INTERESTING LETTER TO HAND-- H. O. CREW WRITES FROM FRONT

MAKES A VIVID DESCRIPTION OF HIS LIFE IN THE TRENCHES
--APPEARS TO BE IN GOOD CHEER AND DOING HIS DUTY.

H. O. Crew, who was one of the recruits from this city the Princess Pats, has written a very interesting letter to E. V. Ling, of this city. The following is a selection from it, which gives an exceptionally good description of his experiences:--

Well, here we are at the front, having been in the trenches for a week. I am back again in the trench, being in bed all day; bed consisting of straw and a blanket, but quite comfortable. I have a terrible cold, and have not been able to eat anything for two days, after a good rest am now feeling better, and expect to be home tomorrow. The boom of the shells reminds me very much of the night in the blasting days.

Monday, we had a long march, bringing about thirty-five pounds on our last billet at the farm at 9 a. m. and arrived here at the farm about 5 p. m., and I arrived I was all in. We had a good rest Tuesday and

Wednesday, and Thursday we started at 5 o'clock for the trenches. They put us in for 24 hours so as to let us find out for ourselves what we have to put up with. The farm where we are is really on the firing line, if the artillery ever trains its guns this way. Well, we started out so as to arrive in the dark, as that is the only time that the relief can get in and out. After walking for about two miles we came to a village or small town, and it was the most pitiable sight I have ever seen. The church was a heap of ruins, and the old tower was standing with great holes knocked in it. Every house had the windows broken in it, and I think it would be impossible to find one that a shell had not either flattened to the ground, or the roof had gone, or one or two of the walls. One large house was

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

Tonight will be a big night among the local Knights Templar. They will be visited officially by Most Eminent Sir Knight Philip D. Gordon, of Montreal, the Supreme Grand Master of the Sovereign Great Priory of Knights Templar of the Dominion of Canada. He is expected to arrive on this evening's train and will be met by the local Knights. He is accompanied by Eminent Sir Knight A. A. Bittues, also of Montreal. An emergency assembly has been called for tonight by Presiding Preceptor Eminent Sir Knight D. H. Morrison. The visitors expect to leave for the South on the Prince George tomorrow.

MEETING SUCCESS.

A letter from H. V. Scott, formerly of Scott-Froud Co., says that "the boys" like their change of life and wouldn't exchange the ranch for the best business in Prince Rupert. At present they are preparing for the spring crops and hope to have a good yield this year. The ranch is on Cortez Island.

SUBMARINE BLOCKADE IS LOOSENING ITS GRIP

(Special to The Daily News.)

London, April 8.—The Great Eastern Railway announces that their bi-weekly passenger service from London to Hook-of-Holland will be resumed next week. This steamship service was stopped by the German submarines and its resumption indicates that the Admiralty has the matter well in hand.

DEPORTATION STOPS CHECKERED CAREER

"Son of English Lord," Out of Jail, Wants to Go Home and Join Army.

San Francisco, April 8.—Ronald True, who says his real name is Arthur Reginald French and that he is a stepson of Lord Glenfalloch, of England, was ordered deported to Great Britain yesterday by United States Commissioner Krull. The order was issued at True's request to escape being sent to Los Angeles, where the police are said to have a charge against him.

True was released recently from the Alameda county jail after service of a fifteen months' sentence for forgery. He said that if deported, he would join the English army, in which he says he once held a commission.

True says that after he gambled away his fortune in England his titled stepfather sent him to South Africa on a sheep ranch and that he afterwards drifted to Canada, where he entered the Canadian mounted police, then came to the United States, where he was a prizefighter until he was eliminated from such a career by several defeats.

Election Manifesto

Ex-Alderman Thomas McClymont Makes Full Statement and Asks for Support in Mayoralty Election.

To the Electors of Prince Rupert:
Ladies and Gentlemen,—I feel that in view of my action in resigning from the Aldermanic Board and offering myself for Mayor, I owe a full statement of my reasons to the public.

