Council-Manager Plan Proposed For Rupert

5 Civic Candidates To Probe System

Opposition Says 'Undemocratic'

By LARRY STANWOOD

Prince Rupert for the next two years is going to hear something at least of the council-manager plan of government from its next city council.

Five candidates of eight who are contesting the four aldermanic seats in Thursday's civic election told the Daily News today they will ask for an investigation of such a plan to be applied to Prince Rupert—if they are elected.

Of the five, three said they were "definitely in favor of it," and two said that they wanted to know more about it.

Two candidates said they were opposed to it, but admitted the plan could work. One candidate was not available for comment.

Those who said the council-manager plan should be investigated are Hugo Kraupner, Mrs. W. D. "Kay" Smith, Percy Downing, Bill Bremner and Ald. Ray McLean.

Mr. Kraupner, Mrs. Smith and Mr. Bremner said they will support a move to adopt such a plan for the city.

Mr. Kraupner said: "I will support such a move, but I also favor that a city manager plan should be thoroughly investigated, to see how it works in other cities."

PLAN IS ANSWER

"But on the face of it, I think it is the only solution to our civic government problem. A million-dollar business like our city is getting to be should have more efficient administration than at present. And I think the answer lies in council-manager plan."

Mr. Bremner said he had given "serious and considerable thought" to the plan.

"I definitely think that we should apply this system here."

"I feel that we are not getting the maximum efficiency from our present system of civic government."

The only woman candidate for alderman, Mrs. Smith, also approved the plan and favors a smaller council than the present eight-alderman system.

"To me it (council-manager plan) seems like a system which would provide more efficient management of civic affairs."

"I believe that such a huge business as running our city is getting to be, should have top administrative ability handling it."

"I also believe that a smaller council would provide keener interest in elections here and would do away with so much unnecessary talk that takes place at meetings."

WOULD INVESTIGATE

Ald. McLean, one of three aldermen seeking re-election, said, "I don't know very much about the council-manager system, but I assure you I'm willing to have it investigated for our city."

Mr. Downing, a newcomer to the civic field, is a pulp and sulphite worker at Columbia Cellulose Co. pulp mill. He said, referring to earlier Daily News articles on the plan:

"The system seems sound to me, providing we can get the right administrative ability for it. I think we should look into it."

OPPOSE IT

Both Alderman James Prusky and Darrow Gomez spoke against the plan when asked, "should a council-manager plan be investigated for Prince Rupert?"

"I don't think it would work, nor do I think it is democratic," said Ald. Prusky.

"I was in favor of it before I entered the council, but after a year of service as an alderman, I have turned against it."

"I am afraid such a system could develop into a combine in council and I think the mill rate would go up," said Ald. Prusky.

But he admitted that the system "could very well work" providing the right people served on the council and the right city manager was found.

Ald. Gomez said he did not know of any place where the system had worked, but said he had only one reason why he would oppose such a plan.

"And that is this: under such a plan with a smaller council, the administration could very well be one-sided. A group of three aldermen and a city manager could out-vote one man all the way."

The eighth candidate, Ray Gardiner, was not available for comment.

IN B.C.

In this province, Victoria and West Vancouver have adopted the council-manager plan of government. Thirty-five other cities in Canada, mostly in highly industrialized centres in the east, work on a similar basis.

The system first started in the United States in 1908 and has grown to where now 1,047 municipalities ranging in population from 500 to 500,000 are operating successfully under the plan.

Dam Overflow To Safeguard Fisheries

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Aluminum Company of Canada announced Friday the threat to the northern sockeye salmon run caused by the company's Kenney Dam on the Nechako River has been largely removed.

McNeely DuBose, company vice-president, said in an interview, a special dam has been built by Alcan at the outlet of Cheelatta Lake to meet requirements of the fishing industry.

The dam will catch the spring run-off and release enough water into the Nechako for salmon to run into Francois and other lakes in the area of Alcan's huge development. The company has spent $100,000 for an access road to the dam alone, said Mr. DuBose.

Meanwhile, Lands Minister Robert Sommers said Alcan's offer to guarantee removal of all "accessible merchantable" timber from the area to be flooded in Tweedsmuir Park was a "minor step."

He said the beauty of the lakes to be flooded would be marred by partly submerged stumps and the government is still left with the task of removing timber from the lake fringes.

REMOVE TIMBER

Mr. DuBose said there were about 10,000,000 board feet of merchantable timber in the flooding area—3,000,000 of which already has been removed. He said the company probably would bring out another 10,000,000 board feet at Whitesail Lake under guarantee.

Waiting For 'Ike'

Canadians Didn't Mind Korean Cold

IN KOREA (CP)—Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer in Korea, says although the temperature was nearly zero, Canadian troops "didn't mind too much" last Wednesday when they waited 8½ hours for President-elect Eisenhower.

"They put on a show that brought a letter of appreciation from the man who has seen many such shows in the last dozen years," he said in a dispatch.

"Newspaper men who watched the parade were critical of top brass arrangements that forced Canadians and other United Nations troops to spend most of a cold, raw day outside awaiting the arrival of the general.

"But the men themselves did not complain. They said they considered it an honor to be able to pay their respects to a man who had come to Korea to see for himself what could be done to end this bitter war."

Army Lists 2 More Killed

OTTAWA (CP)—The Korean casualty list Thursday included two men killed in action and five men wounded in action. The last list was issued Nov. 25.

All were members of the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, which went into the lines Nov. 19.

