Policy on The Pacific.

The policy towards each other of the nations which border on the great Pacific will be discussed during the coming autumn at a conference of all the nations particularly interested. There will doubtless be many matters brought up, and one will be the rights of citizens of one country to visit another or to travel in it or to settle in it. The right of Canadians in China may be challenged and of Japanese in Canada and the United States. The discussion will have to be carried on in a broad spirit of toleration and good will, but at the same time there must be no yielding on vital points. When the Japanese and Chinese adopt our standard of living and civilization there will be no very good reason for keeping them out, but for the present it looks as if it would be better for all concerned for the Oriental to remain in the Orient and the white man in the Occident. Travel and business should be allowed and students should have some rights, but any right to settle here indiscriminately on the part of either Chinese or Japanese should not at present be tolerated. We are in the formative period of our national life and we cannot afford to take any chances in regard to the building up of a nation with ideals and standards of living different from our own.

Another Election
On the Prairies.

There is to be another election on the prairies on Monday next. There was one candidate chosen by acclamation and he was the leader of the Liberal party. Almost every seat is being contested by a Liberal, and it is pretty good betting that the Liberals and farmers will be at the head of the polls when the count is taken. Whether or not the Liberals will have enough to carry on alone is not certain, but quite possible. The election of the leader by acclamation is a guide to what view the people of Alberta take of the Stewart Government.

All Eyes on London Tomorrow.

All eyes will be on London tomorrow when the Irish and British leaders meet to discuss the possibility of settling outstanding differences without resort to violence. All English-speaking people will have regretted the conditions which have obtained in Ireland during the past few years and especially during the past few months. It is the wish of everyone in Canada, we feel sure, that a settlement will be arrived at which will prevent a continuance of the unsatisfactory state of affairs which have existed there and that all bitterness may be wiped out in the future.

Protests at Lloyd George.

Several protests have been made against Lloyd George's attempt to warn the church off politics. The Bishop of Ghelmsford has on two occasions replied to the Premier. The church says the bishop has nothing to do with party politics, but it has everything to do with politics. The world was in its present state because of the divorce between politics and religion. The church had a right to speak on behalf of the downtrodden, the over-crowded, the sweated, the men and women huddled together almost like beasts and existing on a mere pittance. It was the duty of Christian people to see that the miners had fair play and were justly treated.

The province of the church was to proclaim the principles upon which political programs were based, and when those principles were violated by the government of the nation they could not remain silent. During the Boer War, when the British were burning the farmhouses in the Transvaal, and when Lloyd George was speaking at Limehouse, his great cry was that the church was too apathetic.

It was because the church wanted to create the right atmosphere in Ireland that they denounced the policy of reprisals, which was poisoning the atmosphere. The Prime Minister called upon them to denounce the work of the Sinn Feiners, and at the same time to cease to denounce the reprisals. "We cannot bow to his rulings," said the bishop, "because every Sinn Fein murder and every active reprisal only helps to widen the gulf which is separating the two nations."

BASKET PICNIC HUGE SUCCESS

Yesterday's Visit to Port Simpson was Very Enjoyable—Over 600 There.

The Orangemen's Picnic to Port Simpson yesterday proved in every way an unqualified success. A crowd, the size of which far exceeded the expectations of the committee in charge, went over and it is conservatively estimated that at least 600 were in attendance. Weather conditions were ideal for the event and the day spent in the quaint old Indian village was one that will be remembered by all for a long time to come. The people of Port Simpson were very hospitable and did everything in their power towards giving the visitors a good time and, of course, the Orangemen's own committee had matters well in hand and fun was provided for all.

It was just about noon when the picnickers arrived at Simpson to be greeted there by a committee of townsfolk who extended a welcome. The first matter to be given attention was the preparing of the mid-day lunch. Numerous camp fires were lit along the beach and the various groups ate with gusto after the three hour ride on the good ship Camosun.

As soon as lunch was over the sports commenced with a complete list of children's events and a thread and needle race for ladies.

Ball Games.

Then there was a football game between the Great War Veterans Band members and the married men which was won by the former by a score of 2 to 4. A baseball game then took place between the "Old Men" and the "Youngsters" resulting in a decisive victory for the latter by a score of 13 to 2. Such staid and solid citizens as S. M. Newton, Peter Black, George Delgarno, Sergt. S. L. Warrior, Jack Plint and J. Stewart made their appearance on the diamond and, although baseball skill may have been lacking, there was certainly lots of fun. The batteries in the baseball game were S. L. Warrior and Jack Print and Bert Kelly and Douglas Frizzell.

