Peck Government Candidate.

"Evidently Col. Peck is not a believer in any party. I would suggest that his independence is hardly a case of choice but rather of necessity. He knows perfectly well that the government has lost the confidence of the people and that it would be a handicap to him to appear under that banner. I venture to say, however, that he is being supported by the supporters of the Meighen administration and to all intents and purposes is the government candidate. If the people want to see things accomplished for their district they must determine two things. First they must decide what party is likely to be successful and secondly, what candidate is likely to be the more effective force in the advancement of the constituency and the country as a whole. State government is not obtained by falling in with one party or another after election. History does not show where an independent candidate at an election has held any other position than that of 'no man's land.' Prince Rupert will make a mistake if she should think that she will get 100 per cent representation if Col. Peck is elected. She would not get 50 percent representation perhaps not 25 percent.

Waiting to Be Buried.

"It is true that the people are getting away from straight party voting. They are now beginning to think what party will promote their best interests. Prince Rupert should join with the rest of the provinces of Canada in turning out the National Liberal and Conservative government, the Tory government, a government that is dead and is only waiting to be buried. The present government is a Conservative government by instinct and policies. It is like a joint stock company in which Conservatives hold all but two percent of the stock. It is Conservative pure and simple and is masking under the guise of Unionist. Where do you think they are going to get the members to be returned to power. Even Hon. H. H. Stevens, of Vancouver, admits defeat when he says that they are sure of a total of 112 seats out of the 235. The Liberals are going to have the majority in the next house, the Farmers' are going to be second and the government will be third horse. There is nothing but defeat, utter defeat, in store as is shown by the result of the 20 by-elections held since May, 1920 when the government candidates were utterly defeated in thirteen. Why then waste a good member in a fruitless four years of work?"

Census Excuse.

Mr. Macdonald then went on to deal with the government's attitude as to an election. A year ago Mr. King had called for a dissolution and at that time Mr. Meighen had shown no intention of having one. He had said that it would be unfair until after the taking of the census and the passing of a Redistribution Bill. There would have to be another session when that Bill would be presented and the West would get its fair representation. But that intention had not been carried out for the government had found that, as a result of the by-elections, it would no longer be able to function.

The return of the government now was beyond the range of possibilities and the people had a right to govern themselves accordingly. They should not miss the opportunity.

The great issue, they say, is the tariff. Everybody knows that it is a protectionist government but that made no difference at the by-elections. Canada has had some experience with the tariff policy of the Liberals and she is not getting excited at the predictions of ruination that will result if they are returned. W. S. Fielding was the minister of finance under Sir Wilfrid Laurier before 1911 and he will be minister of finance again under Mr. King. He has said so. Under Mr. Fielding the country had a sagacious tariff policy and fifteen golden years of prosperity. In his regime there were two tariff revisions and wise immigration policies. Since 1911 they had practically disappeared. It is nonsense to say that the return of the Liberals will be ruinous.

Difference in Policies.

"What is the Liberal tariff policy? Even the Conservatives say that the policies are identical. The Liberal policy of the past aimed to reduce the cost of the necessities of life and increase the cost of luxuries. It was the Liberals who introduced the British preferential tariff. Then the Conservatives prate of loyalty as if it was confined to one party. They flaunt the flag when every one of them cast their votes against the British preferential tariff.

"This issue will not bring them support. They never tackled the problem of tariff revision. The people know what Fielding did but they do not know what Drayton is going to do. They do know that as far as taxation is concerned he is a hopeless blunderer as local merchants well know."

Mr. Macdonald said that the country was being misled by the impression that the Fordney Bill was already law in the United States. It had been passed by the House of Representatives but had been shelved by the Senate. The Young Emergency Bill had been put in force in May and had had a serious effect on the importation of cattle from Canada but the removal of the embargo by Britain would make up for both it and the Fordney Bill if it was passed. No apprehensions were necessary here.