'Ike's' Ship Heads to Sea Through Storm

OFF GUAM (CP)—The battle-scarred heavy cruiser USS Helena, carrying President-elect Eisenhower home from a three-day tour of the Korean war theatre, was heading today toward a tropical storm of near typhoon proportions.

The Helena, veteran of duels with Red Korean shore batteries, is cutting through water toward tiny Wake Island.

There it is expected to pick up John Foster Dulles, Eisenhower's choice for secretary of state.

Eisenhower left Korea with a headful of impressions and a pocketful of notes on what to do about the war. His scheduled meeting with Dulles indicated an intensive review of the whole Far Eastern problem seemed in the works.

He said yesterday he would devote much time during the six-day cruise to Hawaii to studying the first great problem of his up-coming administration.

Enemy Planes Attack While 'Ike' Leaves

SEOUL (CP)—The U.S. Fifth Air Force reported today it repelled the "largest enemy night air attack of the Korean war" while President-elect Eisenhower was leaving Korea.

The air force said the allied radar in a three-hour period beginning at 7:10 p.m. Friday picked up a total of 11 "hostile aircraft" roaring towards Seoul.

Eisenhower's plane took to the air at 8:01 p.m. and the attack continued about two hours after that. A spokesman said the planes making the attack were small and propeller-driven.

"It is highly possible," he said, "that these little planes did not come from Manchuria or deep in North Korea. Planes of that type can be hidden under any haystack and their home base might have been in Korea near the spot where the attack took place."

RCMP Seek $600 Yearly Increase From B.C. Towns

All cities and municipalities in British Columbia policed by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have received a request from the federal force for an increase of $600 per man.

Present contracts call for $1,400 per man.

The increase would cost Prince Rupert more than $8,000 to maintain the city detachment, which under the present contract calls for a maximum force of 14 men.

The RCMP took over policing in this city Aug. 15, 1950, at the time the B.C. Provincial Police were absorbed under an agreement between the federal and provincial governments.

It is not known how many men are in the RCMP in B.C. but the increase would cost taxpayers in cities and municipalities affected many thousands of dollars.

Throughout Canada, strength of the force, including civilian clerks and reserves, totals about 4,000.

The RCMP have policed Saskatchewan since 1928 and in 1932 took over the provincial police forces in Alberta, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Just prior to absorbing the B.C. force, the duties of the Newfoundland Rangers and certain members of the Newfoundland constabulary were taken over by the RCMP.

At a recent date the force had 134 horses, 842 motor vehicles, four airplanes and 81 ships and boats.

Head of the Mounties in this province is Assistant Commissioner C. E. Rivett-Carnac, whose headquarters are in Victoria.

Previous to this he was employed by the Cold Storage plant for several years, then worked at the dry dock during the war.

His only close relative here is William Murray, a nephew.

When he did not show up for work yesterday at 4:30 p.m. as was his custom, friends investigated and found him dead in his bed.

Funeral will be arranged under the auspices of the Canadian Legion, BESL, 27.

B.C. Ridings To be Changed

VICTORIA (CP)—Redistribution of political ridings in British Columbia may take place next year.

Premier Bennett said in announcing the opening date of the 1953 sessions as Tuesday, Feb. 3, that he hopes it will be possible to present the redistribution bill to the 23rd Legislature.

'Sugar' Ray To Fight Rubber Match

NEW YORK (CP)—Sugar Ray Robinson's manager said today the champion will defend his middleweight title against England's Randy Turpin in London next June.

Manager George Gainford made the announcement of the planned bout after Bob Christenberry of the New York State Athletic Commission declared Robinson's title vacant in New York.

The commission later indicated that if Robinson really means to fight Turpin, he'll get back his title recognition.

At Boston, Sugar Ray said "win or lose" he will retire from boxing after defending his middleweight title against Turpin.

"I want to cross the ocean to fight Turpin once more and then call it quits," said Robinson, who will start in a night club show here next week. "The English people have been wonderful to me and I want to stage my rubber match with Turpin in their back yard."

BUSY SAWMILL

BIG RIVER, Sask. (CP)—The utilization mill here opened by the Saskatchewan government in June 1951, now has an annual output of up to 8,000,000 board feet of lumber. The mill, 90 miles northwest of Prince Albert, is in the heart of the lumbering industry.

Peace River Natural Gas Ready For Delivery in Year

SPOKANE (CP)—Canadian natural gas can be piped to U.S. cities in northwest states within a year if the Federal Power Commission gives the go-ahead signal next spring," George L. McMahon said Friday.

Vice-president of the West-coast Transmission Company, Mr. McMahon said his firm will show the FPC that it has twice the proven reserves necessary in northern B.C. to serve the initial market.

He said Westcoast could start immediately to build a pipeline from the Peace River fields and would have it completed to Portland, Oregon, by next Christmas if the FPC approves.

McMahon said proven Peace River reserves now total 3¼ trillion feet of gas. An estimated two trillion, 850 billion feet are needed for the northwest market, he said.

McMahon is here to address the Northwest Mining Association.

MINING DOWN

H. M. Wright, British Columbia mining engineer, said the drop in the price of base metals, complicated by a temporary shrinking of smelter capacity, has seriously curtailed production in B.C. base metal mines.

He said that 18 out of 51 plants in the province have shut down, are in the process of shutting down or have postponed opening. Thirty-one mills, or concentrators, are operating at present compared with 32 in 1951.

