gave a clever reading and received unstinted applause. The double quartette of well known local singers was good, and the Highland Fling received a great ovation.

There must have been a host of Scotsmen there, for the appearance of the bagpipe band almost created pandemonium.

Speeches were delivered by the acting mayor, Geo. W. Kerr, Archdeacon Collison, Revs. Dimmick and Wright and Canon Rix. Canon Rix urged the citizens not to tempt the weakness of any soldier in their farewells. To the men he said that Prince Rupert would stand behind them and take care of any loved ones left behind.

NEEDS TO BE CHECKED

There seems to be a lot of people who think they are all the time in a barn. The noise and disturbance created last night during the meeting was unworthy of Prince Rupert or any other town that claims any self-respect. Crowds walked the corridors throughout the program, and made it impossible at times to hear the speakers. It's an insult to ask a lady or a gentleman to appear before an audience and then allow a deafening disturbance to be made. Children that cannot be kept in check on such occasions should be left at home. But there were adults, too, who should know better. On future occasions it is to be hoped that officers will be put on duty who will see that those who do not know any better are kept in place.

hind. All of the speeches were of a high order.

Capt. W. B. Clayton, replying on behalf of the officers and men of the contingent, thanked the citizens for the honor they had done them. The time for making speeches had gone by and now it was a time for action. He was proud to be in command of such a body of men, and was quite satisfied that Prince Rupert would never be ashamed of the men they were sending out.

After cheers upon cheers for the contingent and a generous return, the meeting broke up by singing the National Anthem.

DARDANELLES WILL SOON FALL TO ALLIES

(Special to The Daily News.)
London, Feb. 26.—A Constantinople dispatch claims that three Anglo-French warships were damaged by the guns of the Asiatic forts in the bombardment yesterday, one being of the Agamenon type. The statement does not deny the British report that all the outer forts were reduced yesterday. The Anglo-French fleet is estimated at thirty ships. The bombardment still continues, and the inner forts are expected to fall shortly.

As the days and weeks pass it is becoming more and more evident that the understanding between the allies is complete and that when the war is over their ideas of final settlement will be in perfect accord. The recent pronouncement of Sir Edward Grey in the House of Commons that Britain was in entire accord with Russia's demand for an outlet to the sea is reassuring. This can hardly mean anything else than the throwing of the Dardanelles open to the Russian navy. Whether it also includes the handing over of Constantinople is another question. The Balkan states lie in the way and a city detached from the rest of the empire would not be of much use to Russia. What is likely to happen is that Constantinople will be neutralized or handed over to one of the smaller nations and the Dardanelles stripped of its fortifications and made free to all nations.

Now is the season when men gather together, eat, drink, smoke and speak. Under one head and at many friendly tables, we dub these meetings banquets. They are held for various reasons, to give shareholders a twinkle of satisfaction at least once a year, to try and make men of different parts to think alike, to give respectability to politics and politics to respectability, and to do countless other things. The first banquet is a thing of beauty and of joy but the tinsel of delight begins to tarnish as the years pass. Yet, although men have come and men have decided never again to go, the banquet goes on forever.

The usefulness of the average banquet is spoiled. It is twice hurt,—by too much eating, and by too many speeches too long. An eight-course dinner with its trimmings, even should the guest take only two bites of each, followed with cigars and a few glasses of water, does not help to mould a receptive mind. Hon. W. T. White, minister of finance, once said that modern men dig their graves with their teeth. Much of the digging is done during the banquet season.

But, after all, the orators are greater sinners than the chef and the dinner committee. Less than one speaker in fifty recognizes that a good speech is short and has something worth hearing. Having, as we have, a great country rich in natural resources, so many after-dinner speakers think it necessary to start at Prince Edward Island, chronicle its history, describe its industries, taking us through the other provinces to British Columbia in the same way, discussing Canada's relation to the British Empire and to the United States, and to anything else, throwing in a few political references, and sprinkling well with enough statistics to make the already dazed head more dizzy. A good speaker can give attractively, more information in a ten minutes' address than all our poor speakers can in six hours. Everyone suffers from the bore of long and empty speeches, including even the next speaker, who forgets his recent suffering when on his feet. After each address a group of guests will leave on a vigorous search for hats and coats. The last speakers around midnight have to talk to a few faithful guests, empty tables and tired waiters.

All this is too bad, because the banquet has an excellent mission in the world. The trouble is that few seem to know how to run them. One day someone will serve the traditional bun and glass of milk, toasts with only one reply, speeches limited to fifteen minutes, speakers hand-picked by a shrewd committee, and bed for the guests before midnight. This much-needed reform is ardently desired by every banqueteer and they all say so—in private.—Monetary Times.

STILL PLOT FOR SEDITION IN ERIN

German Treatment of Daughter Exposed by Pan-Celtic Editor.