A greater issue than the Tariff is the railway question, declared Mr. Macdonald. Unless the people were familiar with it they could not cast their votes intelligently. By the acquisition of 22,000 miles of railway in the Canadian National lines there had been saddled upon the country a burden, the outcome of which it was impossible to foresee. The deficit of this railway would amount to twice as much as the customs revenue. The income taxes, the business taxes and the customs duties could be put in the maw of this great deficit and still more would be needed. The annual deficit when all was counted in would possibly be $150,000,000 and customs collections amounted to but $75,000,000. The railway question had not been properly handled.

Breach of Faith.

In 1919 there had been a special session of parliament called to consider the Treaty of Versailles. Col. Peck, he believed, (Continued on Page Two)

A delegation from the Russian Relief Committee headed by J. Stevenson met the Trades and Labor Council at the regular meeting on Tuesday night asking assistance in the raising of funds. It was decided to endorse the movement and a committee is to be selected to cooperate in the work.

These questionnaires are to be handled by the local committees who will present them to the candidates.

The matter of a dental clinic at the new school was also touched upon and it was decided to remind the school board of the proposal of a year ago when it was suggested to establish a clinic each dentist giving services. The advisability of employing a trained nurse to assist in this work as well as in the general physical examination of the children is also to be pressed upon the school board.

Against It Last Night and Wired Pattullo.

At a meeting of the council of the Board of Trade last night a resolution was passed putting the Prince Rupert Board of Trade on record as being against any tax for personal property, either provincial or municipal, as it would be inequitable. A wire to this effect was sent to Hon. T. D. Pattullo, member for the district.

A wire from Mr. Pattullo was read in which it was explained that this proposal had not yet been placed before the house. It had been suggested that the municipalities be given authority to collect up to one per cent on personal property as a personal tax. The government would collect no personal tax but would continue the income tax.

MAJOR BURDE TO VOTE FOR GOVERNMENT

Says Will Not Support Vote of Want of Confidence—Barrage of Opposition.

VICTORIA, October 27.—Continuing the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, a steady little barrage of small guns was kept in action yesterday against the Provincial Government without damaging the fortifications or injuring the morale of the troops.

Major R. J. Burde, editor of Alberni's little weekly paper, led off by urging that the Premier clear the atmosphere of the charges made against it and clear the public mind. He stated that he would vote for the Government if the opposition introduced a vote of want of confidence for political purposes. He criticized Hon. Mary Ellen Smith for deserting the independent cause and suggested that expenditure on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway should stop.

In the course of a criticism of the Government, J. W. Jones, Conservative member for South Okanagan also suggested that the Government was not compelled to complete the P. G. E.

was at this session. The railway question had been suddenly introduced and the load had been placed on the people of Canada. The government had no mandate to do this particular piece of work, and should have consulted the people. This had been done after the ministers had solemnly stated that they would no longer continue to function after the peace. They had been guilty of a breach of faith and it was no wonder that their support was scarce now. Their excuse was that the system had been in financial difficulties but this would have not been the first time that the government would have had to come to its aid with a loan.

The opposition under Mr. King had protested against the acquisition of the road without first consulting the people and Mr. Fielding had moved an amendment that the matter be left over until a committee investigated it. This had been voted down and the government had said that it had been sufficiently investigated. The only investigation was that of the Drayton-Ackworth commission in 1917, two years before the acquisition. Guarantees as to stock had been made that offered great opportunities for speculation which, no doubt, had been taken advantage of. It was not government ownership of railways of which such a beautiful picture had been painted—it was government ownership of liabilities.

Rupert Blacklisted.

But the road had been acquired and now it must be efficiently managed. Had the present management been a success? All knew that, as far as the Grand Trunk Pacific and Prince Rupert were concerned, they had been blacklisted. The dry dock had lain idle for years and transportation had been diverted from Prince Rupert and given to other lines. A deliberate attempt had been made to handicap the G. T. P. and Prince Rupert.

The government said that the people had no right to information as to the operating of the road. When the opposition had asked for information as to the operating of the system they had been voted down. Directors of the Canadian National Railways had been allowed to continue their private businesses. All but two of them were big interest men and their duties and interests conflicted. Even the accounts of the system were not subject to the examination of the Auditor General and his department.

