Fisheries Commission has Concluded CONSERVATIVES WIN ELECTION IN CRANBROOK CONSTITUENCY

Conservative is Elected in Cranbrook Constituency Over Nominee of the Liberal Party

CRANBROOK, Aug. 16.—N. A. Wallinger, Conservative, was elected to the provincial legislature for this riding over John Taylor, Liberal. With four small polls to hear from Wallinger has a majority of 224.

The question of the justice of Wallinger's dismissal from the office of government agent, a position which he held in Cranbrook for 18 years, became the paramount issue in the campaign which was one of the most contentious ever held here.

Premier Oliver and several other cabinet ministers participated and the premier gave what he believed to be good reasons for Wallinger's dismissal, but the general feeling was one of sympathy with Wallinger, and it was the chief reason for his getting support in the by-election.

The election was to fill the vacancy made vacant by the resignation of Hon. J. H. King a year ago to enter the federal government as minister of public works.

INDIAN RIGHTS IN FISHERIES ARE DISCUSSED

C. C. Perry States Case and Native's Corroborate at Evening Session.

At the evening session of the Fisheries commission yesterday C. C. Perry stated the case on behalf of the Indians and Rev. Peter Kelly and Henry Collison, natives, also spoke in regard to hereditary fishing rights.

C. C. Perry, Indian Agent for the Skeena River district, said one complaint was made by the Metlakatla Indians in regard to the fisheries at Shawatlans Lake and Gloyah River near Prince Rupert. Another matter was with regard to drag seining in District No. 2. No regulations should militate against the Indians getting their food supply.

At Shawatlans. Mr. Perry explained how fisheries of Shawatlans Lake had been closed on his recommendation for five years to avoid depletion on the understanding that when time was up the Indians would enjoy the exclusive fishing rights there as they had done before. The time had expired this year and the Indians had not been given the exclusive right. Four purse seine licenses and two drag seine licenses had been granted for Shawatlans and the Indians had received only one. The Prince Rupert cannery, Inverness Cannery and a man named Bradbury had received purse seine licenses and the two canneries had received the drag seine licenses. Mr. Perry admitted that there had been no written agreement by the department regarding the restoration of the exclusive right for Indians.

MISSING MEN FROM WRECKED RALEIGH

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The Admiralty supplies the following list of missing from the cruiser Raleigh wrecked off the coast of Newfoundland a few days ago:

First class stokers Herbert Bassford, Silas Field, Geo. Fisher and Geo. M. Thornhill; petty officer stokers Edward Peppard and John E. Lloyd; leading stokers Sydney G. Tripp and Reuben Tyler; able seamen Pat Pettie and James Weaver. The men are presumed lost.

turned soldier fishermen at his reserve driving the natives away from their creeks. He saw no reason why a white man should get an independent license while he was unable to do so.

Mr. Stork stated that Rev. Peter Kelly, of Nanaimo, and Ambrose Reid, had been delegated by Hon. Chas. Stewart, minister of the interior, to take up matters regarding the Indians in these districts for him. These gentlemen were now in the hall and he wished that they be heard.

Rev. Peter Kelly.

Mr. Kelly, who explained that he was a native of the Haida tribe and had been born on the Queen Charlotte Islands, was a Methodist minister and chairman of the executive council of the Allied Indian tribes, stated that the minister had agreed to the aboriginal rights of the Indians and would be coming here in November to finally settle them. Matters regarding the fisheries would then be taken up and the Indians would press for certain rights. They claimed that they had exclusive rights on the creeks passing reserves and were against the issuing of permits and would press for their removal.

One reason that the Indians pressed for independent drag seine licenses was because they were now given them through the canneries but the Indian had to sell his fish to the cannery. For example one Indian this year owning his own gear and boat but having to obtain his license from the cannery, was compelled to sell his fish at 50c to the cannery where 75c was paid to independent fishermen. Ten thousand fish had been caught during the season so $2500 had been lost.

An Outrage.

"That is an outrage," said Mr. Martell to which witness agreed. Mr. Kelly did not think that the natives would have the same grievance if the licenses were granted through the Indian agent. He did not think that the privilege would be abused by the Indians or that they would wilfully destroy fish in getting their winter supply. If the drag seine was done away with they would be satisfied with the purse seine but they wanted whatever was in vogue. They considered themselves just as good or better fishermen than the whites and thought they were entitled to the same privileges.