Wright said that early this year there were 39 mills operating in B.C. and that, if metal prices had held up, there would be about 47 plants operating now.

Mayor, Citizens Appeal For School Bylaw Support

Harold Whalen today called on electors to support the Port Edward school building election day next week.

Whalen said that the proposed school building is the "unanimous approval" of your mayor and aldermen.

In an interview, the mayor said that the rural area's school costs is based on the assessment value of the Rupert municipality, and industrial development expressed in our rural district share of school costs increased from 16.9 per cent to 33.19 in 1952.

Whalen means the district will have more than half of all future school costs.

Mrs. Peter Mark, president of the Parent-Teacher Council of Prince Rupert had this to say about a new Port Edward school:

"Poor natural lighting, lack of cloak rooms and all modern conveniences combine to make the present Port Edward school but an apology for an institute of education."

Mrs. Mark also pointed out the lack of playground space as a discouraging factor to pupils and teacher alike.

Mrs. Joy Davis, a ratepayer of Port Edward, said she "certainly will vote for the bylaw."

Seven years ago, she said, when she first came to Port Edward, school was held in one-room duplex with 16 pupils enrolled.

Today 85 children in grades one, two and three, are housed in a converted army barracks "which is draughty, poorly lighted and overcrowded."

"There are no grounds or playing space, inside or outside. Outdoor plumbing only is available. On wet days 85 children play in the tiny classrooms. On dry days they play on the road."

Meanwhile, 80 children are being sent daily to schools in Prince Rupert, said Mrs. Davis.

"With so many children crammed into such close quarters, social and health problems become enormously aggravated," believed Mrs. Davis.

The $167,960 bylaw, which will authorize the building of a new seven-room school in Port Edward if approved, calls for a city expenditure of $39,311 by the city and $44,669 by the district. Balance of the cost is borne by the province.

Prince Rupert electors vote on the bylaw next Thursday, along with voting on a referendum and eight candidates for aldermanic seats, four to be elected.

Rural ratepayers may also vote if they are in the city, for a special polling station will be set up for them in the Civic Centre.

Other polling stations will be at Port Edward, Port Essington, Port Simpson, Hunt's Inlet, Oona River, and Digby Island.

A Good Sign

PROMISE of action on timber clearance of the Tweedsmuir Park area about to be flooded is reassuring news to those who believe that the public and big industry are interdependent and can, for that reason, find a way to live together in harmony.

Although it is not time yet to burst into a rhapsody of optimism, the willingness of the Aluminum Company of Canada to finance harvesting of the merchantable timber reflects much credit on that concern and opens the avenue to an agreeable solution.

It must be remembered that Alcan has no contractual obligation to do anything of the sort. The matter was discussed and discarded, and the aluminum industry brought its vast operations to the west coast on that basis.

If Alcan showed no interest in post-contract appeals, that should be accepted with good grace, if not necessarily with pleasure. The province was glad to welcome the company in the first place, and there is no justice or purpose in heaping recrimination on it if it later appears that the terms of the agreement are not entirely satisfactory.

At the same time, British Columbians and Alcan are now members of one family. Under the circumstances there must be some compromise which is not provided for by any contract but which inevitably becomes necessary from time to time if the atmosphere is to remain congenial.

The flooding in Tweedsmuir Park provides an important case in point. Although there were some who foresaw the danger, British Columbians as a whole awoke tardily to the fact that a great natural beauty spot was threatened with disfigurement and that broad stretches of good timber lay in the water's path.

It was too late to change the agreement but a cry arose that something somehow must be done. If the cry was ignored, it was certain for a while to gain strength. Even so, Alcan could have gone about its business of producing aluminum and eventually the commotion would have subsided, leaving cool but tolerable relations with the public.

Instead, it has made a creditable move towards compromise. Since there is no recorded estimate of the work and cost involved in the whole operation of saving the good timber and preserving the park's beauty, it is impossible to say at present how much Alcan's part in it will mean.

But the point is that the company has taken a first step and it is up to us, through the provincial government, to take the next. There may be others to close the gap finally, but it is our turn now.

With this in mind, Lands and Forests Minister Robert E. Sommers is working on the estimate which should have been available from the start. His report will then go to the legislature.

A few days ago an Alcan spokesman expressed the desire of the company to become a "good citizen." A happy outcome to the case of Tweedsmuir Park should convince the province that it has gained one.

LETTERBOX

BOUQUET TO SCHOOL TRUSTEE

Editor, Daily News: I read with regret the announcement that Mrs. Earl Becker has declined to run as a candidate for re-election to the School Board for the district.

The school board is one of those unpaid positions that require a great deal of time, considerable ability and much sacrifice from its members, and is subject to, I am afraid, much criticism, not always well-informed but forceful. Public-minded citizens who offer themselves as candidate for such a position are indeed worthy of commendation from the parents and other residents. In this connection I should like to pay tribute to Mrs. Becker.

For many years she has been an active and progressive member of the board, and during the recent years of new school construction those years have been demanding on the time and energies of that body. Mrs. Becker had been a member of the local Parent-Teacher Associations and Parent-Teacher Council for many years and frequently in responsible executive positions, as the other members readily acknowledged her suitability for leadership. As president of the Prince Rupert Music and Drama Festival Association, Mrs. Becker occupies an important position in the community still.

As one who has known of Mrs. Becker's services to the schools and the community I should like to pay this tribute to her for her many years' work for the children and the district.