So far as British Columbia was concerned the G. T. P. must be re-established. There must be development of trade routes and Prince Rupert must get its again Premier Meighen, then Minister of the Interior, had refused to consider in spite of the fact that all the premiers who met at that time with the Government had favored it. He had shown that he was no friend of British Columbia.

Oriental Exclusion.

Something would have to be done regarding the exclusion of Orientals unless the province was to become like the island of Hawaii, where ten per cent of voting strength was held by Orientals. The federal government had extended the franchise to returned Japanese soldiers, while the B. C. Legislature had refused it. Absolute exclusion should from now on be insisted upon and the East would have to be impressed. He recognized Japan and China as great trade markets and he did not wish to hurt the feelings of the people of those nations. There should be no attempt at assimilation, however; Japan would recognize that herself. He was not speaking as an alarmist, but he was convinced that the white race would not be able to hold its footing with the yellow if something was not done immediately towards their exclusion.

"If you believe that the Liberals are going to be returned and you wish to be represented with a strong voice in the front ranks of the Government and not with a whisper, then vote for Fred Stork on December 6," concluded the speaker.

F. G. Congdon

Mr. Congdon spoke in a pleasant, fluent and humorous vein, but his address was none the less forceful and convincing than Mr. Macdonald's. The ambition of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to make a great city of Prince Rupert had been shattered with the return of the Conservatives in 1911. If the Liberals were returned there would be a prosperous city here, a fitting memorial to the great Sir Wilfrid. It was necessary that the Liberals should be returned for the good of Canada.

"People must think of their own interests. There is no use of distinguishing that any more. The problems must be solved, and to do so British Columbia should have thirteen representatives in sympathy with the Government. It is better to have one in sympathy with the Government than to have one who would give but fifty or twenty-five per cent representation."

Take Over P. G. E.

The province had a railway problem of its own in the Pacific Great Eastern. He would favor this becoming a part of the Canadian National system. They could succeed to this end, he thought, if they had solid representation. It had been taken up with Premier Meighen but he had refused to consider it despite that it had been done for the Valley Railroad in New Brunswick and a Quebec road. Perhaps in time the P.G.E. would pay, but it might be thirty years. As it was the burden was too large for the province. The line should be extended to the Peace River Valley.

Mr. Macdonald, in speaking of freight rates, said that the discrimination against B. C. must be discontinued and it could only be done by legislation. The large blocks of land in the Peace River Valley and other parts of the province should be restored to the people. The Government had been asked to do this two years ago, but could not be trusted. This gov-

Likely Be Ashamed.

Col. Peck was doing politically what a man would be shot for in military life. The idea of going from one battalion and standing between two to see which one might win before joining it. When he reconsidered his position he would likely be ashamed of it.

Premier Meighen would have the people indict him on but one issue. This should not be done. The government should be judged on all issues. An attempt should be made at this election to obtain a better form of democracy. Democracy could not succeed when the government could not be trusted.

The Man of the Hour

In this hour of Canada's most acute national crisis, the country's greatest need is leadership—not class leadership, not sectional leadership, but NATIONAL leadership. A pilot must be chosen possessing the necessary courage, foresight, breadth of vision and determination to lead the nation safely out of the existing economic uncertainty.

And one man stands out head and shoulders above all others as pre-eminently fitted for the task.

Born on a farm near St. Mary's, Ontario, Arthur Meighen is a true son of the people, a toiler who has fought his way to eminence by sheer ability, and force of intellect. Entered Parliament in 1908; appointed Solicitor General in 1914; Minister of the Interior in 1917; and Prime Minister in 1920.

At the Imperial Conference he was acclaimed by the Press of Great Britain as a great statesman, as a strong, virile, vigorous personality—alert in mind, keen and far-seeing in judgment, and with a fearless determination to stand for the right.

Professor A. D. Skelton of Queen's University, and biographer of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, wrote of the present Prime Minister:—"He has already given proof of high administrative capacity. His personal integrity is beyond question."