SPORTSMEN ASK CHANGE SEASON BIRD SHOOTING

Petition Being Circulated Asking For Season From October 1, to January 20.

A petition is being circulated among local sportsmen asking that the Game Board make the open season for migratory birds such as geese, brant, mallards, pintails, canvas backs, blue bills (butter balls) and all snipe from October 1, 1922, to January 20, 1923 north of 53 parallel. Last year the open season was from September 15 to December 31. The dates, as far as is known, have not yet been announced this year.

A delayed season is being asked for in view of the fact that there is not much hunting until October 4 on account of the absence of the birds up to that date. Many of them do not return south until January and the season closing on December 31 cuts off the shooting.

The petitions when signed will be forwarded to the Game Board.

OTTAWA, Aug. 16.—The resignation of Howard G. Kelly from the board of directors of the G. T. Railway has been accepted by the government.

Urges Establishment of Mild Cure Herring Plant to Handle Product Here

The possibility of establishing a Scotch mild cure herring business at this port was discussed before the fisheries commission yesterday afternoon by William Wilson of this city, and William Sims of Porcher Island. Mr. Wilson said he represented the Alaskan shippers of mild cure herring at this port. Since June 15 they had shipped 26,000 barrels of herring of excellent quality to the market at New York and Philadelphia. These were caught by American fishermen but mostly put up and the work supervised by British subjects.

Mr. Wilson said they had herring of the same quality on this coast both near here and around the Queen Charlotte Islands. Canadian fishermen could develop the industry. The product would be equal to that from Alaska and the market in the East was unlimited. In former years the industry had been tried out without success, but it had been done by amateurs. The fish had been oversalted. The result of former experiments was that now the men with money had cold feet.

Disadvantages. The herring put up in the winter were of a different kind. He had worked with Mr. Cowie in the Old Country. Lately he had been approached with a view to going into the herring curing business. He had pointed out the disadvantages under which they would have to work. In Alaska they could use a seine and the fish not fit to salt could be utilized for the manufacture of fertilizer or oil. In this country the use of herring for making fertilizer or oil was forbidden. In order that they might compete there should be similar privileges here.

Mr. Wilson said that in Nanaimo there had been something like 30,000 tons of herring dried and shipped to the Orient market by Japanese. Some of this was used for fertilizer after it reached Japan. He would like to be placed on an equal footing with the Japanese and Americans. The months when they would fish would be May, June, July and August. The fish taken at that time was in much better condition than the winter caught fish. He felt sure they could get plenty of herring. The fishermen often caught them for bait.

Porcher Island Speaks

William Sims of Porcher Island, a fisherman, said the herring were here in abundance. He corroborated the evidence of Mr. Wilson except in regard to seining herring. He favored the use of gill nets just as they did in the North Sea. With them, they could get all the fish they wanted. Mr. Cowie said he doubted if they could establish a drift net industry here for some time. It might be correct to continue the use of seines here for getting bait for some time to come.

Mr. Sims continuing said it was impossible to expect the winter cured herring to compete with the Scotch cure. A big industry could be developed here. Only a few people knew what the herring was and how it could be cured. The canneries might be utilized for handling them.

Close Season for Halibut and Other Matters Before Commission Final Session

After an all day session, the Fisheries Commission, which has been sitting in the city for two days, adjourned last night at 10:30 and will meet again at the Naas River this afternoon, the commissioners and officials having left for the North on the steamer Estevan this morning. Many witnesses were heard yesterday afternoon and evening, and almost every branch of the fishing industry was touched upon in the course of the taking of the evidence. The witnesses since yesterday noon were T. H. Johnson, J. H. Meagher, John Dybhavn, W. E. Williams, William Wilson, William Sims, C. C. Perry, Henry Collison, Rev. Peter Kelly, of Nanaimo, Andrew Reed, and James Catt, of Lakelse.

T. H. Johnson, manager of the Canadian Fish and Cold Storage Co., was the first witness to appear before the commission giving evidence from a strictly company standpoint.

