ANOTHER GERMAN AIR RAID ON LONDON

RUSSIANS DEFEAT GERMAN FORCES--INCREASING ACTIVITY ON WESTERN FRONT

LONDON IS AGAIN RAIDED BY GERMAN AEROPLANES. MANY KILLED AND INJURED

ONLY ONE HUN MACHINE SUCCEEDED IN GETTING OVER THE CAPITAL--MANY HOMES DESTROYED BEFORE ENEMY MACHINE WAS DRIVEN OFF--FIFTY SEVEN KILLED AND INJURED.

(Special to The Daily News.)

London, March 9.—Eleven persons were killed and forty-six injured as the result of an air raid on London last night. It is estimated that an additional six bodies are in the ruins of the houses wrecked. All the casualties occurred in London. There were seven or eight enemy aeroplanes taking part in this raid, but only one of the Hun machines managed to get over the city. The remainder were driven off by the accuracy of the anti-aircraft guns stationed on the outskirts. Each machine was caught in the blinding glare of the search lights, and held in plain view. British aviators immediately rose to combat with the invaders, and fierce battles in the air occurred. The one machine which did pass over the city did not wait long.

ANDREW'S SOCIETY LECTURE A GOOD ONE

Last evening, in the Club rooms, Second Avenue, Mr. J. H. McMillan addressed the St. Andrew's Society on the subject of "Geology as applied to Mining," as a review of the mineral resources of the part of British Columbia. There was a good attendance, and Mr. McMillan's lecture was listened to with very great attention, along with the natural wealth of British Columbia in this neighborhood, told of Anyox, Atlin, the Grand Canal district, and the Klamath. He pointed out that the best copper producing mine in British Empire was within 80 miles of Prince Rupert, while the largest producer in this province was the Rocher de Boule. In this country, said Mr. McMillan, and yet been scratched for gold, and it is full of it. He showed how by the enterprise of the Silver Standard Company near Atlin, by installing a mill and adapting custom ore for treatment, it was going to help the small miner, and hoped to see when such a mine would be dotted all over the province. While lack of transportation in such a mountainous country hampered the quick development, such is bound to come. Lands of tremendous extent tributary to this port and their development must come. "That the trains will be running into Prince Rupert with export shipments soon," said Mr. McMillan, "is a dream, but a real possibility. It will stake my reputation on it." The relations of capital and labor were also touched upon by the speaker, in regard to development. Each is interdependent upon the other, and the time is coming soon when the industrial revolution must obtain a greater portion of the wealth they produce. Mr. Charles Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Works, had admitted this as one of the facts he faced in the immediate future. With justice and reason on his sides, Mr. McMillan considered that any difficulty would be overcome.

Mr. McMillan received a hearty vote of thanks for his splendid lecture. Several musical numbers were given to the enjoyment of the audience.

Many German aeroplanes were destroyed yesterday on the British front in Flanders and France.

U.S. Front. London, March 9.—A German attack with liquid fire on the United States forces to the north west of Toul, in the St. Mihiel sector was repulsed yesterday.

Few Casualties. London, March 9.—British casualties for the first week in March were 3,343, which is the lowest of any week for several months. They include sixty three officers, and 628 men, killed, or died of wounds, and 179 officers, and 2,473 men wounded and missing.

MR. GEO. M. HANSON ADDRESSES THE SONS OF CANADA

Last evening in their rooms, Mr. Geo. M. Hanson addressed the Sons of Canada Society on the subject of "Colonies, East and West." There was a good attendance, as Mr. Hanson is already known to be a lecturer of no mean order. Many very interesting side lights were given of the populations of the different colonies, particularly in the East, of which Mr. Hanson has a first hand knowledge in many cases. He contrasted the different methods of colonisation, and showed how that the British method has last been successful. Exploitation of the colonies, belonging to any country for the selfish aggrandisement of the colonizing nation, in every case has been proved to be a failure.

Given in his own inimitable style, Mr. Hanson's lecture was very much appreciated by those present.

SIBERIA TO EXPORT FOOD TO ALLIES VIA VLADIVOSTOK

(Special to The Daily News.)

Harbin, Manchuria, March 9.—An agreement has been arrived at here between the Consular Corps, the railway officials, and the Chinese Customs service to permit of the export of food stuffs by the way of Irkutsk and Vladivostok, and also for the shipment of Manchurian products to Vladivostok for export to the allies.

