Minister Explains
Farm Problems and General Questions

Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, federal minister of agriculture, dealt largely with agricultural matters, although he spoke on general conditions and the dry dock situation on the coast in his address at the Northern B. C. Agricultural and Industrial Association's banquet on Saturday night. His speech was interesting and enlightening and showed that he had the business of his department well under hand and is well versed on the situation.

Referring to the Asiatic question, Dr. Tolmie stated that it was certain that if the immigration was not soon checked the

In British Columbia there were already twelve observation stations, six of these in Northern B. C. There were three experimental farms, at Agassiz, Invermere and Sydenham. The farm in the north could be established as soon as funds were available.

Drydocks.

Dr. Tolmie agreed that it was necessary to practice economy in the government now. However, he was too firm a believer in Canada's future to think that all the debt would be paid up by economy alone. Just recently he had had a big fight to get the dry dock at Esquimalt. He did not think that there would be too many dry docks on the coast.

As far as the railway situation was concerned, there were many things that the government would like to do but on account of the shortage of funds was prevented from doing. In 1914, the national debt had been $330,000,000. Now, after the war, it was $2,500,000,000. Even in his own department, he had been unable to get an experimental farm for Central B. C. This would have been established two years ago had the funds been available.

Dairying Question.

In Canada, there was $7,000,000,000 invested in agriculture and but 25 per cent of the lands had been put under the plow. Of the 10,000,000 cattle in the Dominion, 3,500,000 were dairy cows. The minister went at some length and detail into the dairying question, referring to the work of the government in checking diseases and other matters. He urged that the farmers strive for greater production. The farmer who was contented with an average cow with a production of 4,000 pounds of milk per year would do little better than make a living. Those who had cows producing 7,000 pounds or more would make good profits.

To improve the quantity and production of better stock, the Government had evolved a scheme whereby a pure bred sire was provided for every community of ten or more farmers. This bull was shipped to the station and all that was required was that the farmers take care of him.

Beef Situation.

As far as the beef situation was concerned, it would not improve until the markets improved. On account of the high tariff to the United States, the British market was being looked to. The embargo on cattle was on a fair way to being lifted. The minister described fully the history of the embargo stating that it had been put on on account of a fallacy. Interests in Great Britain were now urging that it be lifted. There was no reason to be alarmed about the present beef situation for similar conditions had occurred before. Sheep, swine and poultry matters were touched on.

Speaking of the experimental farm, Dr. Tolmie stated that the farmers did not need to wait until this was established in the district but could apply for advice to farms already established where conditions were similar.

Let Us All
Talk Politics.

This is the time when everyone should talk politics. On Saturday night there was an interesting political gathering, and contrary to general usage there was a jolly good time with it all.

Politics is the science of government, and on Saturday night at the banquet the speakers discussed government. The mover of the toast to the Dominion of Canada and the guests of the evening reviewed the political life of the past and spoke of some of the political problems of the present. It was a purely political speech, although not a party speech. In reply, Hon. S. F. Tolmie, the principal guest of the evening, spoke at length on the work of his department and also dealt briefly with the matter of drydocks, both of which are political questions. The only difference between Dr. Tolmie's address and the ordinary political address was that at the conclusion there was no disparaging the work of the other party and no request for support for his own party on its record or its promises. It was putting politics on a high plane and everyone enjoyed it.

Fred Stork, the nominee of the Liberals in this constituency, entered nobly into the spirit of the occasion and said some nice things about the minister of agriculture. The spirit of the evening showed a breaking away from the old idea of political life which has made the very word "politics" to stink in the nostrils of decent men.

All the speakers were happy in their references, and most of the addresses were replete with humor. The whole entertainment was pleasing and the Agricultural Association, of which George Munro is president, may be congratulated on the success which attended its efforts.

Let Us Talk
Politics More.

But let us talk politics more. Let us all follow the example of Dr. Tolmie and the others and delve into the past and look forward to the future in regard to public questions. The only way we can educate ourselves on matters of government is to read about them and discuss them. All public questions are political questions. We may not discuss them from the party standpoint, for that would be party politics, and is something that is likely to lead to rancor, for party politics are tinged with prejudices. There are always a few people who are Liberal just because it is their party or Conservative for a similar reason. To rigidly adhere to a party for the sake of party is to stultify oneself. The boast of the man who says he has never yet voted anything but Liberal or anything but Conservative is nothing to his credit. It tends to show that he is hidebound.

Campaign Will Soon
Be in Full Swing.

The political campaign will soon be in full swing and people will be thinking about matters of government. They will be discussing parties and candidates and promises and political histories. The advice we give them is to search carefully and look warily. To forget party organizations and vote for the policies and the leaders they think will be of most benefit to the country.

There is so far only one man in the field, but it is to be expected that there will be at least one more. It is important that the man chosen should be above suspicion, but it is also equally important that the leader he supports is the man who can be trusted and that the policies to which the leader is pledged are those the country needs. When a man is sent to Ottawa we want to know what he is going to do. We already know that if Fred Stork is sent there he will support the Liberal party as led by W. L. Mackenzie King and will help carry out the policies laid down by the last Liberal convention, which was representative of the Liberals of the Dominion. If a Conservative is chosen he will support the policies of Premier Meighen, which have recently been published and which include high protection for the eastern manufacturer. In voting at the forthcoming election the chief thing to consider is the policy promulgated and the ability of the leader to carry out that policy.

BUILDING ON WRONG LOTS

Several Interesting Discoveries
Brought to Light—Sometimes Are Expensive and Inconvenient.

Several interesting cases have been brought to light lately of where people, through imperfect surveys or no surveys at all have erected buildings in the city on someone else's property when they thought they were building on their own. In some cases the discoveries have necessitated heavy expenditure in buying adjacent property or in the shifting of buildings. Sales have been inconvenienced or even prevented by the same cause.

One case in point was the residence on Fifth Avenue East, formerly owned by J. A. Kirkpatrick. A deal for the sale of this house and lot was pending but just about the time it was to have been consummated it was found that the house projected for two feet on the neighboring lot owned by George Abbott who planned himself to build a house on it. Mr. Abbott's lot had to be bought before the deal for the sale of the Kirkpatrick residence could go through.

Curious Instance.

Another interesting case was that of a house in the east end of town near Seal Cove. The owner of this house planned leaving the city for Italy and had closed a deal for its sale. It was to be moved and placed on another lot. When the new owner went out to the specified block he could find no house. Excitedly, he went to the vendor to find out where the house he bought had gone. He was shown and it was then discovered that the original owner had built his house on the right lot number in the wrong block. The owner of the lot where the house had been built, was not a resident of the city and he likely will never know that he had a house on his lot for a number of years. The deal went through and the house was moved.

MARRIED HAPPINESS
LASTED ONLY WEEK

VANCOUVER, Oct. 10.—Wedded a week, parted by mutual consent, seeking divorce because they "desecrated love by a mistake"—this is the broken romance of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Spaulding-Sears, college classmates in philosophy. They were married upon eugenic principles two months ago and gave it up after a week's trial. Now they seek divorce as "platonic friends."

PREDICTS B. C. DRY.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 10.—British Columbia will be bone dry in less than four years. There will be an anti-cigarette law in effect and the Sabbath laws will be enforced, even to stoppage of street cars and soda fountains." This is the prediction of the Rev. Paul Mason, head of the Anti-Vice League of the United States, now visiting this province.
