SHIP ON FIRE IN MID-OCEAN--
LOOKS LIKE A GERMAN PLOT

SHIP WAS CARRYING LARGE SUPPLIES OF AMMUNITION AND GUNS TO ALLIES--WIRELESS CALL IS BEING RESPONDED TO.

(Special to The Daily News.)
London, March 6.—A wireless report from the French liner La France says it is afire in latitude 48.06 and longitude 20.14 en route from New York to France. The steamers Rotterdam, Tampere, Cornishman and Arad are going to her assistance.

She carries 84 passengers, including five doctors and nine nurses on their way to the war. The cargo also includes 4,494 cases of cartridges, 139 machine guns, 1,200 tons of uniforms and foodstuffs and 275 bars of silver. The Valencia reports the fire to be burning fiercely.

GERMANY HASN'T ALL THE SUBMARINES.

The picture shows a fleet of English submarines in the harbor of Gosport. They do not get in the news as the Germans have been because since the war broke out there have been very few ships in the open sea.

FIFTY MEN RESCUED
FROM LAYLAND MINE

(Special to The Daily News.)
Tinton, W. Va., March 6.—Fifty miners were found alive in the Layland mine today. They had been cut off since Tuesday by a gas explosion. Entry to the mine gallery had been bratticed. Seventy-eight bodies have been recovered and there is no hope for the remainder of the 170 entombed.

HERRIDGE HAS LONG PASTORATE

The Presbyterian Church may well be proud of their present moderator. Any church that has out that calibre of men has long claim to a lasting place in human society. Dr. Herridge will be called the Sir Wilfrid of the Presbyterian Church, though there are several others in the Church who are all his peers.

He came to his present charge at Ottawa when only 21 years of age and during the thirty years of his ministry there he has been in strength and usefulness. It has been the privilege of Dr. Herridge to know intimately many of Canada's statesmen. Sir John Macdonald frequently attended church, although he more often accompanied his wife, who was engaged to another church. In recognizing this to Dr. Herridge, he said: "You know I use my brain constantly all week and I go on Sunday to yonder where I enjoy complete intellectual repose."

It is also said that Sir Wilfrid is a great personal friend of Dr. Herridge, and frequently attends his service. Dr. Herridge, as could be seen last night, is a great patriot. He has been doing valiant service as recruiting officer. He practices his preaching, too, for he has two of his own sons to the contingent.

Dr. Herridge left this morning for the East and will visit Prince Rupert enroute.

BELGIAN GOVERNMENT CONTINUES WORK IN THE SMALL SUBURBS

Havre, France, Feb. 28. (By Mail to New York).—Squeezed into a little suburb, known as Nice-Havrais, is the Belgian government. In the house once occupied by a rich German shipper, the Belgian War Department carries on its busy affairs. In another mansion, deserted by a German, the Foreign Office holds sway and on the second floor of a long line of store buildings most of the other departments have their temporary offices.

France has turned over this little spot to Belgium. Nice-Havrais is not French soil, but Belgian, and it will remain so by the promise of France until the King of Belgium rides again into Brussels.

It is the Belgian postoffice that is the most interesting spot in this little Belgium. The French postmaster moved out, bag and baggage, when the Belgians came, and the Belgian Departments of Posts and Telegraphs took it over. The telegraph business amounts to a little, but in the matter of posts this little office probably holds all world's records for its size. It is a paradise for postage stamp collectors. They besiege the place, from the opening to the closing hour. They come from all parts of the countries of the Allies. Some of them live at a nearby hotel and day after day they repair to the little postoffice and buy stamps of all denominations which they affix to postal cards and thrust into the letter slots. It strikes an onlooker—especially one who is not a victim of gruesome business, this matter of

SOUTH VANCOUVER
COUNCIL HAVE MIXUP

(Special to The Daily News.)
Vancouver, March 6.—South Vancouver Council meeting last night broke up in disorder. The councillors left the hall after Reeve Gold vetoed a resolution to re-appoint the fire chief. The councillors and crowd engaged in a fistie encounter, the police having to be called in to quell the disturbance.

making the Belgian ill wind blow well for themselves, but this as a thought appears to have struck neither the postage stamp collectors themselves nor the pretty English girl and the good looking young Belgian fellow, with the brown mustache, who preside at the stamp window. They have batches of stamps, including one of every denomination, ready for any person who comes up and says: "Give me all of them."

