PRINCE RUPERT ARRIVES.

The Prince Rupert had a list of 150 passengers this morning, including fifteen through passengers to the East.

On the way north a mining party was landed at Hardy Bay. The party included Judge Renwick, Messrs. Lark, Bacon, Todd and Sikes, all members of the Stewart Mining Co.

Mrs. Lark, Mrs. Sikes and Mrs. Todd, who accompanied the gentlemen from the south, are making the round trip on the Prince Rupert.

There were two bridal couples aboard, and both came in for a nice shower on landing. They were Mr. and Mrs. Edvanson and Constable and Mrs. Fairbairn. Mr. Edvanson is a real Rupert old-timer, having helped to clear the townsite eight years ago. He is now mining at Alice Arm.

Constable Fairbairn's bride is a Scotch lassie, just out from home, having braved the very real dangers of ocean traveling these days to become Mrs. Fairbairn. They left on the train for their home in Aldermere.

These chicks were hatched by electricity in the front window of Messrs. Mrs. C. E. Warner will receive on Friday of this week, but not again this season.

Troops are ready to assist the police in preventing the houses of wealthy Germans being burned, and martial law is threatened.

Judge Robertson will proceed to Fort George on Saturday morning, where he will meet Judge Calder and arrange the division of their work.

LOOKING AHEAD.

When a man finds himself looking back, instead of forward, it is a sure sign that he is getting old. Youth looks ahead with expectancy; age lives in the past. Age, however, is not always a matter of years. There are many young men of sixty and over, and, unfortunately, many old men of thirty.

The Northwest is a poor anchorage for old men of any age, chiefly because it is so youthful. Everything lies ahead. What has been done is merely a slight scratch on the surface of things, showing more clearly how much there is to be done in the years to come. Continuous looking ahead keeps a man young. That is why one meets youths of eighty in this wonderful north land, many of them still able to pack their prospecting outfit with the best.

Prince Rupert has had its few years of initial mushroom growth, with its attendant bustle and excitement, but it is still merely a healthy infant. The real growth has yet to come. The world is just beginning to discover its possibilities, its wonderful approach by either land or water; its background of fertile valleys and mineral-laden mountains; hunting grounds and well stocked streams, and its proximity to the great ocean fishing banks and to the Orient.

The scarcity of fish in Britain, resulting from the use of so many trawlers as mine-sweepers, has brought Prince Rupert more prominently than ever before the British public. Prince Rupert halibut and Skeena River frozen salmon are now famous on the London market.

Mineral development is naturally a much slower process, but it is coming along nicely. The great mineral demand of Europe today is for copper. With the shipment of ore from Rupert's back-door to the Granby smelter, another stage in the great work has been entered upon.

In the near future, 98 per cent pure copper will be shipped through Prince Rupert to New York from Granby. The transportation company has been able to quote the smelting company satisfactory rates on this line of business, and, when the increased capacity of the smelter comes into service, this will naturally increase.

When the war is over and capital is more readily obtainable for development work, it is not too much to expect that Rupert may have a smelter of its own.

The approaching completion of the drydock heralds another line of development. Its construction has been a boon, but its real worth will only be realized when it begins to do the business for which it was planned.

The get-rich-quick days may be over, but the days of steady up-building of a solid, lasting, world-wide trade are ahead. Look ahead.

THE STEADY SUBSCRIBER.

How dear to our heart is the steady subscriber,

Who pays in advance of the birth of each year,

Who lays down the money and does it quite gladly,

And casts round the office a halo of cheer.

He never says "Stop it; I cannot afford it,

I'm getting more magazines now than I read";

But always says, "Send it; our people all like it—

In fact, we all think it a help and a need."

How welcome his check when it reaches our sanctum;

