COUNCIL MEETING IN THE OPERA HOUSE?

Prince Rupert's Council has many exhibitions of comical farce and tragic, in its career, but perhaps tonight's meeting will cap them all. It is safe to say that every man in the city will attend in order to hear the speech of the city solicitor regarding the disqualification of the Mayor and Alderman Morrissey.

WHY NOT TURN THIS TRAGEDY INTO A MONEY-MAKER?

It has been suggested that the meeting be held in the opera house and that an admission fee of 50 cents be charged for the benefit of the Pauper Fund. The event will be worth four bits and the Pauper Fund needs the money.

EL FRIEDRICH FEARS DYNAMITE

Precautions Taken to Prevent the Blowing Up of German Ship.

Port News, Va., March 27.—As a result of threatening letters to have been received by Captain Thierichens, of the German military cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, precautionary measures have been taken to guard against any attempt to damage the ship. The pier to which the ship is moored was fenced and extra guards were put on duty.

The letter is said to have demanded that Captain Thierichens depart immediately or his ship would be blown up.

TERRACE ROASTED WILLIAM MANSON-- ONLY HIRED ROOTERS CHEERED HIM

William Thinks Women Are Not Intelligent Enough Yet to Vote--Has Hopes That by and by They May Come up to Standard, Then He Will Favor Women Suffrage.

Terrace, March 28.—William Manson arrived in Terrace Saturday to hold the opening meeting of his campaign in the forthcoming Provincial elections. Having remembered the hot reception he received on his last visit to Terrace, he decided to take no chances on having a vote of censure on the McBride government passed at this meeting, so he brought fourteen stalwart Conservatives from Prince Rupert along with him. The Progress Club Hall was well filled, after the "stalwarts" were all seated, but it was not crowded as it was a week ago at the Liberal meeting held by Mr. Pattullo.

Mr. Manson opened his meeting with a bitter attack on The Daily News, and condemned that paper very vigorously. He said that the Liberals of the province had no platform whatever to give to the people, but later in the evening when the Liberal platform was produced by Mr. L. H. Kenney, it was found that Mr. Manson also had one in his pocket.

Mr. Manson noticed that the meeting was getting fidgety at his uninteresting and lengthy address, so he closed by predicting a Conservative sweep at the polls. The applause at the finish of his speech was led by the Prince Rupert contingent, augmented only by the road foremen of the district and other government employees.

PERCY GODENRATH WRITES FROM FRONT

A picture postal has just been received at this office from P. F. Godenrath, who went to the front with the second contingent. The picture gives a view of Queens-town Harbor, where the transports landed, and at the time of writing they had been anchored in the harbor for thirty hours, apparently not afraid of the German submarines. Mr. Godenrath said that at the time of writing "the Prince Rupert bunch" were "all happy and well and keen to get into camp."

MAYOR AND MORRISSEY NOT YET RESIGNED

No official resignation has yet been received from the Mayor or Alderman Morrissey, but it is understood that they will be in tonight before Council meeting. At any rate, they cannot take their seats without endangering themselves by another fine. An acting mayor will have to be appointed tonight, who will hold the position until another is elected.

BELITTLE B. C. WOMEN

William Manson showed up very badly at the Terrace meeting when he got mixed up in the woman suffrage question. In one moment he was telling the Terrace ladies that he hoped before long to have the pleasure of supporting a bill giving votes to women; a few minutes later he was telling Mr. Kenney that he voted down a woman's suffrage bill two years ago because the province was not then ripe for it. This being the case, the inference is that the women will have evolved enough within a few years more to deserve the right to vote. The Liberals believe the women of British Columbia are already as intelligent as the men and vastly superior to many who now vote and they are ready to give them the franchise. The Tories refuse it because they know the women would not support the machine.

