What About Future of Local Industry?

What about the future of the shipbuilding industry in this city? Two fine vessels have been almost completed and one of them is loaded and all ready for her first voyage to Australia and New Zealand. The other was launched yesterday and is very nearly finished.

Owing to the depression of business and industry everywhere, there are at present no more contracts offering and not much repair work. The result is that the possibility presents itself of the local shipyard being closed.

The Wallace Shipbuilding and Drydock Company Limited announces that it has made an offer to the Canadian National Railways for a lease of the plant for a term of years. Not being familiar with the terms of the offer it is impossible to comment on it except to say that any steps the railway company or the Dominion Government may take which would insure the continued operation of the shipyards and repair shops would be appreciated by the people of this city. The Wallace Company has shown by the way they have completed the ships that they know how to handle a big work. They are the people who would be likely to build up a permanent industry that would be of great benefit to the city and to the whole of Canada. From a naval point of view as well as from a business point of view it is highly desirable that the shipyard be operated and that it be conducted in such a way as to be of real service to the shipping interests of the coast.

Darwinism Still Established Theory.

Dr. D. H. Scott remarked to the botanists at the Edinburgh meeting of the British Association that "the Darwinian period was past, that all again was in the melting-pot," says the London Times. Such a statement may not be misinterpreted by those who are able to follow the technical controversies of biological science; but it is apt to mislead the public, who do not distinguish between theories of evolution and evolution itself. Even Dr. Scott admitted that "evolution remained, for there was no alternative, and the evidence of palaeontology was unshaken." In other words, the mode by which existing plants and animals have arisen is descent with modification from one or more simple primitive forms. That was the thesis—not indeed a new one—which Darwin set out to prove in opposition to current doctrines. He did succeed in convincing the thinking world of its truth, and the subsequent progress of knowledge has widened the basis of that conviction until there is no part of the order of nature on which there is higher certainty.

Origin of Animals by Natural Selection.

But the origin of animals and plants by evolution requires the existence of variations of differences between one individual and another, between parents and their offspring. Darwin collected a great body of evidence on variations, and discussed many possibilities as to agencies which might produce them, and as to their behavior in the chain of life from grandparents and parents to children and grandchildren. It is true that some of the interpretations to which he inclined are unfashionable just now. But it is also true that there is now no greater certainty than in the time of Darwin as to the causes or the inheritance of variations. But that is a charge which can be brought more justly against ourselves than against Darwin, who continued to insist on the absence of and need for exact knowledge of variation. Darwin advanced the theory that the main agency in producing new forms of life from the raw material provided by variation was natural selection—the preservation of favored races—a process akin to the artificial selection by which man has improved the breeds of domesticated plants and animals. He never asserted that this was the sole agency. In actual historical fact he brought about belief in evolution, and stimulated that collection of evidence by which belief has passed over into human certainty by providing the theory of natural selection. Subsequent scrutiny of nature has supplied many other suggestions, but so far few of these have been acceptable to any except their proposers.

SCHOOL REPORT FOR SEPTEMBER

R. H. Shockley and Principals Brady and Campbell at Board Meeting.

TRUSTEES SUPPORTING SPORTS FOR CHILDREN

R. H. Shockley, manual training instructor, reported at last night's school board meeting that installation of equipment at the Sergeant William Booth School was nearly completed and was now but awaiting the installation of switches for the motor. He also mentioned the manual training exhibit at the Fair. W. James, the judge, has said they were as excellent as he had seen in any other city. The board authorized Mr. Shockley to purchase 300 feet of yellow cedar from the Big Bay Lumber Co.

J. C. Brady, principal of the high school, asked that wire netting be placed on the outside of the basement windows at the King Edward School. The board has instructed the janitor to take the netting from the inside of the windows and put it on the outside.

Winter Sports.

Harold Campbell, principal of the public schools, asked that the board consider the matter of winter sport in the schools. After considerable discussion as to ways and means it was decided to rent the Men's Own gymnasium for four nights a week at a cost of $15 monthly for practice and games. The Fair Building, it is expected, will also be obtainable. Four basketballs were also ordered to be purchased. Senior boys and girls from both the Borden Street and Sergeant William Booth Schools are to be given practice under the supervision of the vice-principals assisted by Miss Mills, of Borden Street, and Miss Mercer, of William Booth. Special arrangements are being made to recompense the ladies for their services.

