GET TOGETHER

Space forbids a lengthy report of the meeting of the Prince Rupert Municipal Movement, held last evening and presided over by W. J. McCutcheon. The general theme of the speeches was all towards a greater unity in municipal affairs, with a combined working of all citizens in helping the Board of Trade, the city council and all public bodies to promote the general welfare of the city. It was a real "get together" meeting.

ROUSING SPEECHES AT RECRUITING MEETING

The recruiting meeting in the Empress Theatre last evening was something which no one should have missed, but, unfortunately, the audience was largely composed of ladies, who are already doing all they can. There was a distinct lack of young men in the audience, which is greatly to be regretted, as it is impossible to reproduce Col. Guthrie's address in cold type. The Daily News, at the time the Kilties' officers left Halifax for the coast on this tour, raised the question of the enormous cost of such recruiting. After hearing Colonel Guthrie, we are of the opinion that the sending of such a speaker throughout Canada on recruiting work is well worth any expense.

On the platform, Rev. Dr. Grant had with him, besides Col. Guthrie and his staff, Lieut. Wood, J. H. McMullin, Judge Young, Mayor McCaffery, Rev. W. E. Collison, and S. D. Macdonald.

In opening the meeting, Dr. Grant described the 236th as a Scotch-Canadian battalion, and went on to deal with the patriotism of the Scottish race. He said that though most of the Highlanders supported the Stuarts to the last, they were now just as loyal to the dynasty which succeeded them. He quoted figures to show that the large proportion of Scottish emigrants remained under the flag and that when the call to arms came, the Scots were there in greater proportion to their population than any other race, though the Irish, English and Welsh did their share as well.

After describing the magnificent work done by the Canadians at Ypres, Givenchy and Festubert, Dr. Grant made a strong appeal for recruits. He said in conclusion, "The place to defend Canada is not over here, but on the battle line of France."

SIR WILFRID LAURIER MAKES STRONG APPEAL

Quebec, Dec. 8.—In a strongly patriotic address delivered this afternoon to thousands of his Quebec constituents Sir Wilfrid Laurier urged upon Canadians, and especially French-Canadians, their duty in the crisis which has been reached in the war. He urged them to enlist in the following terms: "I am here to say that I favor recruiting down here—the system of voluntary enlistment. We have no conscription here and will have none. It is not to force that we want to appeal, but to sentiment, to your hearts and to your better feelings."

Referring to his forty years' representation of that constituency, Sir Wilfrid traced the fortune and the destinies of the Liberal party and the country during that period, concluding with the defeat of 1911, declaring they "had fallen with their heads high, and leaving a record against which nothing could be said." He continued, "You all know that the main issue in the province of Quebec in the last election was not reciprocity, but the naval question, and the cries of our adversaries were all about the navy". Sir Wilfrid argued that the war had proven the justification of the Liberal naval policy.

Referring to the growth of the Dominion, and particularly to the Pacific coast, Sir Wilfrid said, "We have to provide for the defense of these cities and our coasts, for when England is at war, Canada is at war. The war has given us a brutal confirmation of this, both on the Atlantic and Pacific. You heard talk of the (continued on Page Four.)

GERMAN PEACE OFFER FINDS LITTLE FAVOR

Westminster Gazette Urges Careful Consideration—Austrian Cabinet Resigns—German Losses.

(Special to The Daily News.)
London, Dec. 14.—The German peace proposals are being regarded with little favor, but there is some indication that the first impulse of irritation may be succeeded by a more Conservative view. The Westminster Gazette, one of the most influential London papers, urges a careful consideration of Germany's proposals. It says that the situation calls for a high degree of British statesmanship and the laying down of a carefully planned constructive policy.

Austrian Cabinet Resigns.

The Austrian cabinet has resigned and the Emperor has asked Alexander Spitzmueller, former Minister of Commerce, to form a new cabinet.

German Casualties.

German casualties for the month of November total one hundred and sixty-six thousand. The total German losses since the beginning of the war amount to four millions. This does not include losses sustained in German colonies.

MAJOR H. L. BODWELL AWARDED THE D. S. O.

