NAVAL RECRUITING COMMITTEE FORMED

Mayor McCaffery presided over a fairly representative gathering of citizens in the city hall last evening when Lieut. Chorley and Lieut. Julien, of the Royal Navy placed the new recruiting scheme before the meeting. In introducing the officers, Mayor McCaffery referred shortly to the splendid work accomplished by the navy.

Lieut. Chorley explained that Canada had, for the first time in history, been invited to send men to the Royal Navy. Arrangements have been made whereby the Canadian recruits shall receive $1.10 per day, the same pay as our soldiers receive. The usual pay of 30 cents per day will be made aboard ship and the balance disposed of as the sailors direct. Lieut. Chorley explained that 5,000 men have been asked for and that 2,000 of these are required by Christmas and the balance at the rate of 300 to 400 monthly. He called for the assistance of all citizens in recruiting for Canada's volunteer navy. He explained briefly how much the navy had done and is doing by way of conveying Canadian troops across to Europe; enabling the Allied peoples to get supplies of wheat; in protecting the routes to France and the other countries where there is fighting and in conveying supply ships to these points. The navy had done great things for Canada and the Empire and he believed that Canadians would show the same readiness to join this branch of the service as they had done in joining the army. While the army had done wonders, it was the navy alone which held back the enemy while that army was being built up.

Captain Luxmore said that he had met several Canadians in the naval service during the war, and he felt that the navy needed more men of the same stamp. They had displayed an energy and ability of a very high standard. After the last occasion on which Britain had been challenged on the seas, we had a hundred years of peace, and he hoped that the same would follow this war.

Dr. Darling said that he felt that it was the duty of Canada not only to support the navy in dollars but in ships and in men to man the ships. The ships were of no use without the men.

Judge Young delivered a stirring speech in which he outlined what had been done in recruiting for the army. There was a feeling that Prince Rupert had done its full share and that if many more men were taken, aliens would fill their places here. He said that they would see to it that they were not filled by alien enemies. The one thing of importance was to win the war, and he believed that when the war is over, the other matters would right themselves. Meantime, Prince Rupert and Canada must give all that could be given to the army; the navy and the aviation forces. He outlined the part played by the navy in the early days of the war and in the later stages when it assured the army of safe transport of men and munitions.

T. D. Pattullo said that those

SUDDEN DEATH OF RUPERT OLD TIMER

John O'Brien, one of the best known and most popular of Prince Rupert's old timers, died very suddenly at North Portal, Sask., on November 7th. "Jack" was a carpenter and contractor in this city for several years, coming to the district in the early days of railway construction. He took a prominent part in the affairs of the Trades and Labor Council. He leaves a wife and five children. The deepest sympathy of the citizens of Prince Rupert will go out to the sorrowing widow and her little ones.

MANY MOVIE STARS AT WESTHOLME TONIGHT

There is a great array of stars at the Westholme tonight, with Hobart Bosworth and Jane Novak in the five-act Paramount production, "The Iron Hand," and Francis Ford, Grace Cunard and Eddie Polo in "Peg O' The Ring." This fifth episode of this great serial is one of the most thrilling yet, and contains a most vivid picture of a circus fire.

"Pasquale," which attracted so much attention at the Westholme on Monday night, will be produced at the Majestic Theatre tonight only. There is a whole reel of most realistic warfare in this big feature.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN THE BULKLEY LAND CASE

Mr. Justice Morrison reserved judgment yesterday afternoon in the case of Gibb v. Ellis, a dispute over the sale of land at Decker Lake.

Claude P. Ellis, the defendant, testified that Gibb came to his office in Winnipeg with a view to buying land in the Bulkley Valley near a friend of his called Lovatt. Ellis denied that he made any representations whatever regarding the land. Witness had 65,000 acres for sale in the valley but Gibb did not want any of that land but wanted to be near Lovatt.

Ellis stated that he had to purchase the land specially to meet the requirements of Gibb. He had never seen the land. Ellis always believed that the land was in the Bulkley Valley.

James A. Hodder testified to having located the land at the southeast end of Decker Lake. He visited the land in April and it was dry. It was partly delta land. He considered it to be in the Bulkley district.