Mr. Johnson said he would favor a close season for halibut. He has seen, in his lifetime, the halibut fisheries depleted in Europe and on the Atlantic seaboard and during the past 15 years had seen a great depletion on this coast. He thought that the fisheries should be discontinued altogether in certain sections. For three months after November 4 would seem to him the proper period for the close season. Of course arrangements would have to be made with the United States before a close season could be put into practice. The witness described his own plant and its capacity and also dealt with the markets and the methods of handling fish through the Exchange here.

Gasoline Engines and Boats.
 Mr. Johnson said he would have to be replaced. Mr. Martell referred to evidence given by Mr. Johnson at the Sanford-Evans investigation in 1917. Mr. Johnson had then said he favored gas boats on the Skeena River. Why had he since changed his mind?

Company View Point.
 Mr. Johnson admitted that his present viewpoint was that of his company and went on to explain that the 75 or so sail boats now used by the company would have to be replaced with 10 or so gasboats at a cost of possibly $2,000 each. At the same time the departmental regulations would not allow for the taking of more fish so they would have to lay out an investment of $80,000 instead of $20,000 and the result would be the same.

Advantage of Gas Boats.
 Mr. Duff thought that the advantage from gas boats would be for the fishermen and not for the canneries. Mr. Johnson presented a document as evidence to show that the fishermen were not in favor of gas boats. This document, which was not read, had been prepared by the B. C. Canners' Association.

Cross Firing.
 There was some cross firing between Mr. Neill and Mr. Johnson in regard to the gas boat question, the former taking the fishermen's standpoint in favor of gasboats and the latter viewing the question strictly from his company's angle.

Answer to Question.
 In answer to a question by Mr. McQuarrie, Mr. Johnson said that he believed there had been a depletion of the salmon fisheries in the past ten years and the logical conclusion would be that there had been too many fish caught. He would not blame the Japs particularly for that, for every man, white, Indian or Jap would be sharing in the general responsibility for the depletion. He was not a scientist and could not offer any suggestion as to restoration.

Apparently Mr. Johnson wants to keep the Japs in business," said Mr. McQuarrie. Could you not get along without the Japs?"

Mr. Johnson—"We tried it in 1913 and 1914 and couldn't get along without them. They didn't bring in enough fish."

Cannery History.
 This led up to a general discussion of the original establishment of the Prince Rupert cannery which had been given its first charter from the department on the understanding that it would be a white man's cannery. Mr. Johnson said that they had appealed to the department to allow the use of the Japs and it had been granted. Mr. Martell observed that the company had "put it over" the department when the change had been allowed.

After some bandying of words between Mr. McQuarrie and Mr. Johnson, the latter stated that he would be in favor of gradual reduction in the number of Japanese fishermen but he would not be prepared to state the exact percentage yearly. In reply to Mr. Martell's question, Mr. Johnson said that it was unfair to ask him if he was prepared to eliminate the Japs entirely again.

Question of Embargo.
 Mr. Johnson said he did not believe in the embargo on export of raw chums and pinkies. Part of the salmon bought here came from Alaska and the United States could retaliate by cutting off that supply. The greater the freedom in these matters, the better it would be for the industry.

Referring to the propagation of salmon, Mr. Johnson said that the natural increase should take the place of the fish caught but it apparently did not.

In answer to a question by Major Motherwell, Mr. Johnson said that he thought the use of power boats would put the salmon fishing even more in the hands of the Japs. "Of course," said Mr. Martell, "he is assuming that gasoline boat licenses would be granted to the Japs."

Witness said he did not think an inspector between the fishermen and the buyers was necessary. He had no objection to it but failed to see what good it would do. The article purchased would continue to be judged by the company and not by the government inspector. It was a matter of private bargaining and disputes were not serious.

Mr. Johnson thought that a tariff on American fish passing through this port would drive the halibut away.

J. H. Meagher, secretary of the Deep Sea Fishermen's Union explained the workings of the organization which he represented and gave some very useful and instructive information with regard to the habits of the halibut in discussing the proposal for a close season.