Madame Romaine, who keeps the cafe at the corner nearby, is making a small fortune in picture postal cards. It is to her that the stamp collectors go for cards to stick their stamps on. The collectors say that stamps which are placed on letters are never so clearly and thoroughly cancelled as are those which are fixed to the hard surface of cards, and the cancelling marks make all the difference in the value of a postage stamp, from the collector's viewpoint.

Three men work at cancelling in the Belgian postoffice at Havre, and they seem to have caught the spirit of the stamp collectors, for they work painstakingly and seem to be careful, in spite of the mass of work they have to be careful to put the cancelling mark right over the center of the stamp.

"Twenty-five years from now," explained an English stamp collector, "these Belgian stamps, with the Havre postmark, will be worth a great deal. It's one of the few stamps that will tell the history of the great war. There's only one stamp that war has made as valuable as this Havre stamp, and that is the Belgian, with a German cancellation on it. For a while after they entered Belgium the Germans permitted the use of the Belgian stamps, but now, I understand, only German stamps are used in that territory."

MEMORABLE SERMON
BY DR. W. T. HERRIDGE

Large Interdenominational Gathering Hears Thrilling Address From Moderator of the General Assembly.

Prince Rupert turned out in force last night to hear a moral and intellectual treat. The occasion was the visit of the Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly of Canada, the Rt. Rev. W. T. Herridge, D.D., of Ottawa.

Dr. Herridge in his capacity as moderator for the present year has been visiting every section of the Church but being a man of exceptional attainments he is usually met by an interdenominational gathering rather than purely Presbyterian. Last night was no exception to this rule. A very representative audience from all the local churches was there to greet him.

Bishop Du Vernet, of the Anglican Church, who is himself a very broad churchman and very popular among all classes, was appointed chairman. In a few well chosen words, in which he expressed his delight at the interdenominational character of the meeting and the pleasure it gave him to be privileged to hear so distinguished a speaker and the "visible head of the Presbyterian Church," he introduced Dr. Herridge to the audience.

Dr. Herridge is a man about the average size. Perhaps he looks bigger on the platform than he really is. Greatness and bigness are so much associated, at any rate, that he seems to fill whatever ones expectations may have been. He also looks like a very young man as he faces his audience. His ruddy complexion and the vigor of his manner would never indicate that he had already turned the half-century mark.

He attacked his subject from the start and as he carried you on with the tide of his eloquence you were made to feel at every point that his message had a ring that was true. He is a man with a message; a man who has touched the deep places of human experience and at the same time who has not lost the common touch.

He began his address by expressing the pleasure it gave him to have the Bishop in the chair. We were also glad to know that the Bishop had such an accurate knowledge of Presbyterian polity.

ELECTION PROMISES TO BLUFF FARMERS

(Special to The Daily News.)
Victoria, B. C., March 6.—The agricultural credits bill has passed its second reading. It authorizes the raising of $50,000,000 in long date loans to farmers to develop agriculture. The bill will be in force immediately. The House sat till an early hour this morning. They expect to progress tonight.

Before that he was not quite clear as to the exact status of a Presbyterian Moderator but having heard the Bishop define it he was quite willing to accept his definition as final and conclusive.

The subject of his address was "Revivalism." This was the only kind of a sermon worth preaching. His business was traveling this country over and calling for men to come to the service of their country and their God. Such a message should be welcome in a city with a name like Prince Rupert, a name full of heroic memories.

"I understand," said the speaker, "that the name of your city was advertised for; and that a prize was given to the winner. I am inclined to give another to the man who will carry out the militancy of the name in his heart and I believe that prize would be divided between the chairman of this meeting and the 'Sky Pilot' of this Western land," referring to Rev. H. R. Wright, at his side.