In connection with Mr. Campbell's report the salary question was also discussed but it was decided to leave it over indefinitely before arranging another schedule. The matter was fully discussed and a number of anomalous cases were referred to.

General Report.

In Mr. Campbell's general report, the school attendance at the present time was placed at 721. All desks were occupied and Borden Street school was already full. Glass work was reported to be satisfactory. There will be examinations of all grades at the end of October. There had been six cases of corporal punishment in September. Excuses were being demanded in all cases of absence. Teachers and principals had held frequent meetings. The board asked Mr. Campbell for a list of all Orientals and Indians who were attending the schools.

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

October 7, 1911.

The jolly tars from the Rainbow fired a broadside of mirth and captured the hearts of the Prince Rupert audience in the musical engagements at the Empress Theatre last night. Commander Rose, the officers and men were entertained at a smoker by Mayor Manson and the city of Prince Rupert. Front rows were crowded with blue jackets and on the stage sat the mayor and aldermen and Commander Rose and his officers.

President D. G. Stewart, of the Hospital Board, has suggested that a new wing be built at the hospital to accommodate the ever increasing needs. The advice of local architects is to be solicited.

The Man in the Moon SAYS—

HEADLINE in a paper says, "Victoria only has 271 out of work." This of course does not include those who camp at the capital looking for Government jobs.

IT is all very well to say that a man's intuition is nothing like that of a woman. A woman's intuition teaches her that in spite of her mode of dress the man's intuition will enable him to locate her waist line, and it does.

TALKING about charity drives, why not one to raise money for the poor fool who wants to buy a motor boat.

CAN social conditions be so bad as all this? Society article in Vancouver daily has headline that says: "Society Folk Are Feted." Maybe, after all, it was the proofreader's fault in overlooking the spelling of "feted."

B. C. UNIVERSITY exam test shows "amazing ignorance of Homer." Let the faculty encourage reading of the sports page, then, and master the Odyssey of Babe Ruth's daily "homer."

"What's in a name?" Lots, if one considers the case of Mr. Houd Rhi, fined $50 for drunkenness in Victoria.

A SHORTENED STORY

"The day after the gathering of the Y.D. here recently," a correspondent writes, "a boy remarked to his sister's young man: 'You should have seen the palter sister had last night. I tell you he looked fine sittin' alongside of her with his arm—' 'Johnny!' gasped the sister, her face getting very red.
"Well, so he did," insisted Johnny. "He had his arm—"
"John! interrupted his mother sharply, 'leave the room this instant!'
"And Johnny left, grumbling as he went: 'I was only going to say he had his army clothes on.'"

Affair Had Been Arranged for Tonight but Postponed Until Tomorrow.

The Northern B. C. Agricultural and Industrial Association and the Board of Trade are making joint preparations to tender a banquet to Hon. S. F. Tolmie, federal minister of agriculture, and Col. C. W. Peck, M.P., on their arrival in the city on the Union steamer Venture, which it is expected to arrive here at 9 tomorrow. It was originally planned to hold the banquet tonight, but on account of the delayed arrival of the guests it has been postponed until tomorrow night.

DE MILLE PICTURE AT THE WESTHOLME

"Something to Think About" Unfolds Wonderful Drama of Human Life.

The wonderful de Mille picture at the Westholme Theatre tonight is a powerful production, David Markley, a cripple from birth, is a wealthy art student living on the hill above the village with his old housekeeper and a Japanese servant. At the foot of the hill lives Luke Anderson, the village blacksmith and his daughter, Ruth. David has known both for years, and as Ruth nears womanhood David sends her away to be educated. Ruth returns to the village as a young woman of the world and David falls in love with her. Owing to his crippled state, he hesitates to avow his love and Old Luke, recognizing the situation, urges Ruth to propose to him. She does so and on the eve of their marriage, Ruth renews her childhood friendship with Jim Dirk, son of a farmer, who has just returned from agricultural college. When Ruth contrasts Jim with David, she returns Jim's love. She elopes with Jim, leaving it to her father to tell the news to David.