Witness stated that the Union now had a membership of about 1000, all of whom were white fishermen, Canadians and Americans. The headquarters of the Union was in Seattle with branches at Prince Rupert and Ketchikan. He himself had been a fisherman for some thirty years, eight years on this coast and 21 on the Atlantic.

He supported the idea of having an inspector for this port to look over the culling of halibut. A man should be selected who understood the business so that he could settle arguments arising between the fishermen and the buyers. Fish was usually graded according to weight. First class fish was that between 16 and 80 pounds, the seconds being under and over these figures respectively. Cull fish was that under 6 pounds. The Union rules called for the fishermen to see that all cull fish was dumped or destroyed and fines could be imposed on members who did not see that this was done or if it was reported sold. He was sorry to say that cases had been reported where such fish had been sold as third class.

Weighting of Fish.
 Besides culling the fish, the purchasing companies also weighed it. There should also be an inspector of weights and measures. On suggestion of Mr. Dickie, Mr. Meagher said this office might be combined with the other.

Questioned by Mr. Gowie, Mr. Meagher stated that the average of a recent trip of 15,000 pounds had been 1000 pounds fillets or culls and from 7000 to 8000 pounds under ten pounds.

In certain grounds, such as Heate Straits and Goose Island grounds, there was a large proportion of small fish. These small fish never reproduced.

Mr. Cowie—"Do you not think that the catching of such a large proportion of fish which never reproduce is a tremendous drain on the fisheries?"

Mr. Meagher—"Yes," Mr. Cowie—"Could not these grounds of small fish be located and the fishing in them cut off?"

Mr. Meagher—"Yes, Coronation Gulf is another instance. Such fish are of little commercial value and are indeed a great drain on the fisheries."

Spawning of Halibut.
 Questioned by Mr. Martell, Mr. Meagher gave his observations regarding the spawning of halibut with relation to a close season. In 1909, when he had come to the coast, they had located a spawning ground at Sydney Inlet, on the West Coast of Vancouver Island. The fish commenced to gather at this spot about October 1 and continued to gather until Nov. 1. The fish that were to spawn grew larger until about the middle of January when they had all spawned. This place had been pretty well fished out. Next, a similar ground had been found at North Island and this too had been pretty well fished out. Next were the Yakutat banks from which a good number of fish were still brought in. In 1915 another big ground had been located at Yakatagi, north of Yakutat. There were fish in abundance there.

Mr. Meagher stated his opinion that some fish spawned in November and December but not in October. In 1916 a run of fish that had previously been spawning in a certain ground was located in 220 fathoms. Some 115,000 pounds were taken and it was found that the sacs were still in the fish but there was no spawn. These fish had evidently already spawned and left the water of 90 to 130 fathoms where they had previously been. Next trip there were no fish there at all so that was as far as they could follow them.

Valuable Information.
 Questioned by Mr. Martell, Mr. Meagher stated that he thought government biologists could get valuable information by visiting these banks and following the fish up. At the same time a scout boat could search for new grounds and could do some charting. A new halibut bank had been reported recently some 250 miles west of Cape Flattery.

Mr. Meagher stated that his organization had favored from November 15 to February 15 as a close season. Both Canadian and American fishermen had agreed to that.

Answering questions by Mr. Gowie, witness stated that at present mostly all the large American schooners landed their catches here at different times as well as the smaller boats. This was the most convenient port but they would, of course, go to Ketchikan if a better market offered.

Ruin the Industry.
 Speaking of the 2c a pound tax proposed to be charged by the American authorities on fish landed at this port, Mr. Meagher gave it as the opinion of the Union that it would ruin the fishing industry on the North Pacific Coast. A petition against it had been circulated among the fishermen and none had refused to sign it. This petition had been forwarded to Washington. He did not think the 2c charge would divert the fisheries to Ketchikan. The ferry proposal between Ketchikan and Prince Rupert would be impracticable on account of the rough waters that would be encountered in crossing Chatham Sound. It might be all right for steamers. Ketchikan was not as convenient or direct as Prince Rupert. The move for the 2c charge on fish landed here had been promoted by Ketchikan business men.

Mr. Meagher endorsed the idea that there should be a patrol and life saving boat for the halibut fishing grounds and referred to the incident of the Nollad last year where four men had perished, their boat being found some three or four weeks later turned upside down on the Alaska coast.