The import and export duties levied by the Chinese Customs department will be waived on these through shipments, and it is expected that large quantities of food stuffs will be exported from Vladivostok to the allies.

Japan's Good Faith. London, March 9.—In a dispatch received here from Tientsin, the government of Japan is reported to have intimated that she would welcome the co-operation of the Chinese troops in the event that extreme measures were necessary in Siberia, and in this way demonstrating her unselfishness. It is thought that the Chinese government is not a little suspicious of any action that Japan might take in a military way either in Manchuria along the line of the trans-Siberian railway or in Siberia itself.

A Grave Menace. London, March 9.—Lord Hugh Cecil, speaking here yesterday, said that the German menace to Siberia is extremely grave, and that the action, and the prompt action of Japan alone could frustrate the designs of the enemy in that quarter.

"THE PRICE OF PRIDE" AT THE WESTHOLME

Two women and a man are the chief characters in the opening scenes of this great play, "The Price of Pride" which is to be screened at the Westholme Theatre this evening. Two men and a woman are the chief actors in the later scenes, twenty years later. These two men, half brothers, are extremely like each other physically, but as to character, are as extreme as the poles. The one develops into a splendid specimen of manhood, mentally and morally, while the other, who runs away when a boy, becomes leader of a band of bandits. When they come together in the same region in the West, naturally their great likeness, the one to the other, causes complications. For a responsible mining engineer to be the living image of a train bandit naturally causes confusion somewhere, and even his fiancée is led astray at first. But for the smashing climax of this great story, see the play. There will also be a fine comedy.

RUSSIAN REVOLUTIONARY ARMY RECAPTURES JAMBURG FROM THE GERMAN ARMY

TEUTONS SUFFER LARGE LOSSES AND NORTHERN ADVANCE IS STOPPED--KIEV IN THE UKRAINA IS STILL HELD BY RUSSIAN REVOLUTIONARIES DESPITE THE GERMAN CLAIMS.

(Special to The Daily News.)

London, March 9.—It is officially announced in Petrograd that the Revolutionary Army have recaptured the town of Jamburg from the Teutons on Thursday morning. Jamburg is only sixty eight miles from Petrograd. Severe losses were known to have been inflicted upon the German forces, and their further advance eastwards is blocked by the Revolutionary Army, which is gaining strength and numbers daily. Discipline is being enforced, and the fighting quality of the Russians is greatly improved.

HUNS OBTAIN BIG SUPPLIES FROM UKRAINA

Thousands of Car Loads of Grain and Other Food Stuffs are Being Sent to Hungry Central Powers.

(Special to The Daily News.)

Amsterdam, March 9.—Arrangements are being made by the Ukrainian government to deliver to the Central powers some thirty thousand carloads of grain and four thousand carloads of other food stuffs. Every granary in the country is full of the crops of the last four years, it having been impossible to export any since the outbreak of the war, owing to the sea passage by the Dardanelles being closed by the Turks.

In Roumania, also the Germans have secured the privilege of utilizing the Roumanian petroleum industry. Although before the invasion of Roumania by the German forces, the most complete destruction of the oil wells was accomplished by the British engineers in charge, to make them of no possible use to the Germans considerable progress has been made, and it is known that supplies of oil have been going regularly to Germany since that time.

The Executive committee of the Diocese of Caledonia met in the Bishop's house on Friday evening. The members present were the Rev. Canon Rix, the Rev. W. S. A. Larter, L. M. de Gex and C. W. Homer. Among other matters considered was the urgent question of increasing the self support in the various missions of the Diocese scattered through Northern British Columbia. The date of the Diocesan Synod was fixed for the second Wednesday in June.

SOLDIERS ON FURLOUGH ASK FOR DISCHARGE

Ottawa, March 7.—The department of militia and defence makes the following announcement: "The government of Canada, after negotiations extending over several months, has succeeded in arranging three months' furlough at the public expense for all married men of the original first contingent remaining overseas, whose families reside in Canada. This was finally consented to on the express condition that all those granted leave would return overseas for duty at the expiration of their furlough."

"The first Canadian contingent has been singularly fortunate in obtaining this leave, as other Dominions which have made the same efforts have been unable to obtain a like concession. "Applications are now pouring in from those who have already reached Canada, for discharge or employment in Canada on compassionate grounds."