Word has reached town from England that Major H. L. Bodwell formerly of the G. T. P. terminal engineering staff at Prince Rupert, has been awarded the D. S. O. Major Bodwell was a resident of this city for several years when the town was in the making and his many friends will be delighted to learn that he has so distinguished himself on the field of battle.

CONSCRIPTION DEBATE

There was a stirring debate on the question of conscription at the Fortnightly Club last evening, the affirmative being taken by Mr. Patmore and Mr. Hunter, and the negative by Mr. Naden and Mr. Carpenter. Each of the speakers did splendidly, the various points being brought out clearly. An audience vote decided in favor of the affirmative.

For every two dollars cash purchase you have a chance for three prizes. See Tite's window display.

PEACE TALK

The Teutonic offer of peace is very significant, but not necessarily a sign of an approaching break-up of Germany's military strength. The Kaiser and his ministers have ever shown themselves to be expert politicians in an international sense, and they probably figured that the time was ripe for a political move. The capturing of Bucharest gave them a momentary appearance of strength, while the change of premier in Russia; the political upheaval in Britain, and the proposed changes in France no doubt presented to the German diplomats the possibilities of division in the ranks of the people of the Allied countries. The promise of much more stringent war measures by Premier Lloyd George not only warned Germany of a general speeding up in Britain, but carried to the German mind the idea that the British people might already be sick and tired of the war, and that the Lloyd George proposals might prove to be the last straw which might cause a break in the national determination, and a growing desire for peace on the part of many thousands of the British people. If this was the line of Teutonic reasoning behind the peace offer, it only once more shows how little Germany understands the British temperament.

That Germany is tired of the war is certain. Germany set out in August, 1914, to gain world dominance by force of arms; today she is fighting for peace. It is very significant to note the remarks of the leading German newspapers regarding the successes in Rumania. They are not hailed as victories which will bring a great final victory. They are hailed as a step towards peace, and a shortening of the war. A drawn struggle is now the most that Germany is hoping for. Had the Crown Prince captured Verdun, peace offers would have followed. The capture of the best part of Rumania has now given them the opportunity, and their great hope is that the British, French, Russian, Italian, Belgian and Serbian people are as heartily sick of the war as the German people are.

The Allied peoples are sick of the war. They have been sick of war from the beginning, but they are not ready to make a sickly peace. The loss of Bucharest was not hailed by the Allied press as a shortening of the war, but as a spur to greater effort. It was not looked upon as a sign that they must concede that they are unable to rout German militarism but simply as a warning of the greatness of the task which still lies before them. Never have the Allies been so thoroughly organized; never have their peoples been so determined to see this thing through to the bitter end; never has there been less thought of a cessation of hostilities in the minds of the Allies. They realize fully that a peace now would be no peace, but simply an armistice. The Allies are not fighting the Germans so much as they are fighting war and militarism. What they are fighting is the Prussian curse which has eaten into the very heart of Germany. A peace which leaves Germany with that curse in her midst will be no peace. More tragic than the beginning of the war would be a cessation of hostilities at this time. Such a peace would mean that Belgium has suffered in vain; that rivers of blood have flowed into a sea of failure; that millions of treasure have been frittered away for nothing, and that Prussian militarism is a huge, brutal thing which cannot be conquered and must be allowed to live. It lives by war, and its food must be taken from it.

MAGIC READ THE LABEL

Germany began the war forty years ago, and she cannot end it in a day, simply because she realizes that she has failed. The beginning of this great world's tragedy lies with Germany; the end lies with the Allies. When they have accomplished their end, the war will cease. Until then, all talk of peace by Berlin must be taken as the cry of a criminal who seeks to escape from justice, and the price which he must pay for his crime.

Tacoma Retail Grocers' Association finds that the housewife is partly to blame for the high cost of living. She demands numerous and late deliveries and a service all round which means largely increased expense for the grocer. Grocers are sometimes compelled to spend 10 cents in delivering a loaf of bread which costs them 8 cents and sells at 10 cents. Buying in large quantities was suggested as a means of reducing costs.

Good Shoes Need Protection From Wet, Like Good Clothes!

