Ottawa, February 22.--- Canada's capital today honored its reat dead worthily. There was tremendous dignity and solemnity the funeral cortege of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier which ormed a fitting climax to a life which has been as noble as those any of the great nations of the world, ancient or modern. This dignity made itself manifest not so much in the formal rrangements which had been made for the state funeral as in he grand spontaneity with which people flocked by thousands o pay a last tribute. Unquestionably this was the largest, grandst and noblest funeral that Canada has ever seen.

Crowded With Onlookers.

Almost every window and balcony in the spacious square herein Victoria Museum is situated was filled with onlookers. romptly at 10 o'clock arrangements for the departure of the ortege were complete, despite the complexity of having to make a procession composed of horse-drawn sleighs, for the streets Ottawa are deep in snow, and of scores of dignitaries of naonal societies, returned soldiers' societies and political bodies, losing with a vast unclassified stream of citizens from nearly all arts of the Domnion.

Invited Guests.

Specially invited guests included the Governor General and aff, General G. W. Atkin, representing H. R. H. the Duke of onnaught, lieutenant governors, archbishops and bishops, memers of the House of Commons with whom members of the Paramentary press gallery walked.

After the final absolution the body was taken to its last restplace in Notre Dame Cemetery.

Grand Trunk Officials From Winnipeg in Optimistic Mood Address Board of Trade.

Doing Everything possible to Develop Port as Its Interests and That of Railway are One.

The addresses of the Grand Trunk Railway officials who were here from Winnipeg and who addressed the Board of Trade in the council chamber yesterday afternoon, struck an optimistic note regarding the future of this port. The whole tone of their addresses was a realization of the fact that the interests of the city and railway were one and that the growth and prosperity of Prince Rupert was just as important to the railway as it was to the people living here.

Market in Orient.

After speaking of the fine address given by M. P. McCaffery at the railwaymen's convention recently in which the chairman of the local Board of Trade put Prince Rupert on the map so far as the railway is concerned, A. E. Rosevear, general freight agent for the G. T. P., said that last year was the biggest in the history of the railway in the matter of revenue. They were doing everything possible to develop. this port. They were looking to the development of the fishing. lumbering and mining and to the creation of a market in the Orient.