You are all aware that this election was brought about by the ex-Mayor having been found guilty of what may be called a technical breach of the law, and a law which is very wise one, and operative from the Imperial Parliament down to the smallest municipality in the Empire; and it is to the effect that a man holding a legislative position shall not have any monetary dealings, apart from his legal allowance, with the body which he serves. If ex-Mayor Newton didn't know he was breaking the law, he should have, for he is on record as attacking former members of the Council of a couple of years back on a charge of carrying city insurance, which, as a matter of fact, was not so. However, whether this be put down to a technical break on his part or to genuine ignorance, I do not care, as I do not base my case on this phase of the question at all.

I am opposing ex-Mayor Newton and making the Montreal trip the main issue. In the first place, I contend this trip should never have been made. It was not taken up in the regular way in the Council; so I did not have the opportunity to oppose it till the decision was already made. I did contend, however, that it was foolish to send two men, if the trip was decided upon, as one man would do as well. Also, in case two men were decided upon, I advocated sending the city solicitor, who has a much better understanding of these matters than either of the men who went on the trip.

Finally, however, ex-Mayor Newton and ex-Alderman Morrissey secured permission to proceed to Montreal and on arrival there interviewed the general manager of the Bank of Montreal, Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor. They continued there for several weeks negotiating over the re-floatation of treasury certificates for the city, and after considerable delay returned and reported that they had been successful and that the certificates would be taken up by the bank at a total cost to the city of 6 per cent interest and 2 per cent for commission and flotation charges.

When the official letters were presented to the city, however, it was found that the extra of 2 per cent was not a commission, but a yearly charge of 2 per cent, making a difference of $54,000 to the city.

Now, although I think that 8 per cent is by far too much for a city to pay for a large sum of money for three years, I am not even going to criticise that, but what I do strongly object to, is the fact that those men, after spending several weeks in negotiating with the bank, were not aware of the terms on which the deal was made.

Now, I contend that the most serious part in the whole transaction for this city, is not so much the loss of $54,000, which is considerable in these hard times, but rather the very unfavorable impression that financiers have got about the class of men we elect to office. Everybody knows that bankers in lending money go largely on the character and ability of the man who will spend the funds and from their experiences with the men we sent to Montreal there is no doubt but what they will make up their mind that Prince Rupert is not worthy of very great confidences, and I have a mental picture of Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor when he got the

CONQUERING THE FOG.

It is to be devoutly hoped that the secret of fog annihilation as explained recently before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will prove a correct one. Electrically caused precipitation is the principle depended on to clear the way for ships at sea, make London visible to visitors and even brighten up Pittsburgh—for smoke is equally susceptible to this enemy of darkness. Ships will send out a small aeroplane connected with the vessel by a wire, and the electric current will banish fog for a third of a mile ahead; a system of wires will be installed all over London—this is the plan—to ward off fog banks; and the chimneys of great manufacturing plants will be wired to precipitate the smoke before it can escape.—Christian Herald.

AUSTRIANS CUT IN TWO--RUSSIANS IN CONTROL

(Special to The Daily News.)

Petrograd, April 8.—The Russian advance into the Carpathians has resulted in the cutting in two of the Austrian army at two places. The eastern wing is in a most precarious condition. The Russians have captured Smolensk, east of the Lupkow Pass, and are controlling the only road through the Beskid Mountains. They have also thrown back the Austrians at Bartfeld and in the Lupkow district.

SATAN REBUKES SIN WHEN IT HITS HIMSELF

(Special to The Daily News.)

Berlin, April 8.—The German press is incensed over the British admiralty withholding the details of the manner of the sinking of the submarine U-29. They believe that the methods used were reprehensible. In other words, the Germans want the British to keep all international laws while they roam the seas as submarine pirates.