Love's Dream Shattered.
The shattering of David's dream of love, leaves him a broken-hearted and bitter man. The father, angered by what he considers Ruth's cruelty to David curses her as he labors at his anvil. He prays he may never see her again, and strangely enough, he is blinded by sparks due to his carelessness. Meanwhile, Ruth and Jim have taken a tiny home in the city where Jim joins a "sandbag" crew in an under-water tunnel. As he starts for work one morning, Ruth tells him the secret she has kept to herself until that moment.

Left Destitute.
A cave-in occurs in the chamber of the tunnel and Jim, who might have saved himself, plugs up a water hole to save his fellow-workers, the fathers of children. He is unable to escape and is drowned. Left destitute, Ruth finds employment in a laundry, but owing to her condition, she is forced to give up the work which she finds too hard. She supports herself as a charwoman, but is obliged to give this up also. In despair she returns home to find her father blind, but in his unforgiving bitterness he ignores her appeals and turns her out of the house.

(This is only the beginning of the end.)

THRILLING BATTLE ON TOWERING CLIFFS

A thrilling gun-battle on the towering cliffs of a mountain range, spectacular riding by Harry Carey's flying squadron of cowpunchers, and a fist-fisted combat in which the hero fights against uneven odds, are a few of the pulse-quickening episodes of "The Wallop," a western photodrama at the Empress Theatre tonight. Harry Carey is the star. It is a Universal production directed by Jack Ford from a story by Eugene Manlove Rhodes.

I'm So Tired

Fatigue is the result of poisons in the blood. So when the kidneys fail to purify the blood one of the first indications is unusual and persistent tired feelings and pains in the back.

Neglected kidney troubles lead to years of suffering from rheumatism or develop into such fatal ailments as Bright's disease.

The kidney action is promptly corrected by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills — the best known regulator of kidneys, liver and bowels.

Mrs. John Ireland, R.R. No. 2, King, Ont., writes:

"I was a great sufferer from severe headaches and bilious spells. I tried a number of remedies without obtaining any benefit until I was advised to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. These completely relieved me and made me feel like a new person. I am very grateful to Dr. Chase's medicines for what they have done for me, and you may use my letter for the benefit of others."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, all dealers or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Sport Chat

Volley ball is being tried out with great success at the Men's Own gymnasium and a good deal of enthusiasm over it has been worked up among both boys and men. This excellent sport is something like tennis, but there are no rackets. The ball is about the size of a football and the game is played by volleying the ball with the hands over a net, the regulation size of which is 7 feet, 6 inches. It affords excellent exercise and requires a good deal of watchful skill. In fact, many of the points are similar to tennis and it requires, if anything, more energy. Now that it is being started here it should prove popular. Members of the St. Andrew's Society have been watching the game at the Men's Own and are now considering the starting of a league to play games in their own hall. It is likely that other organizations will also follow the lead.

Credit for initiating the negotiations for peace between the Irish Republican leaders and the British Government is generally given by the majority of Irishmen to A. W. Gope. Mr. Gope is assistant under-secretary and clerk of the Privy Council in the office of the Chief Secretary for Ireland in Dublin Castle. He was formerly in the Irish customs service. It is not often that an Irish Nationalist or Republican can be found who will trust an English official but Mr. Gope is the exception. The Republicans trust him as can be seen by the way they dealt with him in carrying out the terms of the truce, while the Nationalists, and there are still many of these despite the elimination of their party by the Sinn Fein, looked upon him as the deliverer of Ireland. Incidentally, Mr. Gope's popularity in Ireland just now has contributed to the circulation of a tip that a horse named "Gope" after him is likely to win the English Derby in 1923. Many Irishmen are preparing to put their money on the yearling which is owned by Martin Fitzgerald, proprietor of "Freeman's Journal" and a well known figure in the business and sporting world of Great Britain. Irishmen seem to put quite as much faith in the name of Gope as in the horse itself.

Among the passengers south last night was W. E. Ireland, local manager for the Fuller Brush Co., who is on the way to attend a convention of employees of the big concern at Vancouver. Father Cocola left on the Prince Rupert last night for Ocean Falls.