AMERICAN SUBMARINE NOT YET FLOATED

(Special to The Daily News.)
Honolulu, March 29.—The lost submarine has not yet been floated. A diver went down 215 feet yesterday, making a new world's record, and found out that the lowered grapples had not got the F-4 but rather the lost anchor of the battleship Oregon. Bubbles outside the harbor now show the location of the leaking submarine.

GERMAN OBSERVATION POST WAS BLOWN UP

(Special to The Daily News.)
Paris, March 29.—Official.—The German observation post at Ypres has been blown up. At Eparges the Germans made an unsuccessful attempt to recover lost trenches, when violent fighting ensued.

DOUBLE ATTRACTION AT MAJESTIC THEATRE

The Majestic continues to provide photoplays of the highest grade. Tonight and tomorrow, in addition to the usual picture program, there will be hypnotic stunts by Mr. Eddie. The pictures include a strong drama, "The Blotted Page," in two reels; "Shep the Sentinel," "Check No. 130," and a Keystone comedy entitled "Our Country Cousins."

STATE-WIDE PROHIBITION BILL IS VETOED IN UTAH

Disapproved by Gov. Spry After Both Houses With Big Majorities.

Salt Lake City, Utah, March 27.—Governor Spry has filed with the Secretary of State his veto of the Wootton state-wide prohibition bill, which passed the recent Legislature by a vote of 40 to 5 in the House and 16 to 2 in the Senate. As the Legislature has adjourned, the Governor's veto of the measure is final.

The veto cites the local option law of the state as affording prohibition to such communities as desire it, especially with the operation of the new "dry territory" bill, which the Governor approved this week.

His concluding objection is that the bill abolishes the saloon and makes the druggist the dispenser of alcohol and wine on a physician's prescription, "with the generous allowance of a maximum of one quart of liquor under each prescription."

MR. MANSON'S STATEMENT

Mr. Kenney asked Mr. Manson if he could tell him what the yearly revenue from his constituency amounted to; but he could not even give a rough estimate. (More laughter.)
Exception was taken to Mr. Manson's statement that the Liberals had no platform, and Mr. Kenney drew one from his pocket. (Cries of "Read it.") Each plank in the platform was read and discussed separately by Mr. Kenney. In discussing the "Loans to Farmers" plank, Mr. Manson was censured for bringing along with him for distribution to the voters, a pamphlet purporting to be the loans to farmers bill, but which only gave sections No. 36, 37 and Chancellor Lloyd George, in speaking about the labor troubles in England, has the following to say about the drink problem in that country:

"Let us be perfectly candid," added Mr. Lloyd George. "It is mostly the lure of the drink. They refuse to work full time, and when they return their strength and efficiency are impaired by the way in which they have spent their leisure."

Mr. Lloyd George then referred to the large powers given by Parliament to use in emergencies. He said that this power would not be used recklessly, but if the necessity arose, Britain was ready to deal with the liquor question as the other allied countries had.

Constantinople's future is now one of the most interesting questions of the day. "If we wish to compare the relative importance of Constantinople and of the Suez Canal we need only assume that another power possessed Egypt and Great Britain Constantinople," writes Mr. J. Ellis Barker in The Nineteenth Century.

er possessed Egypt and Great Britain Constantinople," writes Mr. J. Ellis Barker in The Nineteenth Century. "While Constantinople would be useless to Great Britain the occupation of Egypt by a non-British power would jeopardize Britain's position in Indian and her Eastern trade."

"The importance of Constantinople to Russia lies in this, that it is the door to her house, that he who holds Constantinople is able to attack Russia in the Black Sea. The struggle for Constantinople can obviously end only when the city and the straits are possessed by a first-rate power. That is the only solution, and the only power which has a strong claim upon the possession of Constantinople is evidently Russia."