"There is one word that rings around the British government today, and that word is 'forward.' The same call is heard from the Captain of our salvation, who never gives the call to retreat. 'Be swift, my soul, to answer Him, our God is marching on.'

"It is great to be alive just now, not because of the easy times, but because of the hard times that exist, a time that is testing the manhood of the country, a time that calls for great faith in God. Life was like a vapor that appeared for a little time, and we see not the beginning nor the end. Out of the mists the river glides on like a phantom stream and utters only an articulate murmur. Perchance the sun is shining on the distant hills as the flood nears its main, when a new and lasting glory shall appear for life, is the gift. Continued on Page Four.)

BULGARIA WANTS ADRIANOPLE--
THREE ARMY DIVISIONS READY

EXPECTED THAT SHE WILL TRY TO SECURE THE TURKISH CITY--BOMBARDMENT OF DARDANELLES CONTINUES--THIRD OF STRAITS CLEAR.

(Special to The Daily News.)
Paris, March 6.—Bulgaria has mobilized secretly three full army divisions near Tienov. It is stated they are for use in the advance on Adrianople.

A Tenedos dispatch says the Dardanelles is now clear of mines as far as Chanak Kalesi, one-third through the straits. The warships are keeping up a steady bombardment of the forts and mine sweepers are at work.

FALSE PROMISES.

The announcement has just been made that the Provincial government is passing a bill to loan $50,000,000 to the farmers. If they had done this when they should have done it instead of giving the money to the C. N. R. they would be deserving of credit. As it is, it looks too much like a deathbed repentance—another case of "When the Devil was sick, etc." or like the man of 90 years said who fell heir to a fortune. "It's too late." After all the broken promises of the past the people will not trust them. They have squandered more than that amount on receptions, commissioners and other useless operations. It's nothing but a dodge to secure another lease of power. They have no intention of carrying it out. As soon as the election is over they plan to go on as before in exploiting the province. A man who has helped the Dominion Trust Company to rob the people is not fit to be in charge. Let us have a good clean out and a fresh start. "It's time for a change."

ANOTHER AMERICAN
FREIGHTER TORPEDOED

(Special to The Daily News.)
London, March 6.—The Holland-American freighter Noorderdyke, enroute from Rotterdam to the United States, has been torpedoed off the Isle of Wight. A British warship has taken the Boston steamer Pacific to Deal. The Pacific had 14,500 bales of cotton for Rotterdam.

SCOOONES ACQUITTED.

H. Scoones, who had been charged with stealing a carburetor from one of the local gas-boats was honorably acquitted today by the police magistrate. The evidence presented was conclusive that Mr Scoones was in the company of his wife and friends at the very time that he was supposed to have delivered the carburetor. Mr. Scoones was accompanied throughout the trial by his girl-wife and everybody was glad to know for her sake as well as his own that he has been acquitted.

EDITORIALS

There are a lot of people in the world who refuse to believe in virtue. They insist on measuring everyone according to their own standards. Perhaps this is particularly true of the West, although the East, too, seems to be imbibing it. The recent case in Toronto whereby a young girl shot her employer dead in defence of her honor will perhaps serve a wholesome purpose. It will tend to remind a certain class of men that there are rights in the world of which they had not dreamed. It is a striking tribute to the laws of our country that virtue and innocence should receive such protection, even in the face of a technical crime.

The sweeping victory of the Liberals in the Yukon election lends color to the feeling that seems universal, that there is a tremendous tide rising all over Canada in favor of a return to Liberalism. No wonder that this feeling is paramount when all the prosperity that Canada has ever known was had under Liberal rule. The man who succeeds, after all, is the man the people want to trust. Sir Wilfrid Laurier succeeded in bringing prosperity to Canada because of his farsighted statesmanship and his courage to adopt the policy he believed the country needed. The Borden government failed because they were not big enough to see the real issue and rise to their opportunity.