EIGHTEEN-HOLE GOLF COURSE IS JUST COMPLETE

Victoria Now Has Three Full Sized Links, Thus Leading Province. VICTORIA, Oct. 7.—Construction work on Victoria's third eighteen-hole golf links at the Uplands has been completed, and the course will be ready for play next Spring. The fairways and greens have been seeded, and six of the greens are practically fit for play at the present time. No one, however, will be allowed to test out any of the greens until the whole course is ready to stand heavy and steady work. Just when the links will be thrown open will depend upon the kind of Winter which favors Victoria.

These interesting facts were related to the annual meeting of the United Services Golf Club in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, by R. A. Meakin, superintendent of the new course. The news of the splendid progress which had been made on the construction work was received with much pleasure by the members present.

The new golf links will be first-class in every respect. It will also put Victoria far ahead of Vancouver in golfing facilities. Three eighteen-holes course for a city the size of this is a record to be proud of.

A Fine Convention. The United Service Club has converted a strip of forest and open land at the Uplands into a delightful sporting centre, where the citizens of Victoria will be able to spend their leisure hours in an enjoyable manner. The new club house will be constructed in the near future. This work was not included in the original contract. The club house will be of a very attractive and comfortable design.

LAPOINTE ON THE CAMPAIGN

Quebec Leader Expounds Ideals of Party in Interview Given in East.

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—The campaign to be waged in Quebec on our part will be a Liberal campaign and nothing else, declared Ernest Lapointe in an interview here.

"The Liberals of this Province will remain true to the ideals, teachings and traditions of the great leaders of the past. They believe that Liberalism will provide a sane and safe middle course, which will recognize and give effect to the progressive spirit of the times, while safeguarding the country against violent changes which might mean danger. A fair and reasonable policy, bent on union rather than discord, on co-operation rather than controversy, shall discover the means of satisfying the economic and other aspirations of all sections of our territory.

"Liberalism is opposed to classes, occupations, races or creeds; it appeals to all men who are willing to work in co-operation with their fellowmen. Working as Liberals. "The Tory press is working up imaginary divisions in our ranks. Men in panic grasp at shadows. We are united; we shall, all of us, fight this election as Liberals, merely and simply, and let me venture the prediction that real Liberalism will have a clear majority of the seats in the next Parliament.

"There is no sectionalism or provincialism in our political views, as our opponents falsely state. Our doctrine is of a national character. It is the great Liberal doctrine expounded by Laurier, and which, applied under his leadership, gave this country fifteen years of prosperity, union and harmony."

FORT FRASER

Weather conditions in this vicinity at present are ideal and everyone hopes that it will continue fair until after the harvest. Threshing is now the order of the day. At present Mr. Rorison's outfit and a crew of fifteen men are operating on a fifty acre patch of oats belonging to Mr. Hope, Mr. Makins is next on the list, followed by J. P. Myers, and the end of the route will probably be Mr. Cambridge. Bumper crops are the rule this year all over the district.

Miss Ethel Tittemore, who has been visiting relatives in Eastern Canada and has been away from the district for almost a year, has just arrived back. All her many friends welcomed her, because she is a real live wire, who will doubtless prove in the future, as she has in the past, a real asset to the social life of the community.

The regular meeting of "Our Club" was held in the new Public Hall on Thursday afternoon, September 29th, and it was reported that a substantial sum had been raised, on the Civic Holiday, towards cleaning off the cost of the building. Under the able leadership of Mrs. Bain, the ladies are planning many future attractions "For the Common Good."

At a meeting of the local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, held on Saturday afternoon, October 1, it was unanimously agreed that the Government Agent, Fred Fraser, should attend, as their delegate, the forthcoming convention at Port Arthur.

Last week a wedding ceremony was conducted at the Maize. The bridegroom was Mr. William Schaefer, one of the pioneer settlers in the Nechaco Valley, and his bride was Miss Laura Hunt. GIRL IS INVENTOR.
 VICTORIA, Oct. 5.—Caveat invention rights have been applied for by Miss Mary Gertrude Weston, aged 24, stenographer, on a device which, she claims, will simplify typewriters by having ready-made words of common usage on the machine. The words: "and," "that," "which" and similar common words are to appear on a separate row of keys, according to her blue print thus making typewriting almost as rapid as talking. Miss Weston was a war worker and yeomanette in the U. S. navy at Bremerton, Washington, during the war.