High Price of Shoes, and Low Price of Rubbers and Overshoes, Spreading This Commonsense View

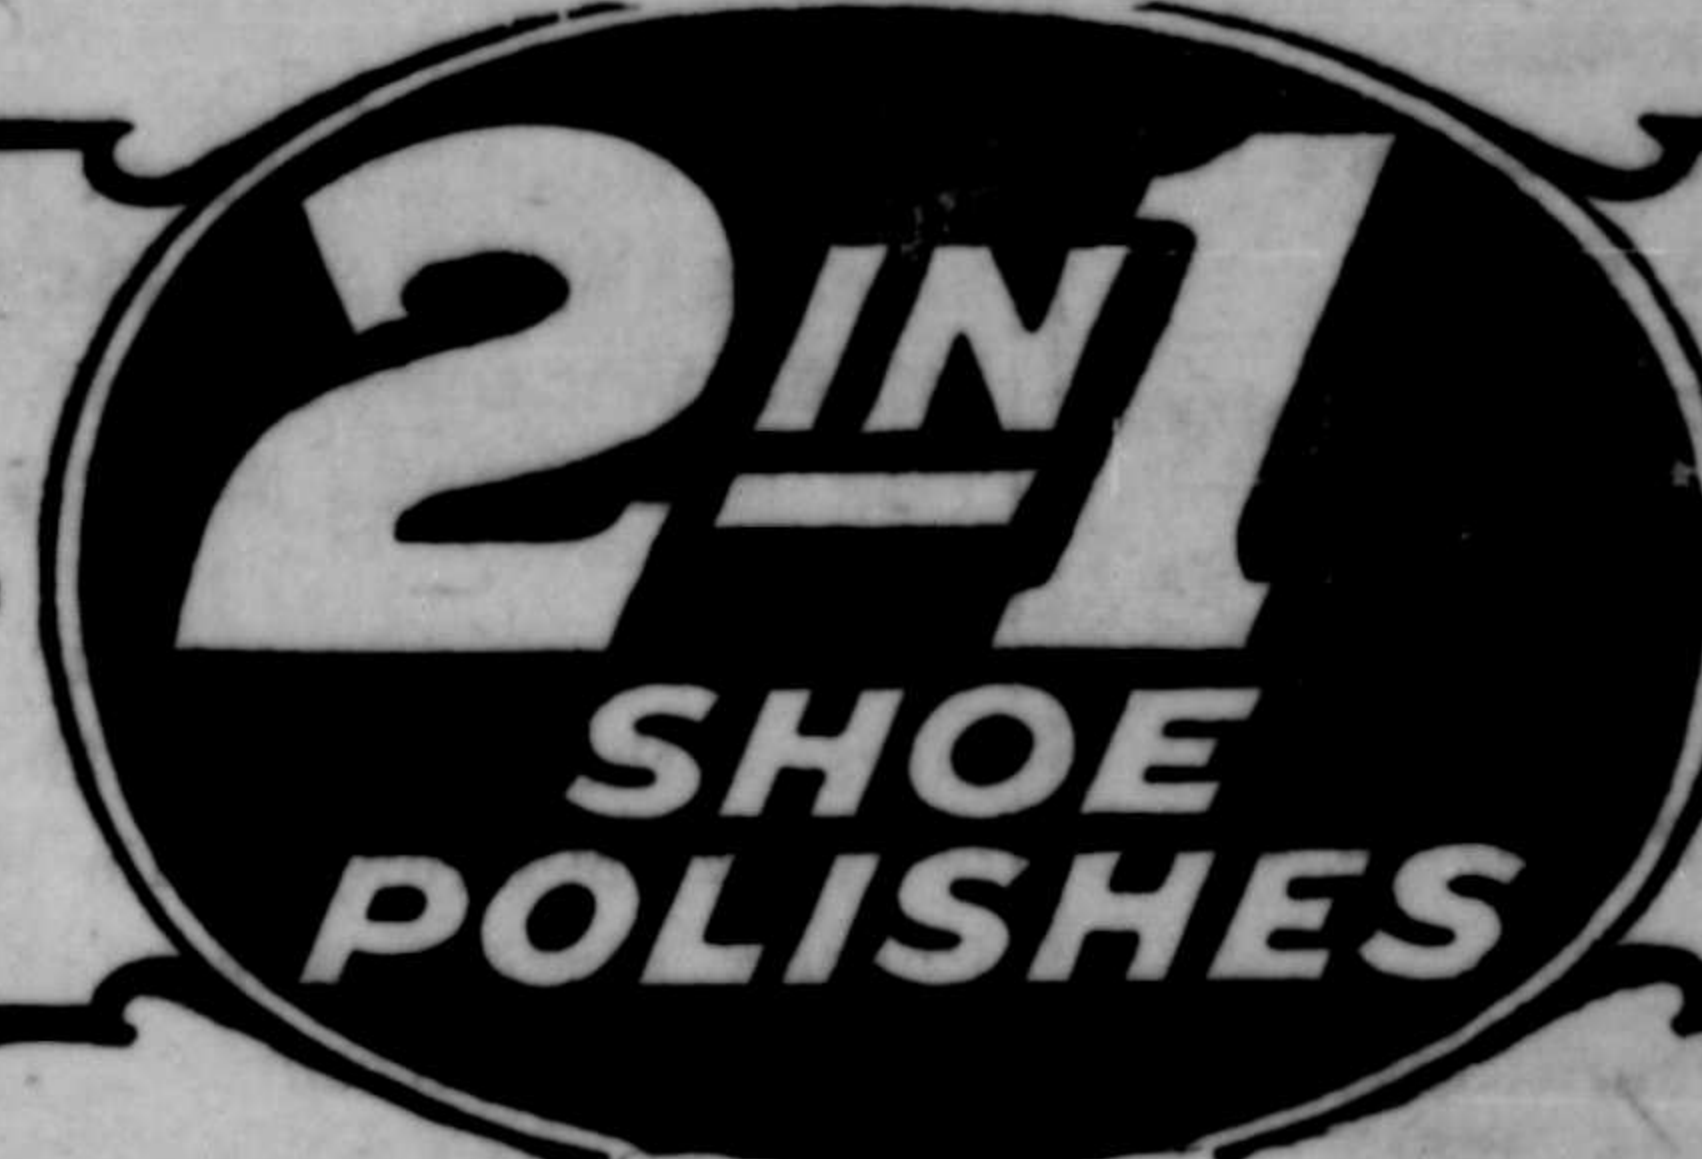

Many a man, and woman, too, who would never think of letting a good suit get damp, will thoughtlessly splash through slush and water with an expensive pair of shoes, caring little so long as the feet do not get too wet.

This treatment takes it out of shoes just as much as it would out of clothes, for none but the heaviest waterproofed leather, unsuitable for general wear, can stand repeated wetting and give more than half the service it should. In these days, with shoes costing two to five dollars a pair more than before the war, no one who is at all in sympathy with the Empire-wide movement for thrift will deliberately continue such waste.

Fortunately, indeed, rubber has not followed the upward trend of almost every other necessity of life, but in the raw state is even cheaper than before the war. So, though labor, fabrics and chemicals cost more, and a war tax is paid on crude rubber as well as on the other materials, rubbers and overshoes, except in a few cases, have not advanced in price. Thus a pair of rubbers, costing perhaps one-fifth as much as your shoes, will practically double their service and save you repair bills. At the same time they will be protecting you from colds by keeping your feet really dry and comfortable in any weather.

The Poor Man's University

"JONES knows more about motor cars than any other man I know," said a man to his friend. "He has obtained his knowledge chiefly from motor car advertisements, and the catalogues and booklets circulated through them."

"All I know about photography," declared a well-known amateur, "I have learned from the men who advertise cameras, plates, papers and films."

Advertisements have been well called "The Poor Man's University," but other than poor men have been schooled thereby.

Much of what the average individual knows concerning personal and domestic hygiene, modern office methods, books and authors, electricity, precious stones, investments, and almost everything else, he has learned from advertisements.

Advertisements have stimulated our intelligence, added enormously to our knowledge, and given us aspirations which have raised us to higher levels of thinking and living. Advertising is indeed "The Poor Man's University."

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper. If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

less the men were forthcoming, the Allied armies at Saloniki would be driven into the sea and that Calais would yet be taken.

Col. Guthrie.