It is evident, too, that the McBride government has outlived its usefulness—if a government that has exploited the resources of the province can be said to have ever had any usefulness. One of the soundest principles in Anglo-Saxon systems of government is that a party should not be left in power too long. A change is wholesome, and beneficial to all. It is foolish and childish to say that the Liberals have not competent men to take their place. Nobody with any sense would pretend to say that the Conservatives of Prince Rupert have a monopoly of the intelligence or business ability of this city. The same is true all over the province. There are good men in both parties; indeed, better men outside the government than in it. The Liberals who are seeking the suffrage of the province are in the front rank of our business and professional men. It is a reproach to the intelligence of the province to say that only one set of men can be had to run our government. "It's time for a change." Help it along.

Distance is the greatest enchanter in the world. The things beyond our reach are so uncommon that their luxuriance becomes proverbial. This is one of the reasons why members of Parliament and other official personages are supposed to stand above the ordinary rank and file. As a matter of fact, the best men in Canada are not as a rule in politics at all. This is especially true of Prince Rupert and British Columbia. Most men make the great mistake of taking men at their face value and placing them above themselves. According to well known laws of psychology such a practice is fatal and soon brings about the end imagined. The reason why some men succeed is because they seem to be born with a natural confidence in their ability and manhood. Others have succeeded because they have developed mental habits that have enabled them to believe in themselves.

The intention of the Creator has evidently been that every man should be a Person—that he should stand for something definite and positive. The dictum of Socrates as the most important thing in life was to "know thyself." Modern thinkers have advanced that to "self-realization," or self-expression; that the duty of every man was to reincarnate himself into something worth while, or, as Carlyle would say, to do something so well that it would be set to music and reverberate down the corridors of time. Indeed, that is the very thing that the human heart is yearning after—reincarnation, or self-realization. Nobody wants to pass out into forgetfulness or oblivion. Every man who has caught a glimpse of the greatness of life wants to associate himself with permanence. The only way to realize that is by proper thinking. Start right now to think in a positive way—to believe in yourself—to be convinced that within you there are the elements of greatness; that all you require is hard study and opportunity to put you on a level with the greatest in the land. When you have done this you are a man—free from the enthrallment of self-imposed slavery. What you will be or do after that matters nothing for you have already attained to self-realization.

ACTIVITIES RENEWED IN DRILLING FOR OIL UPON GRAHAM ISLAND

With Advent of Better Weather and Arrival of Machinery Operations Will Be Quite Extensive.

Vancouver, March 5.—Talk of the oilfields on the west coast of Graham Island, which subsided for several weeks owing to the difficulties of getting word around from the west coast, has revived, letters reaching Secretary Lea, of the B. C. Oilfields, Ltd., during the past few days. While all of the information which these contained was not given out, Mr. Lea said work was going satisfactorily, and he expected to be able to have something definite to give out shortly.

In the letter from Mr. Alan Stewart, one of the directors who is personally overseeing the work, was a report of the character of strata in the well. The letter has not reached this city and it is thought it may have been lost. There is considerable disappointment about this, as the drill should now be in the most important formation.

Mr. Brown, of the Queen Charlotte Petroleum Company, recently incorporated, is planning a trip to consume several weeks inspecting some oil land the company is going to pick a drill site upon. This land is in the Rennell Sound portion of Graham Island, and two years ago was favorably reported on by Mr. J. W. Couvert, the geologist, who is best informed on the formation of the west coast of the island.

With the opening of spring general activity in the oil regions of Graham Island may be looked for, say recent arrivals from the North. While a great deal depends upon the success of the pioneer company, they say, yet other companies expect to drill in different parts, irrespective of the outcome of the pioneer hole. However, though this well has not, or had not at last reports, encountered a commercial flow, yet the presence of oil has been proven for months by the seepage into the drill hole.