"While the department of militia and defence fully appreciates the natural desire of the families of many of these men that they should remain, and the fact that owing to war conditions, many cases of hardships have arisen, it must point out that all these men would have been unable to obtain leave or respite from their arduous duties had it not been for the strenuous efforts made on their behalf, and the express undertaking that all would return at the appointed time."

"Should the department accede to the requests for discharge and extension which are now being made in spite of the definite understanding on which this furlough was granted, any further effort to secure a similar privilege for subsequent contingents will be rendered impossible, and in addition, the government of Canada will be considered to have broken faith in view of the conditions described above. The department feels that it can confidently expect the hearty support of all soldiers concerned, their families and the public of Canada generally, when they appreciate the full extent of the situation."

THE COLLAPSE.

The optimists among us believe that the present year will witness the definite defeat of Germany, and the end of the world war, and that the new year of 1919 will dawn upon a world which has made, or at all events, is engaged in making, peace. There are others, whose eyes are fixed upon the war map and whose minds are obsessed with calculations about the interval which has yet to elapse before our United States allies can send reinforcements sufficient to turn the scale that has been so long in the balance, who cannot resist the feeling that a year is too short a time for the accomplishment of so great a task as the expulsion of the German hordes from the tortured soil of Belgium and France, and that the trial of patience and endurance, which is still before us, is more likely to occupy two years than one.

In a struggle which far exceeded what everybody believed to be not merely the probable, but even the possible and conceivable limits of the duration of a contest of nations, the pessimists have necessarily been almost continuously in the right, and optimism, even sure and healthy optimism, has often had to admit the disappointment of reasonable hopes. Yet it does not follow that the gloomier will always be the truer view, and if the optimist is challenged for expecting too much in the brief compass of a single year, he can, at all events, say that things as wonderful have happened in an equally short space of time.

In the beginning of April 1814, the Emperor Napoleon I, made an unconditional abdication. He would have been a bold man, who in April 1813, would have dared to prophesy that within a year's time the conqueror of Europe could have been brought to such a pass. It is easy now, in the light of what has so long been a part of "every schoolboy's" knowledge to read the handwriting that, in the spring of 1813 was already on the wall, and to speak with confident and penetrating prescience about the results that were to follow the splendid failure of the Russian campaign of 1812, the slow-but sure sweep of Wellington's Peninsular army, the revival of the hitherto craven spirit of Prussia, and the determination of the Czar to be revenged upon the faithless French ally, who had fascinated and betrayed him. But in April 1813, these results were far from certain. No man knew that the resurrection of Prussia was a real and determined national movement, or that the new Prussian levies would fight better than the army which had been ignominiously crushed at Jena. No man could be certain about what the idealistic Czar might do, or what new imaginings might deflect his wayward energies from the path of loyalty and victory. None could tell that the long continued hesitation of Austria would finally place the empire ruled by Napoleon's father-in-law in the ranks of his opponents. Above all, no one could be sure that the power and genius of French militarism, which had already triumphed over so many conditions, would not be victorious over this new combination, the loyalty of whose members was not a little dubious.

And at first it seemed as if the pessimists were right. Even after Leipsitz, and when Wellington's army was on French soil, the allies were so uncertain about the future that they offered terms by which Napoleon would have continued to rule a French Empire, which was bounded by the Rhine. From the early summer until February 1814, Napoleon continued to be victorious, and it was not until March that the Allies entered Paris, and Napoleon had only one step left to take, when his army failed him.

History never repeats itself, and the conditions of 1813-4 were widely different from those of 1918, but there are certain points of possible similarity in the position of French militarism then and German militarism now. The drain upon the manhood of France had been enormous, but it seemed for long as if it made no difference, and as if the emperor had an inexhaustible reservoir upon which to draw. Exhaustion was long delayed, but the results of exhaustion were felt at last, and once they became apparent, disaster followed with no halting steps. In 1813 the recruits of the French Army were the boys who should not have been summoned to the ranks until 1815, and in the following year, Napoleon had to depend upon men who were too old to fight well. Military despotism, at first welcomed because of its efficiency, and then applauded because of its success had come to be tolerated because of the difficulty of escaping from it, and when the fortunes of war afforded a chance of escape, the disciplined army of the greatest of all soldiers availed itself of the opportunity. The French Armies could endure no more fighting in 1814, though a year of bad government was, later on, to give Napoleon another chance. The French people, long deceived, came at length to realize that they were engaged, not in a defensive, but in an offensive war, and that their sacrifice was being made on the altar, not of patriotism, but of ambition. A demand for the substitution of democratic control for military autocracy spread gradually through the nation and found a voice in the Legislative Assembly, the dissolution of which did not stifle the demand. France itself came to understand that in the destruction of her militarism lay the hope of her freedom, and her happiness.