"The world will as little tolerate a Russian Napoleon," adds Mr. Barker, "as a French or a German one. Hitherto, every nation which has tried to enslave the world by force has been checked by a world combination. The Russians will scarcely be anxious to undertake a policy which has brought about the downfall of Turkey, ancient Spain, Napoleon's France, and modern Germany. Whenever a great danger arises to the liberty of the world the threatened nations combine for mutual protection, and a balance of power, sufficiently strong to restrain it, is automatically established. That has been the lesson of history."

VICTORY IMMINENT.

Petrograd, March 27.—The Russe Slovo correspondent interviewed General Pau in Warsaw on the fall of Permsyl. General Pau summarized his impressions in one word, "Excellent."

He declared that victory in the war was imminent. This was his conviction when leaving France, and it had been strengthened since his arrival in Russia. "The spirit of the Russian soldiers," he said, "the enthusiasm felt by them for their officers and, lastly, the military skill of the Russian citizens, which I was fully able to appreciate after personal intercourse with them, all fortify these hopes and allow me to look into the future serenely."

WEIRD SCHEMES FOR INVASION

Germany's boast that she will land an army of 300,000 men from transports, which will sail between two complete lines of huge submarines, is almost as absurd, says "Tit-Bits," as the plan depicted by an old print published in 1798, which shows a huge French raft propelled by windmills conveying thousands of French soldiers. This, however, certainly deserved the credit of being termed an ingenious idea, as steam was not then understood, wind being the best power known.

The Germans are apparently taking a leaf out of Napoleon's book, for on several occasions they have threatened to invade England by means of shallow craft carrying 1,000 to 1,500 men each, so that the men could step ashore.

The practicability of such a scheme was first revealed some years ago by Erskine Childers in his remarkable novel, "The Riddle of the Sands," in which the author endeavored to show how men would be assembled secretly on the rivers that flow from Germany into the North Sea, behind a fringe of islands. They would be piloted by German sailors familiar with the British coast, and would slip through to England while the British fleet was crushed or drawn in another direction by the German fleet.

There is no doubt that the suggestion put forward by the author of this remarkable book created no small amount of sensation. Indeed, its publication is said to have led to a complete change in the British naval policy. The British fleet was centred in home waters, instead of being scattered all over the world, and two naval bases on the North Sea—one on the River Humber and the other at Rosyth in Scotland—were constructed specially to watch Germany.

ATE MOSS, GNAWED EQUIPMENT STRAPS TO SUSTAIN LIFE

London, March 27.—"Four thousand prisoners, mostly from Permsyl, have arrived here, says Reuler's View, Russia, correspondent. They give a pitiable description of the starving condition of the garrison before the fall. Numbers of the men, they say, were dropping from exhaustion, while other had not sufficient strength to leave the trenches and ate moss and gnawed at the straps of their equipment to keep themselves alive."

BRITISH LEADERS ARE CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

The Prime Minister in asking for more money, representing an expenditure of nearly £2,000,000 a day for the army and navy, said: "The government are making a large pecuniary demand on the House—a demand beyond all comparison larger than any British Ministry in the whole course of our history."

"We are making that demand with the full conviction that, after seven months of war, the country and the whole Empire are every whit as determined as they were at the outset—if need be, at the cost of all we can demand—both in men and in money, to bring a righteous cause to a triumphant issue. There is much to encourage and stimulate us in what we see. Nothing has shaken, nothing can shake, our faith in the unbroken spirit of Belgium—in the undefeated heroism of indomitable Serbia—in the tenacity and resource with which our two great allies, the one in the west and the other in the east, hold their far-flung lines, and will continue to hold them till the hour comes for an irresistible and decisive advance."

"We have no reason to be other than satisfied with the progress of recruiting. The Territorial divisions, now fully trained, are capable—I say it advisably—of confronting any troops in the world."

Mr. Bonar Law and the Army.

Mr. Bonar Law, in the Commons said: "We have kept to the full the command of the sea, and have the power to apply pressure to sea power to a greater extent than has ever been known in the world before."