London, Feb. 26.—The Daily News quotes John Decourcy Macdonnell, editor of the Pan-Celtic Quarterly, as furnishing proof that the Germans have not lost hope of stirring up sedition in Ireland and winning Irish-Americans to their side. Mr. Macdonnell speaks of conversations which his eldest daughter had in Brussels last week with the German authorities there and the action of the Germans with regard to her and his younger children, whom he and his eldest sons had to leave behind in Brussels when they fled to the frontier to escape arrest and internment in November. He says:

"Things became so uncomfortable in Brussels that his daughter determined to try to leave. Although everybody assured her her attempt would be useless, she prevailed on the American minister Brand Whitlock, to give her a note to the German commander. The soldiers on guard laughed in her face when she stated her business.

"You are English," he cried. "I am Irish," replied my daughter," according to Macdonnell. "Oh," said the German, "I beg your pardon. Will you not take a seat, madam?" His tone changed. Instead of howls his words were as sweet as honey, his face was wreathed in smiles. He listened most sympathetically to my daughter's tale, and sympathized with her bad luck in being left in Brussels alone with four little sisters and her youngest brother, but expressed astonishment at my having left.

"Why did your father leave?" he asked.

Irishmen Immune.
 "Because you would have arrested him and sent him to Germany if he had stayed," said my daughter.

"Arrest an Irishman? Never," cried the lieutenant. "Why should we?"

"The English and the Irish are the same to you," my daughter ventured.

"Not at all. Not at all," was the reply of the official, who requested my daughter to call again. She returned on the appointed day. The moment she entered the office the lieutenant greeted her politely. He handed her a copy of the New York World in which, marked with a blue pencil, was an article denouncing the Germans for inhuman conduct toward women.

"You see," he said, "what they say of us, how they abuse us. This is my revenge."

"And with a dramatic bow he handed her passports to her. Armed with these my children traveled safely to London."

GIBBONS SEES END OF WORLD AT HAND IN WAR

Cardinal Declares the Scriptural Prophecy Appears to Be in Process of Fulfillment.

Baltimore, Feb. 25.—The scriptural prophecy of the conditions that shall prevail near the end of the world seems to be in process of fulfillment, according to a recent statement by Cardinal James Gibbons. He was commenting on the war news from Europe, which he said was terrible.

"We cannot grasp its magnitude or what it means," he said. "Does it not seem that the scriptures are being fulfilled—'nation shall rise against nation and there shall be sorrow throughout the world, and then shall the end come.'"

"Loss of life in great numbers occurs only once in a while. But now in this greatest war of the world a thousand—nay, ten thousand—lives are being sacrificed every hour the war continues."

PREPARED TO MEET PIRACY AND MURDER

Churchill's Ringing Words in the House of Commons—Britain Lost but Sixty-Three Ships During the War.

London, Feb. 26.—Britain is fully prepared to cope with the German submarine raiders, First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill told the House of Commons, though he did not go into details concerning the plan of defence.

"Britain's reply to the German threat will not be ineffective," said Churchill. "We shall see that Germany is not permitted to adopt a system of open piracy and murder."

Britain entered the war as well prepared as Germany for naval eventualities, the First Lord declared. Since the outbreak of the war to the time of speaking, he asserted Britain had lost sixty-three ships, exclusive of mine trawlers.

Turning to a broader discussion of England's naval plans, Churchill told the House of Commons that the new British super-dreadnoughts were being equipped with the new fifteen-inch naval guns. The First Lord added that these guns were fully equal in quality to the present 13.5-inch guns, which are the most powerful now possessed by the navy, and are vastly more destructive.

He said that efficiency was the keynote of the Admiralty's program, and that at the outbreak of the war the supplies of ammunition, men, and oil were complete. Every ship in the navy which was fit for service, as well as new ships which were built for foreign governments and armed merchantmen, had been fully manned.

"In fact, the German army was no more fit for an attempted war on a gigantic scale than was the fleet for national defence," he said.

"After six months of war, with new dangers and difficulties coming into view, we have every right to be content with the results of our labors in making provision for the navy."

After referring to the naval battles off the Falkland Islands and in the North Sea, Mr. Churchill said:

"Only two small cruisers and two armed merchantmen remain of all the German preparations to attack our trade routes and these are in hiding."

Mr. Churchill said it was necessary to be on the lookout for another German attempt to harass British trade routes, "although the ocean is a black prospect to a German cruiser," he said.

OWES HER LIFE TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Cured Both Stomach Trouble and Headaches

PALMERSTON, ONT., June 20th, 1913.