The log of the well is absolute-

FEAR OF WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO HER WAS THE MOTIVE GIVEN

Toronto.—Fear of what would happen to her when Mr. Charles A. Massey came home was the reason given by Carrie Davies for the shooting, when she entered the witness box of the Criminal Assize to answer the charge of murdering her employer. She was called by her counsel, Mr. H. H. Dewart, to tell the jury her story. On the Friday night preceding the murder, a dinner party had taken place at the Massey house in Mrs. Massey's absence. The guests, said the witness, were drinking rather heavily. She did not notice, however, that Mr. Massey was affected. The next day Mr. Massey offered her a dollar to get a woman to help her, but she did not think it was necessary. He had then given her a ring. He had also asked her if she had noticed his conduct with a lady at the party.

Did Not Answer Him.

"I didn't answer him, but just looked hard at him," said the girl. "He caught me by both hands and kissed me. I struggled, but he kissed me again."

Later, she went upstairs to make his bed. She found Mr. Massey in the room, and he brought out some of his wife's wearing apparel and made suggestions to her. A struggle ensued, but she managed to free herself and run to her bedroom, where she locked herself in. She dressed herself and went to see her sister, but the presence of company at her sister's house prevented her telling of the occurrence. She mentioned to her brother-in-law that Mr. Massey had kissed her, and was told to be careful.

On the morning of the murder she prepared Mr. Massey's breakfast as usual, but went down into the cellar until he left the house, because she was afraid of him. All that day she was alone in the house, except when the boy came home to lunch. She worried all day over what had happened on the Sunday, and feared more trouble when her employer came home.

Everything Was Misty.

When the newsboy called, Mr. Massey was not in, but while they were at the door he was seen coming up the road.

"I guess it was then I lost control of myself and I thought of what he was going to do, and it frightened me. Everything was misty before me. I could only think of him doing me harm, and I knew that I would have to defend myself some way or other."

She went upstairs to the boy's room and got the revolver and cartridges. The boy had showed her how to load and use it, although she had never fired it before. She put the cartridges in ly correct thus far, according to the driller, Frank Eagan, who has drilled oil wells for some thirty years. The Northern Oil Company of this city and the West Coast Oil Fields, Ltd., of Seattle are two other companies which may be expected to begin operations soon the revolver while she was coming downstairs, thinking all the time that her employer meant to do her harm. When the door opened she fired, turned and ran, pulling the trigger all the time, but the revolver did not seem to work. She fired again from the doorstep while Mr. Massey was going down the walk. She heard him fall, and then heard someone cry, "Stop it." That brought her to her senses. She ran upstairs to her room, not realizing that she had shot Mr. Massey and faintly remembered writing two letters.

It was not until she reached the police station that she realized Mr. Massey was dead. She stated that she did not leave the house after Sunday's happenings because she thought it was her duty to stay until Mrs. Massey returned. She had always been sanely treated by the Masseys.

Father An Old Soldier.

Telling of her family, she said her father was an old soldier, but had died since she came to Canada, in May, 1913. Her mother had done sewing until her eyesight failed her. Since coming to Canada, the girl said she had sent money home as often as she could afford it. Her illness at the Island had been caused by indigestion, she said.

Mr. Ernest Fairchild, brother-in-law of Carrie Davies, testified to the respectability of the girl, and the strictness of her parents. Inspector of Detectives Kennedy produced the statement the girl had made after her arrest, in which she told of the attack made upon her by Mr. Massey. Dr. A. J. Harrington testified to the purity of the girl.

All that remained to be heard when the court adjourned were the addresses of the judge and counsel.

MEMORABLE SERMON BY DR. W. T. HERRIDGE

of God and manifestly intended for noble uses.

"I have often heard a young man say, 'I want to go out and see life'; but don't mistake life for death, or the real for the stolen garments of life. Life cannot be measured in a sordid way. It was the supreme benediction of the Christ of God who came that we might have life—that we might serve our brethren more broadly."

The word culture was in bad grace. It had been used in curious forms. Yet, true culture included neither pride nor arrogance. It was never self-centered. It always thought of the rights of others.

Independence in our age has gone mad. The term servant had now a tinge of reproach. The struggle was not to be of service but how not to serve. "Anyone who is not serving in some capacity owes the world an apology for living." All this must be reversed.