DO YOUR DUTY

Tomorrow the citizens of Prince Rupert will elect a Mayor and Alderman to complete the broken term. The candidates are all well known and their records are before the people. As there is no issue apart from a personal one, although very important, no comment is necessary. The people will elect their choice and if they do not choose the right men they will pay for it. One thing, however, should be pointed out: Every voter in the city should attend and cast his ballot. If you leave it to others to elect your candidate you may be disappointed. There should be a large vote cast and if this is done the choice will at least be a popular one. Prince Rupert needs the best man for Mayor. Do your duty.

To the Electors

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Being an Aldermanic candidate in the approaching municipal bye-election, I beg to announce my policy as standing for a square deal for the wealth producers of the city.

Respectfully,
GEORGE B. CASEY.

To the Electors of Prince Rupert

Ladies and Gentlemen,—As a protest to the way in which civic matters have been conducted of late and more particularly the Montreal trip fiasco I have resigned my position as Alderman of this city and offer myself as candidate for Mayor in the forthcoming bye-election. If you see fit to elect me I believe I shall be able to conduct the affairs of this city with competence and dignity.

Yours faithfully,
THOS. McCLYMONT.

The Conservatives are very wrothy because the leader of the Liberals in British Columbia should have put in concise forms many of the old truths of the Liberal platform with a few more suggestions on his part.

PERMYSL'S FALL WAS DUE TO GAY POLICY

Garrison Kept in the Dark as to Seriousness of the Russ Advance.

Permysl, April 1 (Via Petrograd and London).—Refusal to credit stories of Russian victories and the progress of Russian arms contributed largely to the ultimate fall of the permysl fortress.

The correspondent, who came into Permysl with the Russians, Monday, March 22, has since talked at length with a number of Austrian officers, one of whom spoke of the days of siege as follows:

"The morale of the men within the fortress was good at the outset, but it underwent a change after the battered armies of Generals Dankl, Auffenbach, and Bruderman straggled into Permysl.

"The fate of this fortress was decided after the sortie of the nineteenth. When this was driven back the Russians were within 1,800 yards of our outer line.

Continuing, the Austrian officer described the last hours of the fortress as awful. No doubt of the outcome existed in anyone's mind and it was with a sense of relief that the garrison at 5 o'clock that Monday morning saw the white flag of surrender.

WORKINGMEN SCARED BOWSER--CHEERED NAME OF BREWSTER

INTERESTING REPORT OF RECENT MEETING IN LABOR HALL, VANCOUVER--BOWSER REFUSED HEARING AND JEERED BY THE CROWD.

The report already given in The News was only too true about the rough time the Attorney General received at the hands of Vancouver workingmen.

Mr. Bowser's opening words could not be heard for the noise, even as far as the press table. He did make heard, however, a few words and said, "I confidently expect there are a few labor people in this house--"

"This is not the breadline," someone shouted back.

"I am here to receive any criticism of the Workingmen's Compensation Bill," continued the Attorney General, when he was broken in upon again with "Why did you lay it on the table?"

Mr. Bowser—I always find when there is important legislation like this--

Voice—How about the Dominion Trust?

Mr. Bowser—If you will not listen there is not much use for me to speak.

Voices—Hear, hear. Not a bit of use. We don't trust you.

Mr. Bowser—I thought I would at least get fair play.

Voice—Did you give the Dominion Trust people fair play?

Mr. Bowser—If you do not want to hear me, there is no use wasting your time nor my time.

Voice—Get one of Price Ellison's cows and milk it.

Mr. Bowser—I had thought there were sufficient labor people here interested in what I had to say.

Chorus—Sure.

Voice—Smoke up, William.

Mr. Bowser—If you do not want to give me an honest hearing--

Voice—Who is this that talks about honest?

Starts the Chorus. At this point a man in the midst of the crowd arose as if to speak and somebody in a deep bass started, "We'll hang Old Bowser to a sour apple tree," and a powerful chorus joined; while the Attorney General turned white in the face, then red, then scowled, set his jaws and patiently awaited the end of the chorus.