As I See It

by Philpott Elmore

Ike's Half Good Start

PRESIDENT-ELECT EISENHOWER threw the allies of U.S.A. into gloom and foreboding when he announced the name of his Secretary of State.

John Foster Dulles came into fame as the top U.S. lawyer for the big German cartels. On the eve of Hitler's war he said it was fantasy and folly to think the fascists would ever attack. But when they did attack he used his wide influence in the U.S.A. for isolation.

When France had fallen, and Britain stood alone in Europe against the whole might of the Nazi-fascists, Mr. Dulles was a key champion of the "hands off Europe" policy in U.S.A. Last year it was Dulles who held the diplomatic gun to the head of the Attlee government—who forced Britain to accept terms in the Japanese treaty which Britain believed would make for more war and less peace in Asia.

It was Dulles who this year devised the plan to "liberate" eastern Europe by air-drops to armed resistance bands behind the Iron Curtain; and to assist Chiang Kai-shek to re-invade the mainland of China. The whole press of Europe, free Asia, and alert Democrats in U.S.A. instantly recognized this plan for what it was—just another way to start a third world war, in which we would find ourselves, at best, with "little Koreas" all over the place.

BAD as was the Dulles selection from the British Commonwealth standpoint, it has been greatly offset by later excellent Eisenhower appointments.

The choice of Senator Lodge to head the permanent U.S. delegation at the UN should kill, at one blow, the fear that the U.S. is getting ready to "fold up" the UN as the old League of Nations was folded just before the Hitler war. Lodge was the key man in the entire move to draft Eisenhower as the Republican nominee. Many thought he might be made Secretary of States. I expressed, in this column, hope that he would be. He did not get the top job in international affairs. But he did get what could easily be made the next most important post in the world of international affairs. There is no better Republican for it.

If the U.S.A. would throw its whole weight behind the UN—and use the UN in full spirit as well as letter—the whole world picture could change for the better. The outside criticism of U.S.A. today is that the U.S. uses UN only if, as, and when it suits the whim and short-range aim of the U.S. to do so.

BUT the appointment that gives the outside world most hope is that of Martin P. Durkin as Secretary of Labor. Durkin is a Truman Democratic, and head of the AFL plumbers union. His choice has roused the open wrath of the anti-labor Republicans, especially Senator Taft. It proves that President Ike is capable of going his own way, Taft or no.

One other appointment could be good or bad—that of Harold Stassen to head the Marshall plan and its successors. Stassen is a "liberal" gone "not-so-liberal." In 1942 he fathered a fine plan for outright world government, short and simple enough to be printed on a postcard. He seems to have forgotten this, long since.

But he is also the man who campaigned for the Republican nomination in 1948 by raising the principle that the U.S. should cut off all help to Britain unless Britain abandoned her democratic socialism, and welfare state.

OTTAWA DIARY

By Norman M. MacLeod

The main distinction to the credit of the current parliamentary session up to the present has been the atmosphere of high anticipation which it succeeded in creating for its opening.

That atmosphere still survives, although so far nothing has occurred to justify it. But it's a pre-election session. And MPs, along with newspaper correspondents, party workers, and all the others sideliners, remain convinced that sooner or later something big is going to happen. The only uncertainty in their minds is just when it will happen.

FOREIGN POLICY

Traditionally, the accepted course for an opposition party at any pre-election session is to make things as hot for the party in power as possible. But that isn't the way Hon. George Drew and his Progressive Conservative hopefuls are playing this one.

The PCs have a theory that the government has long overstayed its welcome in office and that each passing day serves to increase its unpopularity. In this situation they believe that a negative approach to power may very well be the surest. As they read the portents on the political horizon, the strategy for which the situation calls is simply one of non-interference with the wave of anti-government feeling alleged to be rolling up on all fronts.

As a result of this analysis of the situation on the part of the PCs, a good many issues which had been counted upon to breed stormy debating controversy are going by default. Needless to say, the Liberal government isn't at all displeased at the turn events have taken. It had expected to be thrown heavily upon the defensive from the session's opening bell. It still is convinced that the respite is only temporary. But it is none the less appreciative of it.

The main issue upon which the cabinet had expected to be hard-pressed was foreign policy. The indications of unpopularity of the Korean war raised by the vote in the United States presidential election had left it fearful of echoes here.

Washington's sponsorship of the new Australian, New Zealand, United States alliance in the Pacific—with the United Kingdom refused even status as an observer and with Canada uninvited to join—was looked upon as another delicate issue. In addition, the ministry had expected that it would be called upon to defend the huge expenditures currently being made upon UNO and upon NATO, without any guarantee that either of these agencies is on the road to practical effectiveness for peace.

STORM CURTAIN

The Liberal government would like to think that the current period of suspense could be prolonged for the entire session. But its optimism doesn't rise that high. Already there's dissatisfaction in the ranks of the PCs over the party's policy of a negative strategy. The storm is due to break some day. The question is simply whether it will be before or after the Christmas recess.

Young mothers lament: "When Day is Done, so am I."

A few old time Prince Rupert voices heard over the air in other cities can bring reaction. Letters are following. It is plain that not always is it the truth that "out of sight out of mind."

Some who leave the north after having remained there long enough to be classed as a pioneer, like to be thought of as just that.

Now, there's Bill Turnbull who left Prince Rupert in the middle thirties. He was a natural newspaperman and still is. In his home in Victoria the other night he listened in to radio remarks coming from away up Prince Rupert.