R. A. Grant testified to the building of a dam at this point which caused the delta land to be flooded. Later an Indian blew out part of the dam, reducing the height of the water.

T. B. Shoebottom, for the defendant, submitted that there had been no misrepresentation and that Gibb wanted to be near his friend Lovatt and that Gibb only wanted to go back on his bargain when he discovered that he could pre-empt land more cheaply.

L. W. Patmore contended that the documentary evidence showed that the land was sold as Bulkley Valley land and that immediately plaintiff wanted his money refunded, defendant described the land as on Burns Lake. He submitted that the land was simply a spruce swamp and not farming land.

COYLE VS. McNEIL CASE HEARD THIS MORNING

The case of J. L. Coyle v. J. J. McNeil was heard in the Supreme Court this forenoon. The action arises out of the sale of a newspaper plant at Aldermere by the sheriff. Coyle owned the plant and the sale came about because of a judgment being secured against it by one of his employees.

Coyle went to McNeil and asked him to buy the plant for him. He gave his ranch papers as security. McNeil said he did not want a newspaper plant but ultimately bought it in for $362.

Coyle contends that there was a press in the plant which did not come under the judgment and that McNeil sold this press for $275 to McDougall & Grimes, of Endako. Coyle contends that, when he sought to move the plant to Smithers, McNeil held up the plant at Telkwa. Coyle contends that the $275 should have gone to pay part of what he owed McNeil. He also makes claim that defendant took certain goods from plaintiff's house. The total claim is for $12,599.

Witness contended that he had suffered great loss of business and had been forced to make an assignment.

Cross-examined by A. M. Manson, witness was asked as to his indebtedness to McNeil, in regard to supplies from his store and also as regarded the securing of the crown grant on plaintiff's ranch. Plaintiff was still under cross-examination when the court adjourned for lunch.

RESPONSIBILITY HAS NO TERRORS FOR LAURIER

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—Speaking at a dinner held tonight at the Chateau Laurier, in connection with a convention of Eastern Ontario Liberals, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that it had always been his aim and endeavor to unite the different races in Canada. He hoped that it could at least be said in the future that he had opened the way for a united Canada. On the policy of a united Canada, the Liberals won in 1896 and for fifteen years governed the country in a way which would be long remembered.

Foster Liberal Principles.

Defeat came in 1911 by a coalition of antagonistic elements which, although victorious, will prove to be the undoing of the Conservative party. The object of the convention, he said, was to foster Liberal principles and policies which are essential to the welfare of the country.

Referring to the war, Sir Wilfrid said that Liberals had considered it to be their duty to assist in the prosecution of the war. It is still their duty to assist in that great object.

Support War Measures.

War measures introduced by the government had been given loyal support. There had been opposition only when the proposals of the government could not be reasonably supported. He instanced the increase of the duty on British goods, a policy which he said, was both an error and a crime. This action was contributing to the soaring prices of commodities. The government might be compelled to revise their policy in this respect.

Reckless Extravagance.

If they did not, it would be so much the worse for the government and the country. Sir Wilfrid justified the attitude of the Liberals in insisting on an enquiry into war contracts on the ground that there had been waste where the most rigid economy should have been exercised. The fuse enquiry showed that big profits had been made. One J. Wesley Allison had been able to give largess which kings and emperors had seldom dreamed of. It was not often that a simple lady typewriter could be given a tip of $100,000.

Quarrels in Cabinet.

Touching on the Borden-Hughes correspondence, Sir Wilfrid said that it showed that from the start there had been jarring disputations and quarrels in the government. It showed that, not at any time had there been a firm hand at the helm. Under such circumstances it was folly for the Canadian people to expect efficiency.

Not Properly Armed.