"We have also kept in the field since the war began an army which, though small compared with the gigantic forces in arms on the Continent, is by far the biggest army which has ever been commanded by a British general. "The officers cannot speak too highly in praise of the men, and the men are never tired of singing the praises of their officers. "We are creating, to meet the needs of this war, armies which even from the point of view of numbers, can compare with Continental armies now in the field. That is a great conception. "Our army has done great work. Small as it is, I believe it is not too much to say that at a critical hour, if it did not save Paris, at all events it gave the aid which enabled the French to save Paris for themselves, and broke the tide which seemed to be the tide of victory."

Mr. Lloyd George and Our Moral Strength. "I have never been doubtful about the result of the war," said Mr. Lloyd George, "nor have I been doubtful, I am sorry to say, about the length of the war and its seriousness. I have always been convinced that the result will be inevitably a triumph to this country. "The natural resources of the allied countries are overwhelmingly greater than those of their enemies—in men capable of bearing arms, in the financial and economic resources of these countries, in their accessibility to the markets of the world through the command of the sea for the purpose of obtaining material and munitions. All these are preponderatingly in favor of the allied countries; but there is a greater reason than all. "Beyond all is the moral strength of our cause, and that counts in a struggle which involves sacrifices, suffering and privations for all those engaged in it. A nation cannot endure to the end that has on its soul the crimes of Belgium."

The Ascendancy of Sea Power. "Just as growth from the root begins underground, so historians accustomed to look below the surface discover great origins in periods and events, giving little outward indication of their full significance," says the Observer. "It is more than possible that historians in the future may judge last week to have been the turning point of the war."

"Alike in Poland and along the Carpathians the Central Empires seem to have reached their limit no less than in France and Flanders. The mouth of the Dardanelles has been triumphantly forced by an allied fleet which we know now to include the Queen Elizabeth. This, the newest and mightiest of our super-dreadnaughts, is the wondrous ship of our navy. The seizure of the first section of the long straits which lead to Constantinople will be felt throughout the East as a sign that the fortunes of the Triple Entente are waxing, whilst those of the Central Empires wane."

"But there is yet a third thing of still deeper significance. At sea Germany has made her last desperate throw and failed."—Public Opinion.

Depositors of Bank of Vancouver Recommend Nominee for Liquidatorship.

Vancouver, March 27.—At a meeting of depositors of the Bank of Vancouver, held Wednesday night in Pender Hall, Mr. G. L. Smellie, manager of the Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation, was endorsed as nominee for the liquidatorship of the bank. The endorsement was made on the recommendation of a committee of depositors, Messrs. Vinson, Cayley, Shantz, Saunders and Corbett.

In the discussion several speakers voiced the opinion that it was inadvisable that anyone connected with the bank should be selected as liquidator.

WOMAN DANCER SHOT ON EXPOSITION GROUNDS

San Francisco, March 27.—An Algerian dancer, known as the Princess Turkait, a member of a ballet in a Russian amusement concession at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, was shot and instantly killed last night by her brother, Isaac Lizraki. Lizraki then began firing indiscriminately at the entertainers on the stage and into the audience, causing a panic. The spectators made a rush for the doors. None of them was injured. Lizraki was disarmed and arrested. No reason is known for the shooting.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

MORNING SESSIONS AT OTTAWA-- END OF THE SESSION IN SIGHT

OTTAWA EXPECTS A FEDERAL ELECTION IN EITHER JUNE OR SEPTEMBER PROVIDING CONDITIONS AT FRONT ARE SATISFACTORY.

(BY H. F. GADSBY.)

Copyrighted.)

Ottawa, March 26.—As Tom Moore's Canadian boat song puts it, the rapids are near and the daylight's past. That is to say, the end of the session is in sight and a general election lowers on the horizon.

Liberal members of Parliament who have consulted the fortune tellers have been told that a dark man, with thick, iron-grey hair parted in the middle, will cause them a lot of trouble either in June or September. This must mean Premier Borden and a general election. But when the stargazers are asked to foretell the length of the session they remain silent. It all depends, as they say, on how Parliament feels about it.