And he remembered the orators as well as what they were talking of. We can see him sitting there, giving the ghost of a grin now and then, as well as a nod. Turnbull, as we recall him, was a jovial soul. He, and other staff members of 36 years ago wouldn't recognize the News office today, but we'll wager none have forgotten the three o'clock scramble.

Hunter, Pullen, Macintosh, Miller, Peck, Fraser, Norman Macintosh, Turnbull—these are but a few of the scores still remembered who efficiently and faithfully performed on Newspaper Row.

Turnbull, by the way, saw something of the world after leaving Skeena. He travelled as far as Buenos Aires. Back in Canada, he ran across Macintosh in Montreal.

Scotty had resigned from newspapers but was still active in publicity, this time being in the service of the CPR. Macintosh, during his years on the News, invested a daily feature entitled "Through My Spectacles" signing it "Wee Maek." It was also during this time he married the bride coming all the way from Scotland.

Roy Miller and Bill Peck have retired, both in California, the former in Otkland and the latter living near Los Angeles.

Rail Men Die In Car Plunge

Thomas Bowling, 25, was injured. The men were replacing timbers on a Canadian National Railway trestle when the accident occurred.

UNDER OUR ROOF

By JOHN STURDY

Telephones defeat me. A telephone is the only modern contraption that I have never been able to master, and whenever possible I let somebody else answer the dreaded thing.

But I happened to walk into the house the other day—Hamish and Little Augie and Col. S. Skeffington-Smutts (Ret.) were out hunting oysters—and at that moment the telephone started ringing. For a time I turned a deaf ear, but in the country a telephone operator never gives up, and in the end I had to answer.

"Is that X-24?" "Yes, I said." "One moment, please. Vancouver is calling. Go ahead, please, your party is on the line."

"Hello? Hello?" a new voice said. "Is that you, Johnny boy?" "Who's that?" I asked, terrified by now.

"This is Al, boy. How are you?" "I'm fine." "Well, that's good, that's real good! I bet you're surprised to hear I'm on the Coast."

"Well..." "It was Mary's idea. We didn't know what to do for a holiday, and Mary said, Al, why don't we take a trip out to the Coast and spend Christmas there? Just like that. Say, it nearly floored me, Mary wanting to leave the Big City—hey, hey! So we packed the old suitcase and here we are—and the fog they call weather in this town. Still, the kids love it. You heard what I said, Johnny boy?"

"I heard." "Well, aren't you going to ask me? We got twins! Yes, six, brother, and aren't they the cutest little little tykes you ever laid eyes on! Mary says they look like me, but I don't know, I think they look more like Mary's old man. So with the twins that makes four of us now. That's not doing too bad, eh, Johnny boy? By the way, you got any kids?"

"One." "How old?" "Eight." "Well, that's great, that's just great! Someone for the twins to play with. Say, I got a real kick out hearing you were living on an island. I mean, when I think of the old days Back East, and the way you used to paint up the Big City—you know what I mean, eh, kid! Well, like I was saying to Mary, none of us is getting any younger, and I guess you've slowed up quite a bit since I saw you last, and, brother, that's a wise thing to do. You remember Joe Bottomless? He was just about your age and he just wouldn't take it easy, and now he's pushing the old daisies. But you're feeling fine, eh, Johnny boy?"

"I was." "Well, that's just great. Now, how about Friday?" "Friday?" "Now listen, Johnny boy, if you and the missus have anything else on, you just tell me. We can make it Saturday just as well. But I thought, well if we come Friday it'll give you and me more time to chew the fat. Mary sort of hesitates about bringing the kids, but I said to her, old Johnny boy just loves children, and how in blazes are we going to get a baby sitter, anyway, on such short notice? Now listen, boy, don't go to any trouble. Mary's bringing a ham. Well, I gotta fade now. This is costing plenty. So long, Johnny boy. See you Friday!"

My wife was in the shed where we are living on account of all the guests in the house, and I had to confess to her about Al and Mary and the twins.

I propped her up against the wall and gave her a glass of water, and then she fixed an eye on me.

"Al who?" she demanded. "I don't know," I said meekly. "He didn't say."

Novel School Art Exhibition Planned by Booth Memorial

A unique event in school and art circles is scheduled for Dec. 9 when, under sponsorship of students of Booth Memorial High School, there will be an exhibition of pictures provided by the Alberta Society of Artists.

Arranged through the Western Canada Art Circuit, with headquarters at Calgary, the twice-joined show of more than 20 works is being brought here by the students in the course of a swing through B.C. for exhibition at Victoria.

Members of the high school art classes and the senior girls' effective living classes are planning the event, which will be financed from the proceeds of a silver collection.

It is understood that nothing like this occasion, in which a major art exhibition is sponsored by high school students, has ever been tried before in Canada.

The exhibition, which will be hung in the large, attractive activity room of the high school, will be supplemented by studies worked on during the recent classes held here under the instruction of Victor Amadio. These will be supplied by the Art Club of Prince Rupert.

Students sponsoring the show will supervise hanging of the pictures and will act as guides for the visitors. They will also serve tea and have planned a program of recorded music for the occasion. The Art Club will operate a home cooking table convened by Mrs. J. I. Rogerson. The event is considered part of the students' education in art appreciation and social experience. If it meets with its expected success, two more art exhibitions will in all likelihood be routed through Prince Rupert this winter.

The exhibition will be open from 3 to 5 p.m., Dec. 9.