On rising to speak, Col. Guthrie was received with three ringing cheers and a tiger. He said that much had been said of what the men had done, but he wanted to tell them that the women in France and Flanders had done more. He said "There is a lady in this hall tonight who has done great work at the front, and I am going on strike until she is honored." Mrs. Godenrath was conducted to the platform amid cheers.

Col. Guthrie then told of how, after lying unconscious for seven days he woke up in hospital to find Ms. Godenrath nursing him back to life. It took six weeks of tireless work to get him fit enough to be sent home on a stretcher. He paid a "high tribute to the noble work which is being done by the women of Canada."

After paying fitting tribute to the work of the navy, which stood between Britain and defeat, he said he had listened to stories of Prince Rupert, morning, noon and night from Mr. Godenrath and he had now seen it. After the war, we might look for French, German and Belgian immigrants in large numbers as all who had come in contact with Mr. Godenrath had been told all about the wonders of Prince Rupert.

He called on all who did not care to join the army to call upon Sailor Burke, in whom he recognized a pugilist hero of his boyhood days.

After stating that the war today is a combat of science against science and big guns against big guns, he said that the only fair method of raising an army was by conscription. It had been said by some that this is Britain's war but he assured them that it was Canada's war and that, if Britain were beaten, it would be worse for Canada than for the old country. The men who refused to fight against Germany today, might be forced to fight for Germany in the future. He called on every man to rally round the old flag. "We must rally round it and see it planted by the hands of Haig at the gates of Berlin," said the colonel in a burst of impassioned oratory which brought forth great cheers.

He said that Lloyd George was the right man to take hold of things and that the muzzle would now be torn from the navy and there would be something doing both on sea and land. (Cheers). He then went on to describe in graphic terms the terrible three days and nights on the Ypres salient when the Canadians saved the situation. He told of deeds of heroism done by Major Geggie, Major Sturdee and Lieut. Seely. He drew a vivid and ghastly picture of the first German gas attack, when the Turcos were routed and the Canadians came to the rescue. When they were all but beaten, the message came, "The eyes of the Empire are on you, Canadians. Calais is at stake. Hang on," and to their everlasting glory they hung on with tears streaming down their seamed faces.

The colonel concluded a magnificent speech by calling upon every available man to join the Kilties, the Bantams, the Navy or any other unit of the service. "Seven thousand men are falling every month, and only four thousand are enlisting," he said. "Your comrades call you to help them. The silent cry that comes from the bottom of the Atlantic calls you, and the shriek of the outraged women of Belgium and France demands that you go over to help drive back the Hun," declared Col. Guthrie feelingly.

Rainbow, and how British Columbia immediately bought submarines, which action was authorized by Ottawa immediately, so that its cities could be protected."

Continuing, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said, "If I recall these facts it is not for the pleasure of justifying our policy, or for the purpose of party politics, I am not here to talk politics, but with a higher thought."

"Some people say that we should defend only our own territory. Why should our children go to fight for England? To fight for England. What an injustice! For whom is England waging war today? It was not England which was invaded in August, 1914. It was not England that Germany declared war on August 1st, but it was England that on August 4th declared war on Germany to save Belgium, to save France, and against the German Empire." (Cheers).

At the conclusion of a stirring appeal to every young Canadian to do his share in the fight for justice and liberty, Sir Wilfrid was presented with a floral crown by Martin Madden, member of the legislature for West Quebec.

Lieutenant Chamel, a returned French officer, made an appeal for all young men present to join the ranks of a French-Canadian battalion.

During the evening patriotic airs were rendered by W. V. Davies and J. H. McMillan. While Mr. McMillan, accompanied by Mrs. McMillan, gave violin solos. The platform was draped with Union Jacks, with the Scottish Standard at the wings, and the King in Highland costume in the centre. It was a most impressive gathering, closing with "God Save the King."

ENJOYABLE DANCE

The dance given by the Eagles, in the K. of P. Hall last evening in aid of the sister of a soldier who had given his life for his country, was a great success. There was a large attendance and the Westholme orchestra gave of its best. Miss Cleff sang "Good Bye, Good Luck, God Bless You," in excellent style.

There will be no board of Trade luncheon this month.