Of himself Arthur Meighen said to his constituents the other day:—"You know where I stood on this issue in 1908, in 1911, and as in 1911 I stand today."

overnment had violated the fundamental principles of British constitution and was not worthy of confidence. If there had not been an election in 1917 then why had they not waited until after the passing of redistribution? It was because they were afraid to go to the House on account of the disclosures that might be made in connection with railways. They were afraid that their power in Ontario would be gobble up with the transferring of thirteen seats from the East to the West.

Back to Economy.

He had come to the conclusion that no government that had been in power during a war period should continue into peace times. It would undoubtedly be extravagant and autocratic. The country now wanted to get back to economy by turning the Meighen administration out. If ever there was a time for an Anti-Waste campaign it was now. No endeavor had been made by the government to economize.

Mr. Congdon dealt at length with the tariff policies showing where protection was not to the best interests of the people. If had no tendency to reduce prices but had exactly the opposite effect. Free trade would bring about competition that would bring prices down. The people should not be fooled by this tariff cry.

If the people remembered the sins of the government they would vote it down solidly between here and Lake Superior.

The railway question was also dealt with by Mr. Congdon. The Canadian National was run on

Aunt Jemima's Helpful Hints

Aunt Jemima will answer any questions sent in by readers of The Daily News.

Prospective Bride writes—I'm about to get married, but object to giving up my name.
Why does a girl have to take a man's name when she marries him?

Ah, dearie, that is one of the vagaries of marriage. She takes her husband's name for the same reason that she takes everything else that he has.

Mrs. Popkins—A ring around the moon is a sign of rain. And a ring around a woman's finger is a sign of reign sometimes.

Dear Aunt Jemima—We named our baby Obadiah Hezekiah after his grand-uncle who said the child would inherit his money. But now the old gentleman has gone broke buying mining stocks. Can we change the name? Yours truly,

MR. and MRS. BEEDLETTIP.

Answer—That is too bad, my dears. Bul cheer up. Maybe the boy will make a name for himself, when he grows up.

STOCK SELLERS FIND CLIMATE TOO WARM
TO STAY IN PROVINCE

VANCOUVER, Oct. 26.—Promoters for an American automobile factory have changed their mind about exploiting their enterprise here, following warning issued by the authorities of Chicago. It was stated the principals have been in trouble with the blue sky laws several times. It was announced that they would start a factory for turning out cheap, strong cars of the "flivver" type. Local investors were offered places on the directorate. The promoters, however, departed before they had opportunity to sell any stock here.

The authorities of Vancouver and Victoria are "getting after" wild catting projects, and the newspapers are careful about accepting dubious promotion stock advertising. There has been an exodus of the stock salesmen lately. With few exceptions, they were Americans.

CONVENTION AT PORT ARTHUR

James M. Campbell the Local Delegates, Tells About Proceedings.

Amalgamation of returned soldier bodies in Canada was the most important business taken up at the Dominion convention at Port Arthur from which J. M. Campbell, the local delegate returned yesterday. It was a very successful convention and there were 130 delegates present from all parts of Canada between Prince Edward Island and Prince Rupert.

On the opening day there were several prominent persons in attendance, among these being Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, of Fort William, minister of Soldiers' civil re-establishment in the new Dominion cabinet, Mayor Matthews, of Port Arthur as well as the delegates from the returned soldier bodies with which it was proposed to amalgamate including the Army and Navy Veterans, G.A.V., and Imperial Veterans. There was also a delegation present from the American Legion of the United States. Complimentary speeches and addresses of welcome were made to which President Maxwell replied.

The first business was the election of officers and the slating of committees. J. M. Campbell, the local delegate, was appointed to the procedure committee and was also made the whip for B. C. delegates.