Boy Scout Camp Plans Underway

Arrangements for a Boy Scouts' overnight camp at Grassy Bay are well underway, it was reported last night at a meeting in the Civic Centre of the Boy Scouts' executive association.

The camp, which will give the boys experience in sleeping out, woodcraft and other subjects required in their syllabus of training, will include a cabin for which the material is now being obtained.

It is planned to have the Scouts assist in preparations for the camp where, once it is established, they will go under the supervision of leaders for their nights out.

Cubs will also have use of the camp during daytime. It is expected that work on the site will be completed early next year.

Fred Conrad was chairman at the meeting, and Bill Doumont secretary.

Canadian Author Writes Book About Canada For 'Foreigners'

QUEBEC (CP)—The newest book written about Canada for foreign—and especially European—readers has come from the pen of Jean Bruchesi, 51-year-old, Quebec historian and civil servant.

Mr. Bruchesi was commissioned to write "Le Canada" by publisher Fernand Nathan of Paris, for the collection "Merveilles de France et du Monde," "Wonders of France and of the World."

The author, who is provincial under-secretary of Quebec province and a member of many cultural societies, jumped at the chance to help make Canada better known and loved by contributing a book to the de luxe collection.

WELL-KNOWN WRITER

Mr. Bruchesi had several historical works to recommend him for the job of writing the text and selecting the photographs for "Le Canada."

The University of British Columbia recently informed him it has selected his "Histoire du Canada" as required reading in one faculty.

A book on Canadian history, written especially for youngsters, "LEpopee Canadienne," has been used for several years by French-speaking school children in British Columbia.

Mr. Bruchesi's office, with its Canadian paintings, Breton statues and piles of books, is far from a quiet retreat in which to write books.

At odd moments between his administrative duties, numerous trips and lectures at Marguerite Bourgeoys College for women in Montreal, he finds time to write and look up archives and other works on the country's history.

WELL ILLUSTRATED

"Le Canada" made heavy demands on its author. Apart from writing a 15,000-word review of leading political, religious and intellectual facts in Canadian history he selected 132 photographs, out of 800, showing various points of interest in the country.

"This book will be translated in several languages," he said. "It is the first of its kind to give an accurate idea of Canada's achievements, past and present."

The cover of the book will show a view of Quebec City from the top of the Quebec legislature tower.

GRIMETHORPE, England — Leonard Harrison received a telegram saying he had won £6,767 in a football pool, but the cheque that came was £767. Investigation showed a clerical error had led to a mistake in the telegram.

Bus Driver Plays Leading Role in Film

By BERTRAND THIBAUT

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec author Roger Lemelin has applied to Canadian theatre the principles of the post-war Italian motion picture school in a National Film Board production, first of a series of films to be produced in collaboration with Canadian authors.

The idea is to give the main parts in the films to persons not connected with the theatre professionally, in order to obtain the greatest possible realism. The idea is brought into actual practice in the film L'homme aux Oiseaux—A Man and His Birds—which had its first showing here recently.

Camille Fournier, Quebec autobus operator, plays the leading role in the film.

An interesting documentary film on Quebec City, the film is about a man who likes birds so much that he loses his job because of them and goes all over town looking for another position. He finally finds another job aboard a ferry running between Quebec and Levis.

SCENIC SHOTS

Most of the scenic sections of Quebec are included in the movie.

Cameraman Grant McLean of Ottawa started shooting scenes for the film July 15, 1951. It was completed Sept. 10 the same year.

Background music was written by Maurice Blackburn of Ottawa.

Dialogue written by the 33-year-old Lemelin is based on popular French as spoken by Quebecers.

Fournier, 44-year-old star of the picture, said:

"My portrayal would have been less sincere if I had had to speak learned French instead of words that come from the heart."

Woman Prison Head Claims Segregation Would End Riots

TORONTO (CP)—The head of prisons for women in the United Kingdom says she believes prison riots in the United States and Canada would disappear if prisons were smaller and prisoners were segregated.

Miss N. Nellaby, one of England's five prison commissioners and the only woman in the group, is studying Canadian reform institutions on her trip to Canada. She said in an interview here that "small prisons eliminate trouble." In smaller institutions, she said, "the men are under closer observation and guards are able to spot easily any would-be trouble-makers."

The largest British prison,

Wandsworth in London, holds 1,400 men and "is much too large," she said. The average, however, is less than 400.

OVERCROWDING CAUSE

"The riots in Canada and the U.S. this last year can definitely be traced to the size of the jails and overcrowding," she said.

"When you get more than 1,000 men in one prison, it is bound eventually to lead to trouble."

Miss Nellaby has had 17 years of prison work, and she says there hasn't been a prison riot in the United Kingdom for years.

"All new prisons in England are designed to hold 350 at the most," she said.

She emphasized the importance of keeping prisoners segregated. Hardened criminals, murderers and sex perverts should be kept from other prisoners.

—Foot Lights—

By LILIAN MILLER

Months of hard work and weeks of frayed nerves were rewarded by two very appreciative crowds when the Little Theatre presented "Ask Me No Questions" on Monday and Tuesday. Comments overheard afterwards, such as "excellent acting" and "I enjoyed the play," were encouragement to the cast for the next job.

Next stop was Terrace. This meant packing stage sets, props, make-up, personal belongings and high spirits into the train on Friday night. Reports from Terrace were that a sell-out crowd was expected.

BRIDGE STILL USEFUL

CHARLOTTETOWN — Steel rails are being removed from the Hillsborough bridge here which was condemned for heavy railway traffic more than a year ago. Installation of plank is making it a smoother route for motor traffic to the east and south.