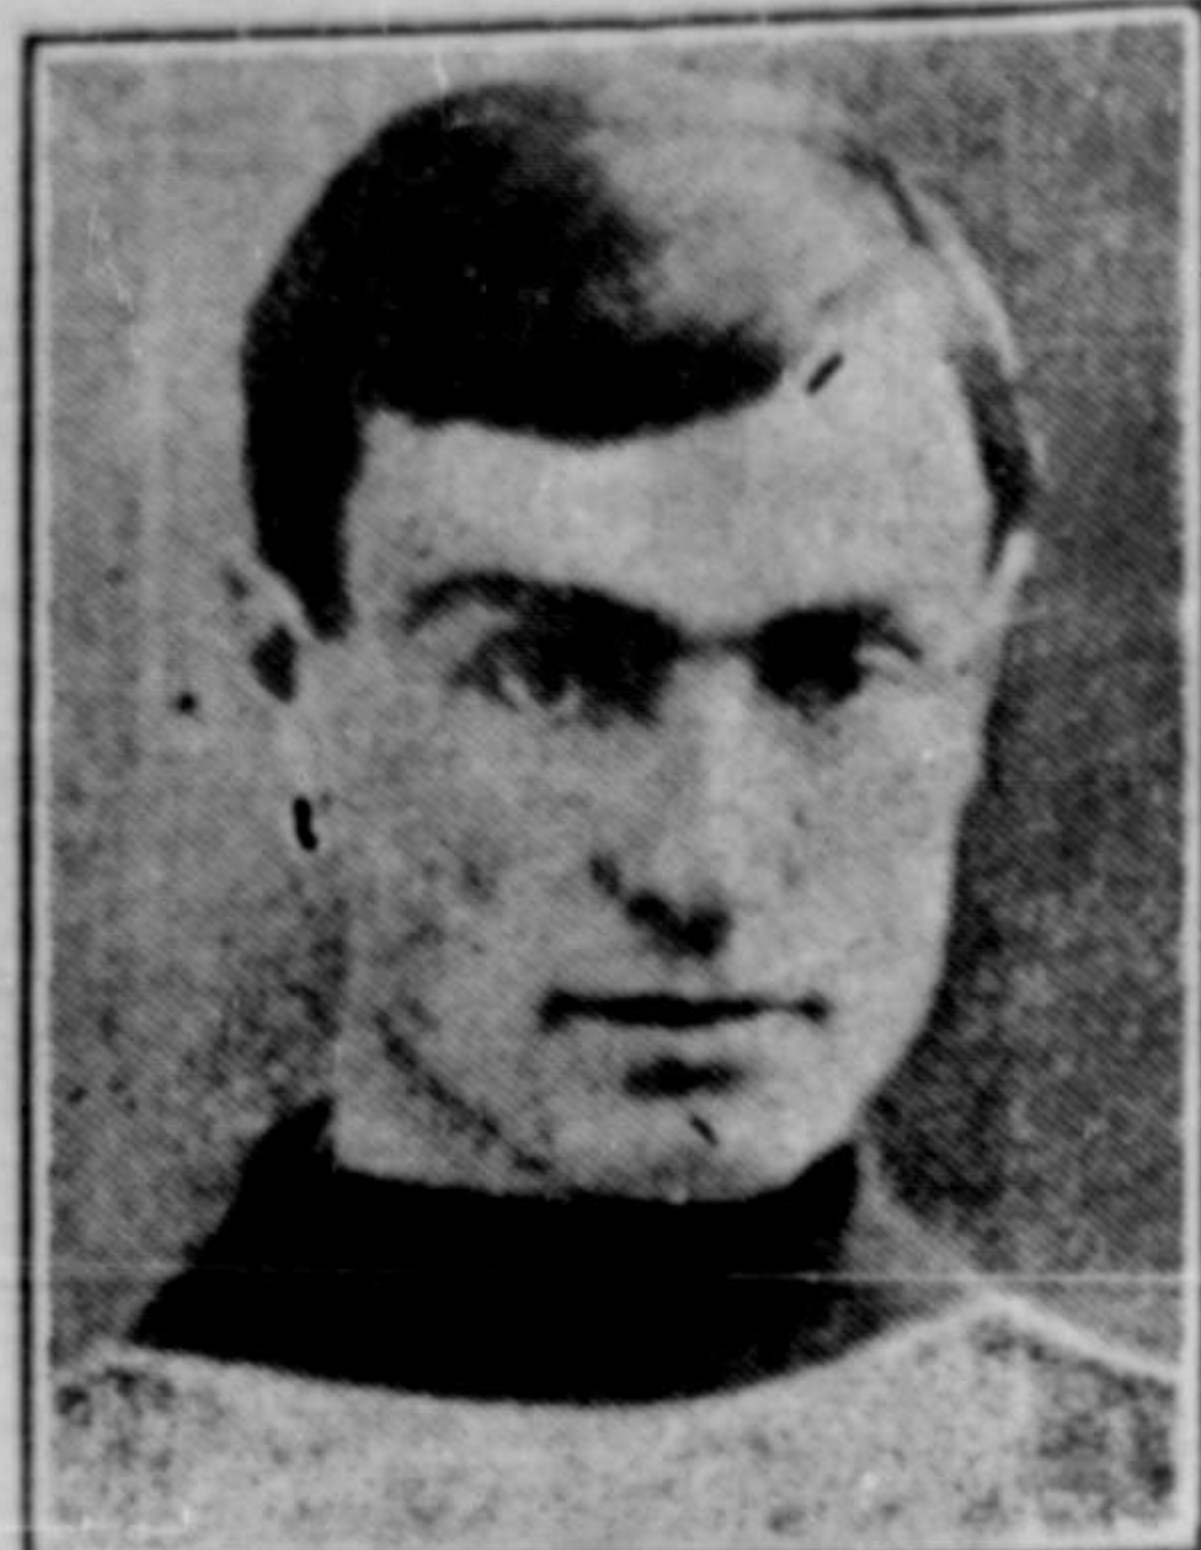

How it makes our pulse throb; how it makes our heart dance!

We outwardly thank him; we inwardly bless him—

The steady subscriber who pays in advance.