"I really believe that I owe my life to 'Fruit-a-tives'. Ever since childhood, I have been under the care of physicians and have been paying doctor's bills. I was so sick and worn out that people on the street often asked me if I thought I could get along without help. The same old Stomach Trouble and distressing Headaches nearly drove me wild. Some time ago, I got a box of 'Fruit-a-tives' and the first box did me good. My husband was delighted and advised a continuation of their use.

Today, I am feeling fine, and a physician meeting me on the street, noticed my improved appearance and asked the reason. I replied, 'I am taking Fruit-a-tives'. He said, 'Well, if Fruit-a-tives are making you look so well, go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can'.

Mrs. H. S. WILLIAMS.

'Fruit-a-tives' are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box. 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

LAUGHABLE REPORTS FROM GERMAN PAPERS

They Discredit the Report That Britain Has a New Army of a Million Men.

The German editor is somewhat bewildered, these days, by reports that reach him from England on the British army. English Tory papers are calling loudly for conscription, as they allege that recruiting is slack and men are urgently needed. The English Liberal press, on the other hand, state that the response is ample, and pour their wrath on their political adversaries for indulging in "scare-mongering." The British War Office maintains a mysterious silence and publishes no further recruiting statistics. Under these circumstances German comments on the British army are varied and interesting. The Hamburger Nachrichten says:

"The millions that Kitchener wants and about which he has talked in advance will not come. The fact is no longer concealed that the recruiting does not suffice."

After pointing out that such a number of men can not be raised in England without conscription, The Nachrichten is frankly puzzled at the attitude adopted by the British toward such an expedition:

"Universal service, which for our people signifies a blessing and an attainment which may never be renounced, serves in England merely to whip up the sons of the people. We doubt whether the introduction of universal service is still possible in Britain without grave internal disturbance."

The fiercest scorn for the British army comes from a favorite Berlin organ of army officers, The Tagliche Rundschau, which does not hesitate to say that Kitchener has had the greatest difficulty in getting men together owing to the "deep-rooted tradition of the Englishman to let other peoples do his fighting for him," and that this feeling is responsible for very dubious recruiting methods:

"Moreover, one must not overlook the questionable devices to which the military authorities are resorting to get recruits. The great business houses are being urged to discharge employees in order to induce them to enlist through being confronted with unemployment. Indeed, the War Office does not shrink from grabbing vagabonds, who are given the choice of entering the army or going to jail for several months. But despite such measures, recruiting is diminishing more and more."

Much more sober is the opinion of The Frankfurter Zeitung, which frankly admits that Britain may have all the soldiers she claims, but considers that Germany's reserves of men and money give her the balance of power. Further, this editor goes on to pay a handsome tribute to the fighting qualities of the British, but thinks that they will get little opportunity of showing their valor:

"If one is to believe the British, they will, like the French, have assembled an army of 1,000,000 men by the spring. We do not pretend to dispute this assurance, and accept the statement that the six armies, whose commanders were recently named with such conspicuous noisiness, actually exist in Britain.

"The British, with their training in sport, have shown themselves good soldiers. In actual practice they learn quickly what was wanting in their, perhaps, defective training, and, up to the present at any rate, they have been splendidly equipped. But that figure of a million, notwithstanding all this, is merely an empty number which need not terrify us.

"The British government wanted this war, but is canny enough to economize its own resources. The motives of its selfish speculation are considerably strengthened by the unlooked-for danger which

WAR IS WIPING OUT GERMAN ARISTOCRACY

Some Remarkable Facts in Connection With Losses in Prussian Regiments.

The corps and regiments of which Germany is proudest, the commands which in Frederick the Great's time made feudal Prussia, and which make reactionary Prussia today, are, declares Mr. William Frederic Wilhelm Wite, the late Berlin correspondent of The Daily Mail, being swept into the abyss. A well known Berlin journalist is quoted as declaring that "war is 'wiping out' the German aristocracy," while the same journalist declared:

"The tragedy is outwardly most visible at Berlin, where the Herr Lieutenant is the traditional hero of the sentimental pig-tailed 'Baekfisch' (flapper). The Bavarian journalist Lachmann, himself a reserve officer, writes, 'So terrifically has our military aristocracy dwindled that after the war we shall have a new demographically officered army, like that of France.'

Effect of the "Tragedy."

"Totalling sixty daily lists of killed and wounded shows that the ten regiments, which count as the smartest lost on an average half their officers. In peace time these regiments have a total of 180 lieutenants. Of the lieutenants only 78 survive. The reserve officers taken into these regiments have lost 40 per cent. Four of the regiments have lost their colonels, and two of them have lost two-thirds of their captains. Many officers are only slightly wounded. They will return to the front. But as the war goes on few of the original officers will be left.

"Two years hence the army will be commanded by promoted non-coms. These men will excel because they will have had practice in fighting, which will replace theoretical training. But the aristocrat with leadership in his blood will have disappeared.