I miss my guess if Parliament doesn't feel that it might as well be talking on the side lines as in Ottawa. Both sides are preparing for the worst and, to do that, they must get their case before the public. As Hansard is not a widely read volume and, even if it were, is not in shape for distribution until early in the fall, it looks like better policy to utilize the living voice to influence public opinion and to plant what you have to say where it will do most good. In other words, each man will water his own garden and let it go at that. Swinging the whole of Canada by means of speeches in Parliament is a blamed hard job, especially when the newspapers, owing to the war pressure on their columns, refuse to print the speeches. This is a session in which every member just naturally has a big speech in his system, a tremendous, patriotic thing sizzling with latent power like a carboy of soda, but if Parliament won't let him get it off his chest what's the use of hanging around, particularly when that speech might be doing yeoman service somewhere else?

Besides, Parliament is generally a get-home-or-you-won't-get-rich-quick club, and though the sessions are often prolonged for the party purposes of the leaders the rank and file are usually disposed to cut it short and save as much as they can out of their sessional indemnity. Paid by the day, so to speak, and not by the week, they have the frame of mind which goes by that kind of labor. The less they hand out for board and lodging the more they have left for themselves. Besides, the farmer members want to get back to look after their seeding, and many other members have occupations which bring them in almost as much as their work at Ottawa if they only have a chance to stay at home and mind their own business.

Such is the spirit of thrift in the Canadian House of Commons, and when you add to it the prospect of a general election and the immediate necessity of mending one's political fences you can easily see that Premier Borden doesn't have to use the closure to chase the members away from Parliament Hill. Barkiss is just a little more than willin'. By the way, it's surprising how seldom the closure has been used since it first graced these shores. Premier Borden tried it on once and it didn't seem to be popular, so he put it away on the shelf where he can reach it if need be. Apparently its main purpose is to give the government confidence, to reinforce their moral courage, to flash it in the eye of danger, but not to shoot. If it was unpopular three years ago it would be more unpopular now when the average member of Parliament likes to feel that he has a right to talk for his country even if he can't bleed for it. Besides, Speaker Sproule wants no more closure on his hands at this stage of the game.

doing it all along and if he knew that Parliament's day begins ordinarily at three in the afternoon and winds up at midnight, with two hours' intermission for dinner, he would be liable to say that the members weren't earning their money. Morning sessions, I repeat, are not to be regarded as object lessons for the farmer. They are the outward and visible sign that Parliament is going to bolt the business whole even at the risk of losing its sleep.

The danger of morning sessions is that it breaks in on the rest of the members and causes them to be fretful and peevish. Ordinarily, the member of Parliament rises at ten, tubs and breakfasts, and is ready for committees at eleven. This is his habit of long standing and he doesn't like to be rushed, because he does a lot of hard thinking and must have time to recuperate. Get him up two hours earlier and you throw his program out of gear with disastrous results to the neighbors. If an explosion occurs between now and prorogation, it will be due to some red-eyed member who finds his morning sessions playing hob with his temper and digestion. Barring that, Premier Borden's time-card should work satisfactorily. It takes morning and afternoon to make a full day in the Public Accounts Committee and the opposition, like the young man who undertook to diminish the visible supply of hard liquor, has got the shoe committee working nights.

