THE SINGLE TAX AND THE ASSESSMENT

A workingman reader of the News has written to inquire what Twelve Tables is the meaning of the term single tax. The occasion is a timely one to give more than a paragraphic explanation. At the present moment the question of whether the city revenues are to be raised by a single tax or not is of unusual importance.

A city requires revenue to pay public officers, and carry out public works. It raises these revenues almost entirely by taxation. Even license fees for the privilege of running liquor bars, theatres, circus and moving picture shows are an indirect way of taxing the citizens. The question of the best and fairest way of raising revenue by taxation is one of the most important considerations for a members of a city or town council to decide.

The two chief means of raising revenue have been the taxation of privately owned lands and privately owned improvements on the land. The improvements are usually houses and shops and other kinds of buildings. At a superficial glance it seemed the fairest and most equitable form of civic taxation, taxing every man according to his wealth.

But it has been observed by modern observers, that this system did not always work out either fairly or in the best interests of the city. Improvements on land never grow in value. They deteriorate from the moment of their completion. Land is different. Within the city limits, it almost invariably keeps on growing in value. Speculators who were shrewd enough, realised that so long as their neighbors were at work improving their lands by erecting buildings, it paid them better to keep their own property idle, until the other men had built up the neighborhood. The taxes on idle land being usually small, it was easy to hold their land idle.

The result was that the men who improved the district had to pay nearly all the taxes and not only a small benefit; the man who retarded the progress of the district by keeping his land idle, paid very small taxes, and reaped a bigger benefit than his neighbors. It did The New Knox Hotel is run on the European not work out fairly.

One rich family, who owned a block in the heart of the city of FIRST AVENUE. PRINCE RUPERT Liverpool, by keeping it idle for nearly sixty years, saw it grow in value from twelve pounds to over two hundred thousand pounds. The taxes on it were more than paid by the rents of the ugly hoardings ... Grand Hotel... which enclosed it. The tremendous increment was their reward for Spring Beds, clean White Sheets 25c keeping the block an eyesore for generations.

The single tax proposal is a proposal to abolish every other tax, and have one single tax on land. This tax would be so adjusted as to take as nearly as may be the whole of the economic rent—that is the higher price which one piece of land brings over another owing to its desirable site—sometimes styled "the unearned increment of land values."

By placing taxes equally on improved and unimproved lands several good results are achieved:

(1) It simplifies and economises the work of taxation.

(2) It makes land more available for industry, since it makes it more difficult for owners who do not wish to use the land themselves to keep it idle for larger future prices.

(3) It makes for stability by destroying in large degree speculative land values.

(4) It helps industry, by removing a repressive tax from the products of labor, and makes the tax a force compelling owners of idle land to place improvements on them. (5) It tends to equalise the distribution of riches, because it is usually the rich who own idle land. The poor man's lot usually has his cottage on it. Opponents of the single tax idea professed to fear that in any city in which it were put in force, it would at once cause a slump in real estate values, and drive investors away. But when it was adopted in Vancouver, real estate leaped in value. The benefits the single IN BOTH PRIVATE AND BUSINESS HOUSES tax brought to the community, reacted to develop the real estate

The first council of Prince Rupert accepted the philosophy of the single tax idea, and exempted improvements. Some of the present council announced themselves as favoring the single tax idea during the last election. While the Mayor has declined to express himself as to the council's policy this year, it is improbable that a reversion to the effete custom of penalising the men who improve the city and favoring those who retard its progress by keeping their lands unimproved would be thought of for one moment.

DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN

This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

THE VOICE

I heard the voice of the city Calling again and again; And into her arms there hastened Millions and millions of men.

And I heard the voice of old gar- ings and texture.

Of quiet woodland ways; few hearts there were that would heed them

The cities grow old and vanish, And their people faint and die,

In the rush of the busy day.

But the grasses are green forever, Forever blue the sky.