Members of Famous Families.

"Every aristocratic name is in the list of killed and wounded. Among famous military and political names are Bismarck, Moltke, Buelow, Blucher, Bredow, Kleist and Stein. All the lost officers of these names are kinsmen of heroes of past wars or politics. In the northern provinces all the men of several families have perished.

"Worst are the conditions in the west of the Brandenburg Mark and in Pomerania, both old bulwarks of Hohenzollern power.

Fourteen princes belonging to some twenty-three reigning families are dead or wounded. There are still 100 of these princes at the front. The losses of the reigning families are exaggerated. In addition to his sons, Wilhelm II, has nine cousins and nephews at the front. Six are regimental officers. All these undergo the same risks as do other officers of the line.

Will There Be a Better Germany?

A German soldier, quoted in the Berliner Tageblatt recently, wrote his mother, plaintively wondering "whether there will be a better Germany after this awful war, whether all the sacrifices the country is making will be in vain, or whether the rule of caste, money and rank will be obliterated for ever." The terrible carnage, which six months of war has caused in the ranks of the noblest families, seems to presage the "better Germany" which the soldier, since killed, hankered after.

FRENCH RESENTED INSULT TO ENGLAND

In a letter to his sister in England, a young French officer on service in the neighborhood of St. Mihiel, recently promoted for gallantry on the field of battle, tells this story: "The Germans could think of nothing better to do a few days ago than to put on the walls of their barracks at — a large placard of white calico, on which was written: "Merci a la brave France—haine a l'Angleterre."

Our trenches are from 60 to 90 metres from those of the 'Boches' and with glasses it was easy to read the placard. In the evening I was called on patrol with three good fellows of my half-section, and we crawled towards the German lines till we were within 25 metres or so; and we hid ourselves in a big hole made by a shell.

"I said to my men: 'I have given you socks, gloves, cigarettes, and other things. You know where they came from—they were sent from England. I want to see no more of that placard. Let us do away with it. We have arms; let us put some shots through it and destroy it.'

"The thing was done. I gave the order to fire, and in three minutes only some shreds of the stuff remained. The worst of it was that our fire provoked a terrible fusillade along the whole length of the line. We dropped into the shell hole and waited till the firing had finished—about half an hour—and then we regained our own trenches. My lieutenant greeted me with, 'So it was you who started that fusillade?' And when I said 'Yes,' he asked me what for. I explained that I was half English, having married an Englishwoman, and added that I wanted to see no more of a placard which referred to that nation in such terms. He 'chipped' me for a bit but when we were relieved the story was told to the captain, who passed it on to the colonel. The end of it all was a promise of my stripes as under-lieutenant.

After graduating a mother expects her son to set the world on fire, but the fire department is never called out to check the conflagration.

LIEUT. COL. ALEXANDER GETS VICTORIA CROSS

He is Decorated for Saving His Guns During Attack.

London, Feb. 25.—Lieut. Col. F. W. Alexander, of the Royal Field Artillery, has been awarded the Victoria Cross for saving his guns at Elouges, Belgium, while under a flank attack, and for rescuing a wounded man while under a heavy fire.

Among others who have received the Victoria Cross is Drummer William Kenny for rescuing men on five occasions while under fire.

135 VARIETIES ON ONE TREE.

Hart, Mich., Feb. 25.—One of the interesting exhibits at the County Fair here was a display of eighty-four varieties of apples picked from a single tree. This exhibit was made by G. Haight. Haight has done some experimenting with a tree that was originally a Tallman Sweet. He now has the tree grafted to 135 different varieties of apples. This is believed to be the most versatile tree in the country.

IRISH NATIONALISTS NEW VIEW OF EMPIRE

Owen Sound, Feb. 25.—At the Canadian Club dinner here last night, Rev. Father Minehan, of Toronto, was the speaker, and his subject was "Ireland Before, During and After the Present War." The attendance was the largest of this season's gatherings.

The outstanding interest to Canadians in the Irish developments, said Father Minehan, has been that Canada's autonomy inside of the Empire had given the Nationalists of Ireland a new vision of the Imperialism of the British Empire, changing the attitude from that of separation to the intensest loyalty to the throne.

Not a little interest in the address centered in the description of the malevolent attempt of Germany to foment a rebellion in Ireland, which would result in Britain having internal troubles which would prevent giving aid to France in the prospective attempt to thwart the effort of Germany to Prussianize Europe. Today the Irishmen are in the trenches in hundreds of thousands, defending British Imperialism. The most recent instance is the enlistment of William Redmond, M. P., brother of the leader of the Nationalists. Mayor McQuaker acknowledged the appreciation of the club of Father Minehan's address. Ability to escape from the fool-killed has often put a man in the hero class.