John Dybhavn, manager of the Royal Fish Co., speaking of the desirability of the close season for halibut, said that judging by the fish that came in there was no doubt they spawned in November and December. Having propagation in view he considered November, December and January, the proper time for a close season. He instanced two catches landed that day, one of which had 15,000 pounds of halibut with only 3000 pounds of prime fish large enough to be classed as first class. The 12,000 pounds was under ten pounds and sold either as chickens or were culled. There had been several catches taken off Massell of this kind. It was disastrous to catch that kind of fish and fishing should be prohibited on those banks. He understood that the fishermen threw out a good many small fish when they were taken off the hooks.

Mr. Cowie—"Do you think it would be possible to have a close

GROTTO WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Beat Gil's Last Night by 12 to 7 And Captured Intermediate League Trophies

By winning the final Intermediate baseball game last night over Gil's by a score of 12 to 7, the Grotto won the Galt Cup and the Beach medals. The game was a well-contested one with the exception of two unfortunate innings for Gil's, the third and the eighth, when three runs were made in each. In these frames, the pitchers weakened and the fields loosened up behind them. The Grotto played the best ball and were fully entitled to their victory, excelling in hitting and making fewer errors.

Sherman pitched the first three innings for Gil's and was replaced by Montgomery. E. Warren pitched seven innings of good ball for the Grotto and, on his own suggestion, was then replaced by Roy who continued the good work. Eddie Clapp took the place of T. Halverson, left fielder for the Grotto, in the seventh. P. Laporte was umpire of balls and strikes, and J. McAlenean, bases.

The teams lined up as follows: Gil's—S. Bazzell-Jones, lb; James Mitchell, rf; W. Mitchell, 2b; G. Mitchell, ss; B. McDaniels, 3b; R. Smith, lf; W. Lambie, cf; Sherman, p; Montgomery, p; Hamilton, c.