Of course, the election is a foregone conclusion. The signs of it may be seen in every Conservative job printing plant in Canada—dodgers, pamphlets, voters' lists, campaign leaflets—the sky will be black with them presently. Sir Richard McBride has already consented to postpone his election in British Columbia, so that a reverse there, or even a partial reverse, will not prejudice the verdict in the bigger conflict. As a trial balloon British Columbia is not what it used to be. With only two opposition members in a local house of forty-two, any gain there is a considerable victory, not to mention the fact that a great reaction is about due in the Pacific province and that Sir Richard's difference with his Right Bowser, so to speak, is doing a lot to help it along. Another sign of the times is the inquietude of the Conservative organizers in Quebec, who don't like the way things are shaping in a part of Canada, largely addicted to admiration for Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Finance Minister White also contributed his share of the evidence when he introduced certain easements in the tariff with a view to pleasing the electorate. For example, patent medicine is let off with a 4 per cent tax instead of 10, so that it won't cost the poor man so much when he calls in his favorite doctor. Imported whiskey is taxed 7 1-2 per cent plus the Canadian excise duty, thus giving the home distiller 7 1-2 per cent advantage over the outsider. The government does not wish to kill the goose that lays the golden egg by discouraging the demand for the native product to an extent that will interfere with the revenue. For the time being the government is not taking any more falls out of the Demon Rum—the idea being not to sear the demon until money is easier.

Coffee is put on the same basis as tea, because there are several million people in Canada who like coffee for breakfast, even if they do take tea for supper. Bananas are also put on the exempted list and wild, edible berries from Newfoundland—partridge berries they call 'em, because no decent partridge will eat 'em—so that if Canadians have any hankering for a light fruit diet they can go to it right away and the tariff won't stop them. Platinum—and here's a bright augury—may come into the country without let or hindrance and since platinum is three times as valuable as gold what do we care if the gold standard is shot to pieces? Milk food for babies is also admitted free, that being the only infant industry which doesn't need protection.

These are the straws which show that an election's flowing. When it will be, nobody knows. It will depend largely on the news from the front. Some time when the casualty lists are not too heavy and Canada is thinking more of the glories of war than of the deaths it brings, the wise men at Ottawa will spring it. Semper paratus—that's the mot-

CORDILLERA PROPERTY LOOKING EXCELLENT

Mr. T. J. Jennings, who is interested in the Cordillera Mining Company, operating at Usk, returned to the city yesterday after visiting the property. He reports that the farther they go into the lead the better the ore looks. He brought down with him a large piece of copper glance in which the free gold can be visibly seen. They have about sixteen tons of the ore sacked ready for shipment and in a few days they expect to have a carload which they will ship to Granby. Mr. Jennings is satisfied that the result of that shipment will be a great boost for his property.

FAMOUS ORGAN DISABLED. Experts at Work on Mormon Tabernacle Instrument.

Salt Lake City, Utah, March 27. The great pipe organ of the Mormon Tabernacle, one of the most widely known instruments in the country, is out of service and cannot be used again for several months, according to an announcement yesterday. Experts are at work on it and church officials say every effort will be made to restore it as soon as possible. The pipes, made of native woods, before a railroad entered Utah, are intact, but the mechanism must be replaced.

to. As usual, both sides are going to win. The Liberals expect to sweep Quebec, make gains in Ontario, do considerably better in Manitoba, better their position in the Prairie West, and capture seven seats out of thirteen in British Columbia. The government relies on good old Ontario and a considerable landslide in the Maritime Provinces to pull out a working majority. Without posing as a prophet, my guess is that the opposition has a fair fighting chance.

There is at least this to say for the gold-fish: It doesn't try to sing.

TERRACE ROASTED WM. MANSON—ONLY HIRED ROOTERS CHEER HIM

38 of this bill, in which not one dollar was mentioned in any place, no rate of interest announced, nor any intimation as to how much money would be available for this purpose.

In discussing coal mines, the government was heartily attacked for the way it handled the coal strike and shot down the miners. At this point, half of the "big guns" from Prince Rupert were brought to bear on Mr. Kenney but the heavy fire was returned effectively and the support given the speaker from the floor by the cries of "Go on, Kenney!" showed the government artillery that they were one hundred miles away from their base of supplies so they withdrew in confusion, Mr. Merryfield acting as rear guard in the retreat, keeping up a desultory fire during the remainder of Mr. Kenney's attack.