There had been complaints from the front of lack of equipment and that Canadians had died because they were not properly (Continued on Page Two)

THE COMMISSIONS

The Victoria Times has the following comments to make on the very pointed letter which Sir Sam Hughes sent to Premier Borden, tendering his resignation as Minister of Militia:

In his letter of November 1st to Sir Robert Borden, the reply to which was a request for his resignation, Sir Sam Hughes wrote: "Permit me to draw your attention to every commission that has been formed. They look beautiful on paper, but few, if any, have been anything like perfect in practice. The Hospital Commission, the Pensions Board and the National Service Commission all seemed lovely when they set out, but everyone concerned with them knows of the absurdities they contained."

Canada knows about the absurdities of the National Service Board from which Sir Thomas Tait was forced to resign in disgust. It is a political body composed of eleven Conservatives and one Liberal, who clearly was appointed under a misapprehension. But the country requires more information concerning the late minister's reflections on the Hospital Commission and Pensions Board. What were the absurdities in their cases? Are they there still? These are two vitally important bodies. They have to do with the treatment and repair of our battered soldiers, for their sacrifices and the maintenance of their dependents. Sir Sam Hughes should have amplified his statement affecting those boards. Certainly he will have to do so when parliament meets.

Sir Sam Hughes' remark about the agitation against the Prime Minister in opposition days refers to the revolt in the party parliamentary ranks five or six years ago. This was organized by a group of Montreal Tories and reached such a serious stage that for a time two caucuses were being held by the opposition members. The harassed leader submitted his resignation and the names of Sir James Whitney and Sir Richard McBride were mentioned in connection with the post. Finally Mr. Borden's friends managed to get some of the recalcitrants into line and a petition was presented to the leader requesting him to withdraw his resignation. Certain British Columbia members will recall the incident. They refused to sign the petition.

Sir Sam Hughes refers to a rumor that the Prime Minister contemplated retiring to the Supreme Court bench, "handing over the premiership to another under whom it is well known I would not serve." To whom did the minister refer? Mr. Rogers? Probably; we know that the Minister of Public Works has frequently been acting-premier of late. It is unnecessary to say that the selection of Mr. Rogers as Prime Minister would be a menace to the state.

Our late war minister says that in the midst of the war it took four months to get the cabinet to authorize the purchase of trucks for the Second Canadian Division at wholesale prices instead of allowing large commissions to local agents who would not have handled the order at all. The Rogers wing of the cabinet must have been exceedingly strong. The war could wait. Let the boys have their commissions.

armed. The correspondence between Sir Robert and his ex-minister proved to be justification of these charges.

It was plain that the confidence of the opposition had been misplaced.

Sir Wilfrid said that Sir Thomas Tait, chairman of the national service commission, had been compelled to resign because of this jarring and discord. On the very day that Sir Thomas resigned Sir Robert Borden had coolly and gladly asked him to take part. To have accepted, Sir Wilfrid declared, would have been to condone the existing condition of things.

Sir Wilfrid said there was no truth in the charges that he had not done his duty in regard to recruiting. He had done his duty in the past and would continue to do it in the future. The only thing that really mattered, he said was the winning of the war. That was more important than the triumph of any political party.

Turning to the nickel question Sir Wilfrid said that the government should take steps to make it absolutely certain that Canadian nickel is not finding its way into Germany.

It had been announced, Sir Wilfrid said, by Hon. A. E. Kemp and by Hon. Arthur Meighen that parliament is to be asked for an extension of time and that in the event of a refusal the responsibility would be placed on the Liberal party and himself.

"I am not afraid of responsibility," said the Liberal leader. "I have taken it upon many occasions but always having in view the welfare of Canada. The question of responsibility has no terrors for me, but we shall await the proposals of the government; we shall see 'the arguments' they put forth and then we will be equal to the responsibility."

At the afternoon session, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"That this convention of representative Liberals of Eastern Ontario, takes this earliest opportunity of placing upon record its unswerving loyalty to the King and Empire; and pledging ourselves to assist in the continuing and vigorous prosecution of the present war to ultimate success, and at the same time to record our resentment at the reported remarks of certain Conservative politicians impugning the loyalty of the great Liberal party; which remarks we consider as entirely unjustified and an insult to the thousands of true Liberals who today mourn their sons and brothers who have given their lives at the front, as proof of their loyalty and love of the British Empire and that this convention expresses its condolence and heartfelt sympathy with all Canadians who have lost sons and relatives at the front."