OFFICIAL STORY OF WORLD WAR II

LONDON (CP)—The first of some 25 volumes embracing the official history of Allied military campaigns in the Second World War is due to be published Dec. 10.

The work, dealing with operations in Norway, has been compiled by the historian, Dr. T. K. Derry, and is based on extensive research and specially-prepared summaries by a selected staff of narrators. It took 18 months to complete.

The remaining volumes, being put together under the direction of Prof. J. R. M. Butler of Cambridge University, will be released in series, with the deadline for the final number set for 1955.

The latest report shows that more than 12,000,000 documents, including unit war diaries, are stored in War Office vaults for detailed check by the narrators.

Altogether 92 summaries, or blue books, were projected as a foundation for the official histories of the widespread global operations. Those assigned to this job are mainly hand-picked retired senior army officers. Already 87 of the blue books have been completed, with the remainder expected to be ready by 1955.

Cost of the undertaking is reported to be about £80,000 a year.

Because the Second World War was global in extent, with operations co-ordinated in Washington and London, Butler plans to devote five volumes—one written by himself—to grand strategy. Six volumes covering operations in the Mediterranean and the Middle East are being written by a team supervised by Maj-Gen. I. S. O. Playfair.

Specializing on four or five volumes on the war against Japan is Maj-Gen. S. W. Kirby.

And Maj. L. F. Ellis, whose account of the 1939-40 campaign in France and Flanders is due to be published next fall, has taken charge of a team concentrating on three volumes provisionally entitled "Victory in the West."

Saturday Sermon

A PROBATION OFFICER

By CANON E. PROCKTER

"Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones."—Mathew XVIII.

There is some effort being made here to include in our local law enforcement and social service machinery a probation officer whose special field is the delinquent juvenile.

It is certain that something should be done, but why couldn't the parsons do it? They are willing to be called in to a position where they can render help. Many of them have special training and most have a good deal of experience. The trouble at the moment is that they are seldom or never called.

Is it fair to say that prejudice against the clergy is likely to cost this city another government salary and another government car?

It is true that clergymen have their peculiarities but so have government employees, or they are so ordinary they couldn't possibly be of any help anyway. Do we really think that the problems which we face with the young people can be solved without reference to the spiritual resources?

True, the clergy appear to be busy people, but no matter how busy they are, they could not but give top priority to this sort of work, if called upon. A great deal of their time is devoted to work of much less importance.

Ah, but you say, what about families which have no religious affiliation? The police can always say, we are going to call a clergyman, who do you want, or which church. Undertakers do it every day.

It may be that parents and children behind the "eight-ball" would sooner deal with government employees, but in matters of this sort it is up to the rest of the community to decide what it can afford and what is good for the ones concerned.

Novel Art Classes in Museum

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadians here are displaying new interest in art through a series of informal art classes under Dr. Arthur Lismer, noted Canadian artist, at Montreal museum's art centre.

Dr. Lismer's unique recruiting campaign consists of equipping the main gallery of the museum at the beginning of each month with paints, tables, oils, clay and such, and casually placing appropriate working tools within easy reach.

A crowd gathers and as many as 100 sit down shy under the encouragement of an instructor and dabble with whatever they fancy. The instructor suggests, encourages and mildly criticizes the efforts.

Describing it as a "creative diversion for city people," Dr. Lismer said in an interview his aim is to encourage people to "let off steam" in painting, modelling and designing.

CREATIVE FIELD

"For many who attend," he added, "the classes are a return to a creative field which once absorbed them—rather like finding a door open to the peace and pleasures of childhood."

"If we're not to become a nation of onlookers, we should take more interest in this type of hobby."

Too much leisure time was spent in "watching"—hockey, television, movies. None of these gave people a chance to express themselves.

Some sessions are for children only, others for high-school students. The largest class comes from professional people and white-collared workers.

Catholic Card Party Draws Many Players

Twelve tables were filled for the last Catholic card party of the year this week at which Miss M. W. Pearson and Mrs. J. Hamilton won the prizes for whist.

Mrs. A. Norton and Mr. J. Cloutier won the cribbage prizes. Winners at bridge were Mrs. C. P. Balagno and Mrs. J. Krause.

Convenor was Mrs. G. P. Lyons and refreshments were in charge of Mrs. A. Brebner, Mrs. George Fleming, Mrs. N. Galbraith and Mrs. L. Colussi.

Next card party will be held on Jan. 15.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD
Kibitzers Are Distracting To Careless Mr. Champion

It is sad but true that the best results sometimes come from the worst plays. I don't know why, exactly, but Mr. Champion seems to be on the losing end of these situations more than anyone else. Maybe it's because he is so deadly serious about the game or maybe it's a form of poetic justice, in punishment for the way he tongue-lashes his partners and opponents.

While sorting his cards in today's deal, Mr. Muzzy was engaged in some pointless discussion with the "kibitzers" concerning the previous hand. He got his king of spades mixed in with his clubs. Against the final contract he led the four of spades—which he considered to be a singleton.

The effect was devastating. Dummy's six spot won the first trick and Mr. Champion felt very optimistic indeed. Preparing for a cross-ruff, he led a heart from the board. Mr. Dale stepped in with the king, Mr. Muzzy dropping the eight.

A spade was returned and Mr. Champion can hardly be blamed for flinching. Only one spade was missing—the king and if hearts. "No spades, partner?" asked Mr. Dale. Looking through his cards again, Mr. Muzzy then found the king of spades, nestled among his club.