SOME REPORTEE.

A lodgekeeper employed at an Oldham mill, who is noted for his repartee, met his match the other morning during the following dialogue:

"Is there an opening this morning?" asked a smart-looking lad, as he peered through the window.

"Yes," replied the lodgekeeper, "there is an opening to everything. Look at summer; it opens with a spring; look at a river, it opens with a spring; look at a lady's purse, it opens with a spring."

"Aye," said the lad, "that is so. Time flies, but wine vaults, acid drops, sulphur springs, jam rolls, grass slopes, and music stands; Niagara falls, moonlight walks, sheep run, Kent hops, and holiday trips; scandal spreads, standard weights, india-rubber tires, the organ stops, and the world goes round."

The lodgekeeper put his head in at the window and remarked: "And marble busts!"—Tit-Bits.

GIGANTIC TASK OF ARMY SERVICE CORPS

When it is mentioned that 2,000 tons of goods—food and other necessities—are sent every day from the base depots to the firing line of the British army, some idea of the gigantic task of the Army Service Corps will be gathered.

This enormous weight of goods, says Mr. Harold Begbie, comes almost entirely from England, for we are not buying in France even so perishable a necessity as milk. Vast stores are brought from England and loaded into sheds at the base depots.

All day by motor-lorry and railway truck supplies for the troops are sent out from these base depots to stores as near as possible to the firing line. And just as reserves are accumulated in the docks, so reserves are accumulated near the front, since an accident to the railways might cut off the fighting soldiers' supplies.

One one occasion there was a delay on the railways of thirty-six hours, but not only did the soldier at the front get all his food and ammunition, but he did not even have to draw on the reserves I have mentioned; regimental stores were sufficient for his need. Everything goes by clockwork. There is no room for an accident.—Ex.

DECOY PERISCOPES USED BY GERMANS

Such things exist as decoy periscopes—short lengths of pipe held upright on a float and look- ing exactly like the real periscope. The submarine sets them adrift for you to find—sometimes scat- ters several of them.

When one is sighted you can- not stop to consider whether the little object dancing on the sea half a mile or so distant does or does not mean 250 pounds of high explosive coming straight at you. Maybe you will see an aeroplane maneuvering over it in such a way that carries conviction that it does. You don't dare to take any chances, and so you train all the guns at it.

Then the real submarine slinks up on the other side of the ship, and with the swift rush of its tor- pedo the latest of sea tragedies comes to an end.—Ex.

WITHOUT FIRING A SHOT.

Geneva, May 12.—The Tribune de Geneva publishes statistics to the effect that a total of 82,000 officers and men of the Austria-Hungarian army have surren- dered to the Russians and to the Ser- ans since the beginning of hos- tilities without firing a shot. The newspaper declares that all of these men were fully equipped.

HUNDRED AND FIFTY INFANTS PERISHED

London, May 12.—The Illustrated London Herald says there were on the Lusitania fifty babies who were less than 12 months old, and more than 100 others whose ages did not reach two years. Nearly all have been drowned.

The babies were the talk of the ship and everybody tried to look after them when the time came. There are numerous cases recorded where passengers and sailors stripped themselves of their own life belts to put around the little ones, but it was useless, and about 150 of the infants, it is calculated, died from shock and exposure.

One mother lost all her three young children, one 6, one 4 and the third, a baby in arms 6 months old. She herself lives. She held up the three of them in the water, all the time shrieking for help. When she was rescued by a boat party the two eldest children were dead. Their room was required in the boat, and the mother was brave enough to realize this.

"Give them to me," she cried. "Give them to me, my bonnie wee things. I will bury them. They are mine to bury, as they were mine to keep." With her hair streaming down her back and her form shaking with sorrow, she took hold of each little one from the rescuers and reverently placed it in the water again, and others in the boat wept with her as she murmured a little sobbing prayer to the "Great God above." But her cup of sorrow was not yet completed, for just as they were landing her third and only remaining child died in her arms.

SPLENDID PICTURES.

"The Man on the Box" at The Westholme Tonight.

The fourth of the series of five-reel Paramount features, which have scored such a signal success at The Westholme, will be shown there tonight under the title "The Man on the Box."

Max Fixman is the star and in his particular line of legitimate comedy he is undoubtedly without a peer.

"The Man on the Box" gives him unusual opportunities to display his talents to the very best advantage and he certainly makes the most of them. First, as a soldier in the far West, and then as a tourist traveling for health and recreation he has a most interesting part in this play and there are many bits of quaint humor that keep the audience good natured, while in some of the more serious parts they are strongly moved by his excellent dramatic work. The story is entirely original and different in every respect from anything that has been heretofore shown and is replete with surprises and unusual situations.

Follow The King

As head of the Church of England in British Columbia I earnestly appeal to all our Church members to follow the noble example set by our King.

Many are willing to do so but feel the need of something to make their decision definite. To such I would recommend the signing of the following pledge:

I promise, by God's help, to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage while the War lasts.