Victim—"This thermometer is no good. I can never tell by it how cold the room is." Dealer—"My dear madam, do you not know that the word 'thermometer' is derived from two Greek words meaning 'a measure of heat'?" Naturally, therefore, it isn't meant to measure cold."

TRADES UNION AND STRIKES

British Labor Gathering Deals with Many Subjects Including Disarmament.

The unruffled surface of the Trades Union Congress proceedings was disturbed a little today when the delegates came to discuss peace, says the London Times. The British "Reds," who, in Mr. J. H. Thomas's words advocate a "bloody revolution" in favor of peace, are adopting, superficially at all events, much more moderate language in their public utterances than formerly, but they contrived to say some very nasty things about the leaders of constitutional labor. These were returned with due interest by Mr. Thomas.

The mistiness of thought and policy which has characterized the pronouncements of the Congress hitherto was not materially clarified by the dispute, and the discussion was mainly made notable by Mr. Smillie's appeal for international labor unity in dealing with the question.

Railway Dispute.
 On the more domestic subject of the protracted dispute between the National Union of Railwaymen and the Amalgamated Union of Engineers in relation to the representation of railway shopmen in wage negotiations, the heat of some of the discussion provided a good example of the amount of fighting which trade unionists are prepared to do within and without their own ranks in the interests of working class unity and world tranquility. The wrangle was remarkable rather for the vehemence of some of the sneakers and the noise of their supporters and opponents than for any new light.

Contradictory resolutions by the rival unions were tabled, but Frank Hodges cut in with a motion for the "previous question," which was carried by over a million votes, to the wrath of many of the combatants. "Another triumph of working-class solidarity," a delegate in the gallery shouted sarcastically.

Disarmament.
 The disarmament resolution was in the following terms:—This Congress begins with satisfaction that the President of the United States is calling an international conference to discuss the question of the disarmament of nations, with which policy it is fully in accord. In the opinion of this Congress, however, such a conference will not be satisfactory unless Labor is adequately represented thereon, and understanding that Great Britain will take part in such conference, this congress claims the right to appoint representatives of organized labor to attend the conference, seeing that the subject to be discussed is a matter vitally affecting the interests of the workers in all nations.

The Congress further protests against the recent decisions of the British Government to carry out an extensive program of armaments, which is contrary to the spirit of disarmament and peace as advocated repeatedly by members of the Government themselves.

The Congress further asks for the suspension of all preparations for war, at least until the disarmament conference has finished its work.

Futility of Strikes.
 A highly significant demonstration of the strength of that section of the trade union movement which has learnt the futility of strike action was made at the congress.

An important resolution placed on the agenda by the Iron and Steel Confederation, with the support of the General Workers' Union, called for the adequate provision of machinery to bring the full authority of the labor movement to bear on securing equitable settlements without recourse to stoppages of work, and, failing that, on co-ordinating the machinery and resources of the movement generally to ensure a successful issue.

A. Pugh, in moving the resolution, said that not one per cent of strikes were justified by results. A. Hayday, M.P., pointed out that the General Workers' Union had spent £400,000 in unemployment pay as a result of the miners' dispute.

Far Reaching.
 Robert Smillie described the resolution as far-reaching and reactionary. He said it proposed

To draw the teeth of organized labor and take away its arms. There would have to be fighting in the future as there had been in the past. (Cheers.)
 On a card vote the resolution was defeated by an overwhelming majority. The figures being: For the proposition, 987,000. Against $, 628,000.
 The significance of the discussion lay not in the decision but because the representatives of nearly a million workers cast their numbers against strike action except in extremities. Those who voted with the majority seemed to be mainly influenced by a disinclination to surrender trade union autonomy. Otherwise the minority might have been larger.
 Gillespie—"I wonder what sort of a debt collector I would make?" Hardrum—"You might let me have a fiver for ten days and find out."