The Attorney General here revived himself with a swallow of water, wiped his lips with his kerchief, opened his mouth to continue his speech, when a voice called, "Three cheers for Parker Williams." These were given. Then another man called out, "Go fetch the police." Another voice, "Send for the militia."

Those Submarines. A temporary lull, and the Attorney General once more opened his mouth and got a word or two out, when a voice from another part of the hall calls, "Tell us about the submarines—it will be more interesting."

Mr. Bowser was ready for the next lull in the catcalls, jeers and booes, and broke in like the crack of a whip, "I always thought the laboring man and the Socialist was in favor of free speech."

Voice—How about Nanaimo? We can trust you.

Again the Attorney General braced himself and was ready again to speak, when came from the middle of the gathering a deep, bass voice, "I say, Bowser, is this a deathbed repentance?"

Another voice—How about that little boy who died in jail.

Mr. Bowser—Now, now, those who boast of free speech should give me an opportunity.

The look of appeal upon the stern-faced Attorney General had a quieting effect for a minute, when he continued: "I hope the people are interested in any legislation we bring down to hear me and I am confident when the bill comes up some of the laboring men who have probably made a deeper study of such legislation than we have will give us an opportunity to hear their views--"

"When!" cracked a shrill voice from the rear of the hall.

"Is it not a fact that the Attorney General will let the Workmen's Compensation bill lay on the table for one year, because he wants to wait until his friends and clients, the railway contractors, are through," asked a voice.

Mr. Bowser refused to answer.

Mr. Bowser—I believe there are some here who want to hear a free discussion and that is why I came to the Labor Temple. If I have made mistakes, or the government has--

"Listen to him soft soap now," came an interruption.

"Oh, that's all right," jeered back the Attorney General, "people have said at other elections, 'well, it's all over with Bowser this time.' I am not here to talk politics and I feel I do not have to appeal to you--"

Voices—We are. You've talked too long already. Go out and talk to the bread line.

Bowser—If I go away now I shall feel that the workmen do not want their conditions improved.

WORKINGMEN SCARED BOWSER—CHEERED NAME OF BREWSTER. (Continued From Page Two.) Voice—Brewster can speak. Bowser—There may be many here who disagree with me—

At this juncture there broke forth the greatest pandemonium when the Attorney General said "I will attempt later to justify my actions in the government. I trust you will be fair enough to give me a hearing in my own city."

Chairman Harper—Now, gentlemen, I ask you as a matter of courtesy— Voices—Sit down. Fetch up Brewster. Cheers for Brewster.

At the mention of the name of the Liberal leader somebody in the audience shouted "Three cheers," and they welled forth in a great roar. But the Attorney General stood his ground. Unabashed by the applause at the mention of the opposition, at the first opportunity he cut in with, "I think there are many here who have made a study of such provisions as we propose and can assist in framing for this province a good measure."

"Tell us about the land policy. Tell us about the P. G. E. Have you got Pat Welch here, and are Dan Mann and Mackenzie here," several voices interrupted in a stream. A man in the audience here got up and tried to be heard but was howled down. Then he went to the platform and spoke to the Attorney General.

Considerable noise followed and the Attorney General said something. There were some more unintelligible sallies and finally the Attorney General, apparently quite disgusted, exclaimed, "I feel sorry for you if you will not give me a hearing—"

Finally, fully an hour, the Attorney General launched into his speech whether he was heard or not. He was detailing the history of the compensation for workmen and remarked that the first country to take it up was Germany, when somebody exploded with, "Kaiser Bill."

The history of the bill was continued by the speaker, who told about the countries and states that had taken it up. His remarks were halted once more with "Tell us about it in B. C."

Thus it went, back and forth, from the Attorney General to the audience, and back to him again until somebody shouted, "Tie up the bull," which caused the Attorney General's severe countenance to relax in spite of his determination to put on a brave face. He explained he had been accused of many things before but never of peddling the bull. He then took another tack and tried to jolly his hearers. They listened for a bit, then broke forth again with cutting remarks.