The speaker hoped he was not narrow but, after many years of experience, he believed the work of the Christian ministry was the noblest in the land. The opportunity, too, of the ministry was greatest. The troubles of the times had made men think. They haven't been used to it and it hurts. But the frivolity of the past was disappearing. A seriousness had taken hold of the people and they were crying out for God. We could never be the same again. Our deeper experiences would either make us better or worse.

The speaker "could not break away from this nightmare of this European war." It was awful; but Britain had not sought it. He paid a tribute to the British navy, "which even tonight enables us to sit here in peace." We had no quarrel with many aspects of the German people. We could still admire their music, their poetry, and their philosophy; but with the German law of iron and might there could be no truce. Canada was bound up in this fight. "When Britain is at war we are and if we have to we will send a dozen contingents" in order to bring this fight to a successful issue.

While he believed it was a just war on our part, it was not a time for boasting. All the right was not on our side and all the wrong on Germany's. It was a time for self-examination and penitence before God. "Perhaps this stern chastisement was required to put a check on our follies; to give us a fresh start in a nobler direction; to bring out the best that is in us in order to arrange for the final triumph of His Kingdom, and for a peace that shall abide.

The conflict was not one of armies and navies. It is one of ideals. No nation can be neutral in the strife. The sympathies of those who believe in the right must eventually come together. "There is no East and no West but Europe and Asia are all one when God's hour strikes the world."

He denounced the kind of life that put all the emphasis on bank accounts and vacant lots—many of them miles from any city. We had better get back to use the land for the purposes intended by the Almighty. "I am not making a political speech but I think there is something wrong with the land policy of your province. You need a new perspective. You must begin to reduce your imports and produce your wants at home."

There are more important things in life than prosperity. We can stand privations or the loss of loved ones, or even death itself so long as we do not lose our souls. The man who has lost his soul has lost everything.

The test of the Church of the future will not be its creeds or its orthodoxy, but the way in which it serves humanity. If it doesn't do its duty it will be trodden beneath the feet of men. The Church must hold its grip on the unseen as well as serve. He told of a woman on board ship in a storm. In her anxiety, she spoke to the captain. He replied, "It's very stormy, but we must trust in Providence." "Oh, captain, has it come to that?" was the reply. There was too much of this point of view. In the past too much attention was given to talk about the other world. He again told a telling story. A weary washerwoman, all covered with soap-suds, had a rhyme something like this, "We will all sit down by the bank of the river and there we'll do nothing for ever and ever." That idea was wrong. Nobody need apologize for wanting to continue to live here. It's unnatural to urge a healthy boy to hurry up and die. The world was full of the beauties of God, and what we should do was to put them within the reach of all. Another story clinched his point. A certain bishop who was ill consulted a doctor. The physician advised a change of climate, preferably Algiers. The bishop protested that he couldn't leave his charge. "Well," said the doctor, "it's either Algiers or Heaven."

"Then in that case," said the bishop, "I'll go to Algiers."

He made a strong plea for the Church to undertake the reforms of the earth, and leave the future to take care of itself. The churches must take up their work more seriously. They must get together. We are too sober at present, too respectable. The people expect nothing and get nothing. A new spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion was needed. A real revival war was imperative, if the Church would fulfill her mission. The attitude was too much like that of the user of a fashionable church to a colored woman who came in to worship. As she warmed up under the influence of the sermon she clapped her hands and uttered "Praise the Lord!" The usher told her to stop. "How can I stop, honey," she said, "when I've got salvation?" "I can't help it," he replied, "you didn't get it here."

cuts Monday's labor clean in half.

The Sunlight way is so easy—just note. First you soap the garment; then roll it up to soak. After a while you rinse it thoroughly and the dirt drops out like magic.

Why scrub, and rub, and wear and tear the clothes when the gentle strength of Sunlight Soap will do the work with never a hurt to fabric or hands.

Try it once—this Sunlight way.