He played it, winning the trick after this, Mr. Champion didn't have a chance. He could trump only two of his losing diamonds in dummy and ended up losing a trick in each suit.

"How did you like that opening lead?" asked Mr. Muzzy proudly. "Fearless, eh?" Mr. Champion shook his head in disgust. "I hate to get beat," he snarled, "by a player who can't even sort his cards." Mr. Muzzy had it, that would mean he had led from the king

'IF YOU WANNA WIN THE PENNANT'

Get Some Yankee Players, Stengel Tells Indians

By JOE REICHLER
PHOENIX, Ariz.—Tip to Hank Greenberg, general manager of Cleveland Indians:

Wanna beat the Yankees for the pennant next year? Let Casey Stengel, the guy who stopped you four years in a row, tell you how.

"Nothing to it," says the cagey skipper of New York's world champions. "If you want to beat us, just make a trade with us. No fooling. Look at all the good players we gave away to other clubs in trades in recent years—Bob Porterfield, Jackie Jensen, Frank Shea, Tommy Byrne, Duane Pillette.

"That Greenberg pops off how he hates the Yankees and wants his players to do likewise. Does he think his Indians can win the pennant by hating us? No sir.

"Know how Cleveland can win the pennant? By getting some of our players. That's how simple it is. If you can't lick 'em, get 'em on your side."

While Stengel was having some fun at the expense of his friendly rival, Chuck Dressen, whose Brooklyn Dodgers bowed to Stengel's Yankees in the last world series, was accepting congratulations on having been hired for another season as manager of the Brooks for a salary ranging from $35,000 to $40,000.

The Dressen signing along with the announcement that Joe Black, who all but pitched the Dodgers to the championship and won rookie-of-the-year honors, also had signed his contract for 1953 game as the baseball convention here wound up its three-day player draft and prepared to delve into heavy legislative agenda.

Dressen said the Dodgers are slated to meet the Braves "in a day or two" in an effort to transact a deal. He did not identify the players he intended to let go but made it plain he is anxious to land Warren Spahn, Boston's star southpaw.

Asked whether he would be willing to give first baseman Gil Hodges and outfielder Carl Furillo for Spahn, Dressen smiled and said:

"All I can say is I'd be willing to break up my infield and outfield to get a good starting pitcher, preferably a lefthander."

Rainmakers Edge Polar Bears For Victory in Second Game

Rainmakers 33, Polar Bears 32

Hanging on bitterly in the last two minutes of play, Bo-Me-Hi Rainmakers gained a narrow one-point victory over Ketchikan Polar Bears last night in the last game of a two-game high school series here.

In the closest game witnessed by sports fans for some time, the local students fought doggedly point for point against obvious superior basketball technique of the visitors and gained their victory by sheer determination.

A return match is to be played in Ketchikan after Christmas, with winners of the high school international trophy decided in three out of four games, or if tied, by total points.

In the series here Kay-Hi won the first game 41-33.

The see-sawing battle last night saw scores tied throughout the game after Rainmakers came from behind in the first quarter to overcome a three-point deficit.

Gaining a one-point lead in the last period with 2½ minutes to play, local boys hung on to the ball with a tenacity that only twice saw their chances slipping of retaining their lead.

One Kay-Hi player, Hamlin, leading point maker and bucket man, was sent off the floor for a flagrant foul with 47 seconds left to play.

Freddie Kristmanson, Tait and Nickerson were the spark plugs for the local students, while Morrison, captain of the team, set up effective defences.

Reifers for both nights were Slatta and Davidson.

Lineup:

Kay-Hi — Hamlin 11, Bue 5, Auger 7, Maddox 5, Phil Tucker 2, Vincent 2, Antonsen 2, Dix Tucker. Total 22.

Bo-Me-Hi—Becker, McKay 5, Morrison 2, Clecne 3, Nickerson 6, Tait 7, Letourneau 1, Christensen, Ford 4, Kristmanson 6. Total 33.

ON THE ALLEYS

Hotel Squad Leads Pace For 5-Pinners

Only one team in the mixed five-pin bowling league made a clean sweep in this week's play and two squads are tied for leadership in both divisions.

Ocean View Hotel set a new high team game record for the season in "A" League with a score of 1,385 and also had high three of 3,625 to take four points from Cook's Jewellers.

Johnny Comadina of Head-pinners rolled high three games of 767 for men and Jack Paul of Fashion Footwear had high single of 304.

Rac Raymond rolled high single for ladies with 276 and Ruth Ramsay had high three of 663.

In "E" League, six teams scored three points over their opposition to leave Thom Sheet Metal and The Daily News tied for top place.

Kathie Strand of Hi-Jackers rolled high single of 316 and Sheila Ramsay of Northern Glass had high three of 733. Bob Shearer set the pace for the men with high single of 310 and also high three of 705.

Jersey Farms, which took three games from Hill's Shoes, chalked up high single game of 1,225 and also high three of 3,275.

Thom Sheet Metal took three points from Jerry's and the newspaper sextet beat Acme Clothiers by the same score. Newcomer Claude Sanderson, substituting for Gertie Matterson, set the pace for the Daily News with a three-game total of 700, putting together games of 209, 274 and 217.

It looked like ladies' night for the paper squad as Claudea, Jean Nixon with 218, and Lil Stanwood, with 172, led the men to their last-game win over the Clothiers.