Soon afterward somebody during a lull asked, "Where's dirty Dick—Baronet Dick?" Spoke Too Long. "I have been here for an hour and I've not spoken fifteen minutes," came from the Attorney General, which remark was met with, "And that's too long."

He struck another snag with the sentence, "The man that gets hurt is compensated—." Here a voice fairly shrieked, "How about that boy who died in Jail?"

This was almost too much, and the Attorney General began, "In all my political career—" "Start over again, Bill," snapped someone. Once again the speaker launched forth, to be met with this time, "The second chapter according to Bowser."

Still again the intrepid leader of the Tories got a start on his compensation act, when the crowd became uproarious with the sally, "Sy, will it compensate the eye wot's looking for work?"

That it was the intention of the government to send a commission to find out how the plan has worked in other places, came an assurance from the speaker and he promised one should be from the Trades and Labor Council. He was interrupted with jeers and flung at his tormentors this, "There's not a one of you who are so noisy who would not be willing to make the trip—at the expense of the government."

When, indeed. "When did you get interested in the working man, Bill," was the reply to Bowser's thrust. "I am doing my best and if you do not like it you can go to the polls and record the fact on election day," savagely replied the Attorney General.

"We're goin' to do it, Bill," was the come-back to that. Somebody asked the Attorney General to sing. He didn't sing, but he fairly exploded with, "Now I will speak on the public platform and you can be there and I will get a hearing."

As the Attorney General took his seat after probably the most trying time a speaker ever had in this city, three cheers were given for the Liberal leader and three great, voluminous "boos" for the Attorney General.

entirely demolished, except one wall and chimney, which stood up as a sort of defiant monster. Bricks and mortar were strewn all over the place, and the village was beyond description.
"After leaving the village, we were in the firing zone, and halted at a farm to take off our boots and put on gum boots. Then came a walk along three ploughed fields, which were a quagmire, and we were splashed from head to foot. All this time, the boom of the Maxims and rifles were continuous, but luckily not in our vicinity, although occasionally a stray bullet would hum up overhead. Every now and then a star bomb would soar up. This is nothing more than a large rocket, and when they go up we all have to double in half and hide our faces. They send these up at night to try and locate any moving troops, but we were not seen. Then we came to a farmhouse, at least, what was once a farmhouse, now a few stones, and the remains of a few outbuildings. Just past this we crept into the trenches, and there we were, only 350 yards from our enemies. All this was done in absolute silence, and as we came in, the others went out.
"The trenches are rather hard to explain. They are about six feet deep, and built zig-zag, not straight. It is very much like a large trench for a water main, only, as I said before, with cross walls which are connected. These trenches on the top are then strengthened with sand-bags, so that the whole thing is bullet proof. In the back and front of the trenches are little caves, in which the men sleep, and could, if we had time, be made fairly comfortable. The whole place is, of course, wet through, and the wet clay sticks to everything, and soon you are in a filthy state. The bottom of the trench is generally full of slush, so that, unless you are able to fix up your little cave, everything in sight is wet through. The night we arrived it was freezing hard, and I was put on listening picket. Before I go any farther, I must tell you that in front of the trenches is a conglomeration of barbed wire entanglements extending all along the line, and twenty-five yards wide. My job consisted of going out with another man and a corporal and lying down in a hurdle stretched over a ditch, and behind a tree, about thirty yards in front of our trench, and listening for any sounds that might come from the enemy. First of all it sounded like a big risk, but there is really none. As far as I can make out, directly night falls, both sides go out and fix up their barbed wire and trenches. We could distinctly hear them driving in stakes, and whistling, and some of the regulars with us walked around as though they were on the street. It is very cold lying out there from 10 to 12, and I often wondered what you were doing. The whole thing was very interesting, but not a bit exciting.
"All night the boom of the guns went on, and on our left the rifle fire was continuous; but in front of us not a shot was fired. At 12 o'clock we were relieved, and I crept into my hole, and slept a little, but nearly froze. At 4 o'clock, I had to go out again, and then it was bitter, and soon I was covered with hoar frost, and had a great wish to sleep; but, of course, that would never do. The whole time we were out we could hear the Germans chopping and working, and about 5:45 a. m., as day broke, we went in. There was a heavy mist, and not till about mid-day could we see the German trenches. As I told you before, they are very close—only about 350 yards away, so that anyone sticking his head above the trenches is liable to get it. We were then told we could fire if we wished at anything we could see, but to be careful and not show ourselves. Of course, our men started firing at sandbags, and there was a great waste of ammunition. They replied back, and they have some good marksmen. You would hear the bullets ping over your head, and hit a sandbag. I had only one shot as there was nothing to see, and no one on our side was hurt, and I am sure none on theirs.