J. Day Bell was in charge of the sports' committee and handled matters well, refereeing both the baseball and football games. He was assisted by J. Plint, Bill Baker and C. Lemon.

Short Speeches.

Following the sport events, Deputy Master W. W. Wright introduced Mayor Rochester and Canon G. A. Rix to the merry-makers and both made short speeches, the latter in an especially humorous vein suiting the occasion. Photographs were then taken by R. E. Benson and about 5:30 the half hour whistle for the excursionists to return to the steamer blew. By 6 o'clock all were aboard again and the vessel pulled away from the dock.

Thirty-five tons of cable from New Jersey which was shipped through the Panama Canal recently arrived for the Premier Mine tramline.

Power was turned on last week for the first time at the Premier concentrating mill and the performance of the new plant is entirely satisfactory to the management. For a few days the machinery will be turned over slowly but later it will be able to handle the daily output of 100 tons for which it is intended.

ful events in the history of the order here.

The following were the winners of the races:

Small boys—1, S. Elkins; 2, B. Hill; 3, B. Lindsay.

Small girls—M. Morris, E. Morris and E. Davis.

Boys under 14—E. Green, E. Marsden and B. Strong.

C. R. DRAYTON OF TORONTO VISITING IN PRINCE RUPERT

Brother of Canadian Finance Minister Arrived in City on Prince Rupert Today.

C. R. Drayton, of Toronto, manager for Canada of the Union Insurance Society and the British Traders Insurance Co., two large British fire insurance firms, arrived in the city on the Prince Rupert today and will spend until tomorrow night here, when he will return south to Vancouver. Mr. Drayton is a brother of Sir Henry Drayton, the Canadian minister of finance, and is making a tour of the west on business in connection with his company. Accompanying him to Prince Rupert is C. R. Elderton, the manager for B.C. of the same companies.

Mr. Drayton expressed his pleasure at the appearance of Prince Rupert when seen by a news reporter shortly after debarking from the steamer. He declared it was the best appearing and best kept city of its size that he had seen in the province. It was his opinion that the era of temporary building here should be over and that now nothing but permanent fireproof structures should be allowed. Before he goes south Mr. Drayton hopes to enjoy a few hours bass fishing, he being an enthusiastic fisherman.

STEWART

A meeting of citizens of Stewart was held last week in the King Edward Hotel to decide upon some line of action that would materially help business conditions of the town. A committee was delegated to go thoroughly into the matter of obtaining a government liquor store and also to investigate the possibility of incorporation.

William Dunn, who recently took over the Stewart Hotel, is making alterations and improvements to the building.

It is now competently estimated that there are over five hundred men working in the Salmon River valley.

Thirty-five tons of cable from New Jersey which was shipped through the Panama Canal recently arrived for the Premier Mine tramline.

Power was turned on last week for the first time at the Premier concentrating mill and the performance of the new plant is entirely satisfactory to the management. For a few days the machinery will be turned over slowly but later it will be able to handle the daily output of 100 tons for which it is intended.

MAN DISCUSSES WOMEN'S DRESS

London Writer Discourses on Short Skirts, and Indecorous Attire.

By James Douglas (in London Opinion.)

In cricket there is a stroke known as a leg glance, and we all hope that there will be plenty of leg glances while England is batting in the second Test match. But it is only fair to warn you that this is not an essay upon leg glances in the cricket field. On the contrary it is an essay on the other variety of leg glances, the sort that too often lead to the wariest male being bowled over or stumped before he knows where he is. It appears that a stern boycott has been declared by thirty young men against the short skirt. These revolting puritans are members of the Congregational Church of Evanston, Illinois. They have sworn a solemn oath to ostracize girls who wear short skirts. The oath binds them never to speak to any girl whose skirt reveals her limbs. It also binds them never to walk with any maiden whose garb is excessively succinct.

Fantastic Priggishness.

It may seem a piece of fantastic priggishness and prudery on the part of these heroic young Galahads to wage war upon the follies of feminine fashion, but I suspect that they have been driven to resort to desperate measures by the natural instinct of self-preservation. They have embarked upon a defensive war. They are fighting for their own peace of mind. It is probable that the Eyes of Evanston are lovelier than their sisters in other towns of Illinois. The Adams of Evanston have been too sorely tried by the silken seductiveness of these little sirens. Their stoical patience has been exhausted by years of trial and temptation. Doubtless, they have endeavored to avert the eye of virtue from the ankle of frivolity. They have held their heads high and have gazed at the scandalized sky or the embarrassed sky-scraper until they have become hopelessly stiff-necked. They have looked the other way until they have developed permanent squints. They are weary of the hopeless struggle between masculine modesty and feminine audacity.