In speaking on "strict enforcement of the criminal law," Mr. Bowser was brought to task for having ordered the release of criminals sent to the New Westminster jail.

A Voice: "Who were they?"
Mr. Kenney: "I might shame you if I told you."
"Name them."
"They were inmates of the segregated district of Vancouver."
"I don't associate with that class of people."

Mr. Kenney left the platform in a storm of applause and after a few more questions from the floor, Mr. Manson's meeting was brought to a close.

Many expressions that the sympathy of the meeting was decidedly against Mr. Manson were heard outside of the hall, so the "Prince Rupert Rooters" had to return to Prince Rupert quite disappointed with the result of their trip.

The only compliment that they can pay to Terrace today is on the wonderful climate and the fine townsite.

Notwithstanding the fact that there were fourteen "stalwarts" from Prince Rupert, no one but William Manson attempted to speak. The people of Terrace were greatly surprised at this, which compares very badly with the showing made by the Liberals, who apparently have an adequate supply of speakers.

McBRIDE'S DAY IS DONE

REV. H. R. GRANT GIVES ACCOUNT OF HIS TRIP

Rev. H. R. Grant evidently does not travel like the regulation clergyman, with "the veil of the temple" between him and his fellow passengers. Indeed, it would be more natural to see him with a big briar pipe in his mouth out among "the boys" in the smoking room. At any rate, he seems to have had something to say with nearly every one he saw on his trip.

Last night, instead of preaching a regular sermon, he gave a review of his trip and it was full of interest.

He began by reiterating his confidence in the economic strength of Western Canada. In British Columbia, the country was vastly superior to that which the C. P. R. traverses. On the Prairies, the whole country was black soil, ready for the biggest crop in history, showing that the "production and patriotism" campaign has borne fruit.

He had heard nobody talk of politics and evidently the people didn't want to talk it at present. Neither was there much about the war, but prohibition was everywhere the subject of conversation, both in Canada and in the states he passed through. Mr. Grant is certain that the three Prairie provinces will go dry within a year and a half and all Canada within five years.

Somebody in Alberta had said that the prohibition movement had cost him $150,000, or, in other words, his hotel was only worth 50 per cent of its former value. Another replied: "Well, it is only a few years since I knew you as a waiter on the C. P. R. diners; if you only have $150,000 left, surely, you have no kick with Canada."

Mr. Grant also related some serious and humorous arguments with fellow passengers, including the old stager, "Where did Cain get his wife?" Mr. Grant knows and he told him and if there was a little of the modern idea in it, it was also Biblical. Another didn't believe in home missions, but was dumfounded to know that the Presbyterians of Canada—one of the generous churches—only gave five cents for every dollar spent in Canada for chewing gum. The total amount raised for all purposes was $2.75 per capita. He also had a word with the moral man who "was not far from the Kingdom." Morality as practiced was largely a matter of geography and a final standard was necessary which was to be found only in the Church.

Mr. Grant enjoyed his discourse so much that it was about stopping time when he came to home mission matters, with which business he was called to Toronto. Last year, $480,000 was spent on home missions, but this year they were compelled to reduce it to $280,000 in view of the hard times.

WOMEN WILL MEET IN INTEREST OF PEACE

Truce to Be Urged Among Belligerent Nations at Hague.

New York, March 27.—The program for the great woman's international congress in the interest of peace, to be held at The Hague next month, just received here from Holland, shows that the first movement to be made in the congress will be an effort to bring about peace between the warring nations. Women of practically all nations, including those at war, are expected to attend the congress. Exercises will be in Dutch, English, French and German.

"Each of the belligerent nations claiming that it is not an aggressor, but is fighting in self-defence, all are asked to publicly define the terms on which they are willing to make peace," says the program. It is proposed that the women demand that all future international disputes shall be referred to arbitration, the powers uniting to bring pressure to bear on any country resorting to arms."