It is possible that some such conditions in Germany will lighten the task of the allies in 1918. We know that in spite of the possible temporary removal of all efficient troops from the Russian front, German manpower today is much like French manpower in 1813, and that even if the Russian separate peace continues, the process of exhaustion will only be retarded, not arrested. We know that the seeds of discontent are being widely sown by the intolerable privations, which are the lot of every German civilian and that the opposition to the military clique is more widespread than it was a year ago, though its manifestations are neither bold nor open. We have every reason to believe that the army which in 1914 fought for victory, is held together today by terror and by the hope that a few more efforts will bring peace. Some day or other these things are bound to tell, for the vast resources which are placed on the side of the allies make it certain that the war will go on until they do tell. Who shall say that it is impossible that the present year will witness their operation?

ANECDOTES ABOUT SIR DOUGLAS HAIG

The present army in France is the creation of the man who for nine months fooled the most astute Boer commander in South Africa. Haig has always succeeded by staff work, and staff work in this war has saved more lives than have the tanks.

Douglas Haig has won the respect of the fighting soldier, as he has won the confidence of the thinking soldier. A very famous General who was a colleague of Haig's in the present war said of him—"He applies the virtues and the traditional vices of the Scot to the prosecution of the war. He is canny, he is cautious, he is economical to a point of niggardliness where the lives of men are concerned. He is contemptuous of uninformed criticism, and believes in God."

A man of decision himself, indecision in an officer is his bete noire.

"At what age does a General retire?" he was asked by a member of the Government.

"At the age he starts to think slowly and to doubt quickly," was his reply. "Look at Plumer. He thinks young all the time. Contrast him with —, whose mind was decrepit at forty."

He was once asked by an ex-member of the Government who was paying a visit to the front whether he preferred cavalry of infantry Generals.

"It is like asking me whether I prefer them fair or dark, short or tall," he replied. "One of the most efficient of my Generals was sitting in a business office in Canada when the war broke out."

He was referring of course to General Currie.

"Sir Douglas has the knack of thinking three months ahead," said one of his staff.

He was in London for a short visit in the autumn of 1916, so the club story goes, when a lady said to him—"When you have your big push next year I am going to send a big bunch of flowers to every field hospital in France to celebrate the event. What shall they be?"

He shook his head.

"If you send snowdrops you will know it is the early spring. If you send roses you will guess it is in the summer. Send laurels—they will be well earned."

Somebody once asked Sir Douglas Haig if he was not too cautious if he did not hesitate if there were risks. He replied, "It is not a question whether my reputation shall suffer or be enhanced. It is a question whether men are needlessly killed and maimed, whether the volume of sorrow which flows from this country to Britain shall be increased or restricted. You cannot be too safe under any circumstances, and in this war caution is not only desirable, it is one of the first principles of warfare."

Nothing Like Internal Bathing for Constipation

If people only knew what Internal Bathing is doing for thousands of others there would be fewer Pills and Laxatives swallowed and very much less suffering from Constipation and the accompanying Stomach and Nervous troubles resulting from it.

Mrs. Cave, 845 Elbert St., Victoria, B. C., writes:—

"Before using the 'J. B. L. Cascade' I suffered constantly from Constipation, had frequent bilious attacks and sick headaches. Since beginning your system of Internal Bathing with the 'J. B. L. Cascade' four months ago, I have not had one attack and feel stronger and better in every way. My only regret is that I did not get a Cascade sooner."

By the proper application of nature's cure, warm water, by means of the "J. B. L. Cascade" the lower intestines are kept free from all poisonous waste. Drugs force Nature. Internal Bathing assists her.

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, a specialist on Internal Bathing, invented and perfected the "J. B. L. Cascade," which has done more during the past 20 years in restoring health and lessening disease than all other means combined. Ask Cyril H. Orme, druggist, cor. 3rd Ave. and 6th St., for Booklet, "Why Man of Today is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient." He will also be pleased to show and explain the J. B. L. Cascade to you.