The foregoing resolution has reference to alleged utterances of Mr. McNaught, M. L. A., and Mr. McBrien, of Toronto.

who had spoken had shown very clearly the circumstances in which the people of Canada found themselves. He felt certain that citizens would assist in every way possible to carry out the recruiting scheme outlined. He promised his heartiest support.

Rev. Canon Rix said that the war would have been fought out and lost but for the navy. We have our liberty and our privileges because of the fact that the navy was ready. He felt that there would be no difficulty in getting the 5,000 men asked for.

Lieut. Julien then explained the methods of the committees, which are centralised in Vancouver for British Columbia. He asked the citizens to appoint a committee, which would appoint a delegate to headquarters. He said that he would aid that committee to the best of his ability and that they had only to make their wishes known to have them attended to. He felt that if 25 men from Prince Rupert were transferred to the North Sea they would form the nucleus of a navy here. They would imbibe the spirit of the navy as our soldiers had done the spirit of the trenches.

M. J. Hobin, seconded by T. D. Pattullo, moved that the committee consist of Judge Young, J. H. McMullin, Canon Rix, Fred Peters and L. M. de Gex. This carried unanimously.

Since shortly after the German invasion, the Belgians have depended for food entirely on the "Commission for Relief in Belgium". Backed by the so generously contributed in the British Empire and the United States, the neutral Belgian Relief Commission has imported enough wheat, flour and other foods to feed the whole nation so far. The great majority of the 7,000,000 Belgians left in the country have been able to pay for their daily allowance of bread—but a steadily growing number have no money left.

Unless we are willing to let these hundreds of thousands of women, children and old men starve, they must be fed at the expense of the Belgian Relief Fund. To make this possible someone must contribute nearly $3,000,000 a month—every month—all this winter!

A Distinctive Reason

What is the chief reason for the superiority of Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder?

There are several good reasons, but there is one which distinguishes Dr. Price's from other baking powders.

This reason, which every woman should know, is that Dr. Price's Baking Powder is made from Cream of Tartar, which comes from grapes. This means a healthful fruit origin. It means natural food as distinguished from mineral substitutes used in cheaper baking powders.

ATTENTION VOTERS

Persons who hold lots under agreements, or assignment of agreement, must make a declaration giving particulars of their title, before the last day of November. Any person neglecting to take such declaration will not be entered on the voters' list.

It is impossible for me to ascertain the names of agreement holders unless they come in personally.

It will greatly facilitate matters if persons wishing to make declaration bring their agreements, so that I may inspect them and thus prevent errors.

Reference to old voters' lists satisfies me that only a small proportion of agreement holders have registered in past years. This, I believe, has happened because people wrongly think their names will be inserted without any action on their part. I therefore call special attention to the necessity of agreement holders making declarations.

FRED PETERS, City Clerk.

THOUSANDS OF TONS OF RUBBER REQUIRED

It is estimated that the crude rubber used by manufacturers of various rubber products will amount to 202,000 tons this year, of which the United States will use one-half. This appears strange when it is considered that while the States will use half Great Britain practically controls the entire rubber growth of the world. All this was brought about by the plantations established in Ceylon, Sumatra, the Malay States and Java under the direction and financing of the British government.

It is fortunate for Canadians, and for the world, that it is Britain, rather than a private corporation, that controls this immense output, for in the face of big war orders and the upward trend of prices on all staple products, England has gradually lowered the price of crude rubber from $3 a pound in 1910 and $1.25 just before the war, to 67 cents a pound today.

This means one thing—the substitution of rubber in every instance possible for the leather that is rapidly reaching a price that puts it within the reach of only the affluent. In fact there is a strong movement on foot now to use rubber to a larger extent in footwear this winter than ever before. Fabrics and chemicals as well as the labor used in making rubbers and overshoes have increased slightly, but the lowering of the rubber price has kept things pretty well balanced. This movement has been fostered by the fact that nothing is so ruinous to leather as water—particularly snow water—and the expensive leather must be protected if one is to have any shoes to wear.