"One very interesting thing we saw, was an aeroplane being shelled by the Germans. As a matter of fact, we saw this three times. In the afternoon the weather was glorious, and this British aeroplane was soaring away, up on our right, when a beautiful little cloud appeared at some distance from it, and hovered there until it gradually dissolved. Another and another arrived, but the aeroplane sailed majestically away, as though these shells were a part of the scenery. We saw them fire thirteen times at one in as many minutes, but their range was away out. At night we left and returned to these quarters, and this morning, feeling very weak and tired, decided to stay in bed, and am feeling much better now. Will write more tomorrow as I am getting cold.

JOURNAL KNOWS
The Morning Journal suggests that when the Liberals are returned to power they will "continue to carry on business in as close an imitation of the Conservatives as possible," and that, too, is what the Journal is warning the public against. No wonder; no one knows better than The Journal how corrupt those practices are, and it is quite in order to protest against such methods being renewed. When the Liberals are returned, however, as they will be as soon as an election is called—they will do away with all those corrupt practices and restore the decency of public life. The Liberal party is pledged to do this and they dare not do otherwise or they, too, would be swamped in turn. We must elect somebody, and a change is always wholesome. Vote for the Liberals.
better today, and had church parade, and as a Sunday diversion, and the first time since we arrived, they dropped three shells very close to us; in fact, one exploded just above the farm across the road about a hundred yards away, but no damage was done. You hear a whistling sound, and directly afterwards an explosion and a small black cloud, and if you happen to be in range, a nasty shock. We do not know yet what our further movements are to be."

wire from the Council asking what the deal really was. The total cost of the trip to the city was around $1,700, and, after all, the deal was finally settled by a telegram.
There are a few other things that I would like to refer to and that is my stand on labor. Since coming to Prince Rupert I have employed considerable help, and I believe that all the men who worked for me are satisfied with the treatment they received.
With regard to city pay, I never have advocated a reduction in workingmen's wages, nor do I propose to, but I do recommend that some reduction should be made for a period of six months in the salaries of the well paid officials of the City Hall. This money, I contended, should be used in relieving any who might be in distress. The fact that the leading labor men in the city are with me should be proof as to my fairness in their behalf.
I would also draw the attention of the citizens to the underhanded methods adopted by my opponents in which through the agency of a man who has not a five-cent piece invested in the city they sought to disqualify me by preventing my resignation as Alderman being accepted at the meeting called for that purpose. I contend that men who would stoop to such methods are dangerous persons to have in charge of the city. As a result, we are called upon to pay the cost of another election, which is sufficient to feed several families for a considerable time.
Considering all these things, therefore, I believe you will agree with me that a change would be good in Prince Rupert. There are possibly very dark days ahead of us unless we get together and work for the city's interests instead of squabbling over local jealousies or politics, in which I have never taken an active part.
Assuring you that I have no other object in view in seeking election than the welfare of this city, in which I am considerably interested, and asking you to assist me in this worthy cause, I am,
Faithfully yours,
THOS. McCLEYMONT.