B. C. Gets Point.

At the caucus of B. C. delegates the line of action for amalgamation was taken up. The western men were all strong for this and they framed a resolution which they presented to the convention on Tuesday asking that amalgamation be the first order of business and that it be continued until some definite action was taken. The convention seemed to think that B. C. was a little strong for amalgamation and did not want to give in but the delegates from the province stuck to their guns until the point was carried. President Maxwell reported that out and out amalgamation would not be feasible right now but he suggested that a federation might be formed with a view to ultimate amalgamation. This scheme was endorsed and the executive was instructed to go ahead and draw its plans for federation. The delegates from the outside bodies did not have mandate but will be asked later to submit the feelings and proposals of their memberships.

Matters of re-establishment were taken, the most important business being the passing of a resolution asking the government to increase widows' pensions to $75 per month, first child, $20, second child, $15, third and all others, $12. The unemployment question was also taken up.

Invited to Paris.

In the course of the convention days, the city of Port Arthur entertained the delegates at a banquet in the Prince Arthur Hotel. Madame Buerin, the "poppy lady," who is making arrangements in Canada for the selling of poppies on Armistice Day, was present at this convention. She spoke appreciatively of the Great War Veterans and the Canadian soldiers generally and invited the association to hold its 1925 convention in Paris. "We will not only give you the freedom of the city," she said, "but we will also give you the freedom of our wine cellars."

There were various other social and entertainment functions for the visitors which included a drive around the twin cities and entertainments and dances in the Port Arthur Armory and the Fort William club rooms.

Mr. Campbell did not stay till the end of the convention but left Port Arthur on Friday for the coast in company with Ian MacKenzie, M.L.A., a Vancouver delegate. There he met Mrs. Campbell and they returned home together.

Nervous Breakdown

The extreme depression and discouragement which comes over one at times is the most alarming symptom of nervous exhaustion.

This letter is a message of hope to all who find themselves in this unfortunate condition.

Mrs. Geo. T. Tingley, Albert, N.B., writes:

"For years I was in a very nervous run-down condition, was much depressed in spirit and suffered a great deal at times. The least noise would irritate me and at times I felt as though I certainly would go crazy. I consulted different doctors to no effect.

"A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and I can truly testify today to the great benefit received. There was a marked change before I had finished the second box and when I had used a dozen boxes my nerves were thoroughly restored and I was entirely relieved of those terrible feelings I used to have. I shall ever be ready to testify to the benefits of this wonderful medicine, feeling sure that it will give to others the quick and permanent relief it has given me."

shores of Woodworth Lake where the city water dam is to be built.

Local contractors are to enter suit against the city on the ground that deductions from their street contracts due to delay in execution are unfair. They claim that the city council failed to provide police protection during strikes and thus the work was held up.

According to census reports issued at Ottawa, British Columbia should receive thirteen members in the Redistribution Bill.

has entered. As a soldier and a citizen I pay wholehearted tribute to his ability. I want no mud-slinging and there will be none from me."

Sets Colonel Right.

Mr. Stork then went on to read from Hansard in regard to a statement that had been made by Colonel Peck in regard to the establishment of returned men in the fisheries. It was true that he had moved a bill to this effect and it had been seconded by Mr. Turgeon and supported by Mr. Duff and Dr. Chisholm. He neglected to say that the Prime Minister had not wanted it and that the Colonel had withdrawn it in compliance with Sir Robert Borden's wishes.

Mr. Stork said he would not commit himself to achieving much as far as the Oriental question was concerned, but he was persuaded that they were surely gaining control in the best province of the Dominion. He was absolutely and unalterably opposed to another single one entering the Dominion and he would use his voice and vote towards preventing it. He would stand ready at all times to close the door of B. C. and the Dominion to them. He was glad that Mr. Meighen was fairly before the people. He had stood godfather to the Closure Bill which had prevented free speech in the House of Commons. He had also been the mechanic who had framed the Wartimes Election Act which had insulted immigrants when British equality and justice had been promised them.

"We expect from what we hear and see to have a new government on December 7 with W. L. Mackenzie King as Premier and myself, I hope, as representative here, assisting and supporting his government."

W. E. Williams was chairman of the meeting. He gave credit to Colonel Peck for his attainments at Ottawa in the past, but felt that the Liberal government was the thing for Canada now and for Prince Rupert especially.