Modesty of Man.

The truth is that the modesty of man far exceeds the modesty of woman. No vagary of fashion could persuade or compel a man to wear shorts at a dinner party, or to sit in a theatre with his back bare to the waist. It would be impossible to induce a middle-aged man to appear as scantily clad as his wife or his mother-in-law. He would die rather than display his shoulder blades to the shuddering gaze of the pit and the gallery. No power on earth could force him to wear shoulder-straps instead of braces. It may be urged that a man in a low-cut booted shirt would be an affrighting spectacle, but what could be more appalling than an obese matron whose bulging shoulders excite public derision? Women are not cowed or daunted by the fact that they are ugly or hideous. They possess the power of defying public ridicule and ignoring public opinion. Their courage does not decline with advancing years. Their hardihood increases rather than diminishes with the weight of age. They see themselves as no others see them. No lag believer she is haggard.

Legacy of War.

The short skirt is a legacy of the war. It is a sign of the times. It is an emblem of the moral anarchy which is raging in literature as well as in life. The modern world has suddenly lost all its fixed principles and established beliefs. It has dragged all its anchors and it is drifting in a gale of violent chance across a stormy sea of force and fraud. The foundations of society are sinking in a swamp of cynicism. All the old sanctions and reverencies and reticencies are gone. The general disintegration of morality is reflected in the mirror of feminine fashion. Some obscure instinct impels womanhood to parody the spirit of the age in her attire. The world is mad and woman caricatures its madness.

Rivalry of Sex.

The short skirt is a feverish expression of the exacerbated rivalry of women in the battle of sex. There are more women than men in our devastated world. There are not enough men to go round. The chances of marriage are greatly lessened for all women, for the times are too hard to make matrimony other than a desperate adventure for a very large proportion of young men. The cost of living is too high, and salaries and wages are too low to encourage young men to face the ordeal of providing sustenance for a wife and family. Moreover, women are more extravagant than of old. They demand luxuries which are beyond the means of the harassed bachelor. Never was woman more expensive in her tastes and in her caprices.

Killed Sirens.

In order to attract the reluctant adoration of the impeccably male the maiden of the moment strips herself for battle like a mad maenad. She forgets that familiarity breeds contempt, and that contempt breeds indifference. Man is a creature who quickly adapts himself to his environment. A few years ago our killed sirens would provoke a smile or a sneer. Often they elicit pity rather than disgust, for there is hardly anything more pathetic than the futile attempt of a respectable young woman who endeavors to combine a demure mien with an indecorous frock, a modest manner with a skirt that hardly covers the knees. She may be a great deal better than she seems to be, but her wanton effrontery and her flaunted charms take the bloom off her innocent cheek. The daring subtlety of woman may carry off the paradox which she presents to the unsophisticated masculine eye. She may rebuke the stare which she invites and frown upon the irreverence which she provokes. The hoyden in short may affect the icy demeanor of cloistered virtue but she has only herself to blame if her airs are suspect and her graces are disbelieved.

Indecorum a Drug.

How on earth can a young man go down on his knees to a girl who vies with the undraped siren of the ballet? Romance is not compatible with irreverence and chivalry is not consistent with disrespect. When a man rises from his knees he goes away. It is a curious commentary upon the manners of our time that the stage enjoys no longer a monopoly of license. Indeed, it finds that indecorum has become a drug on the market and vainly endeavors to compete with the blackeyes of the pavement and the diaphanous contours of the street.

You Can't Beat 'Em.

An Irishman came into the office of the president of the Illinois Central Railroad and said:

"Me name's Casey. Ol' worruk out th' yar-uds. Ol'd look a pass to St. Louis."

"That is no way to ask for a pass," said the president. "You should introduce yourself politely. Come back in an hour and try again."

At the end of the day back came the Irishman. Doffing his hat, he inquired, "Are yez the man I saw before?"

"I am."

"Me name is Patrick Casey. Ol've been workin' out in the yar-uds."

"Glad to know you Mr. Casey. What can I do for you?"

"Ol've got a job an' pass to St. Louis on th' Wabash. Yez can go to hell."

Law Defined.

At a recent bar examination a candidate defined law as follows:

"Law is the means by which we acquire legal possession of property belonging to another."