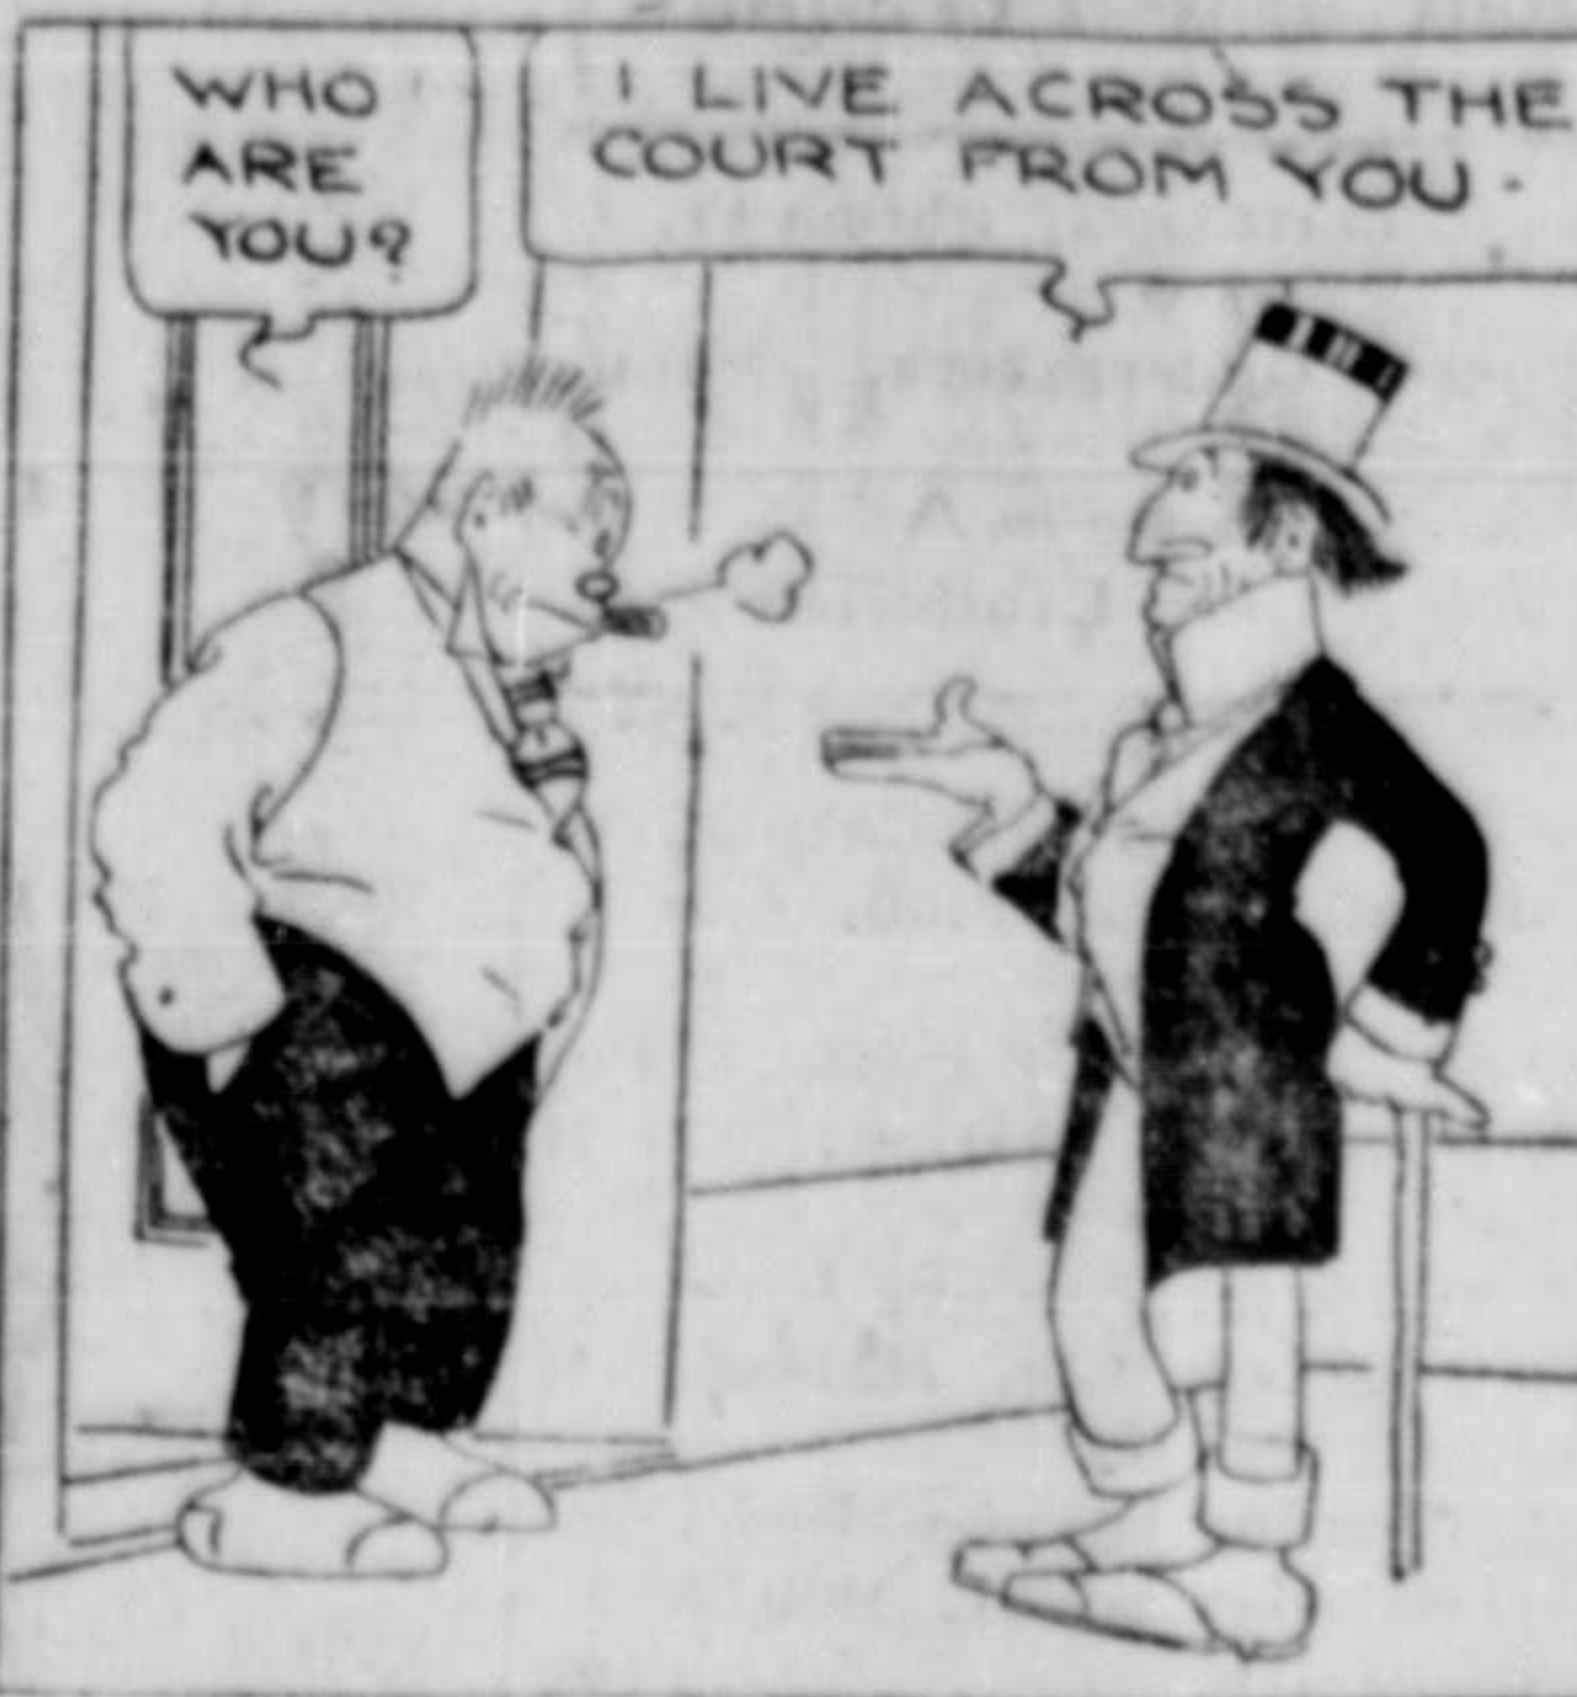

Grotto—S. Haudenschild, lb; B. Barrie, 2b; R. Gilmore, ss; V. Maxwell, 3b; T. Halverson, lf; E. Clapp, lf; G. Walls, rf; Sid Butters, cf; E. Warren, p; A. Roy, p; George Hill, c.

Score by innings:

Gil's .. 1 0 0 1 1 0 1 0 3—7
Grotto .. 3 0 3 0 1 0 0 3 2—12

ANYOX MINE WINS SERIES

Beats Smelter Team in Final Baseball Game of Season Winning Pennant.

ANYOX, Aug. 16.—The Mine and Smelter baseball teams played the final game of the series on Friday last the result being a two to one score in favor of the Mine. The Mine thus secures the pennant.

This was one of the best games of the season and although it was a good game all the way through it is quite evident that the Mine is the best team and deserved to win. With all due credit to the other boys, it must be said that the Mine fielders always gave their battery the best support. The teams were as follows:

Mine—Sinclair, S. Moran, E. Mealy, Fred Brown, Anderson, C. Carlson, G. McGannon, Cecil Ferguson, pitcher and George Corke, catcher.

Smelter—J. Maloney, Fred Mattix, Gerry McIntyre, Manning Bob Stewart, Jack Sherman, Tom Losche, Benny Fitzpatrick, pitcher and George Greenwall, catcher.

Summary of Season.

PARTY OF BOYS AND GIRLS WERE OUT ON LONG HIKE YESTERDAY
Twenty-two Trail Rangers and Canadian Girls in Training Tramped Along Railway Line
Yesterday a party of "hoboes" took a tramp along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway to make an inspection with a view to finding the suitability of the country for the simple life. There were 22 boys and girls and two dogs and they counted the ties to Kaien station where they had dinner on the beach. Much time was spent berry picking, watching the salmon jump and tracking a deer. Finding the water fine, they also had a sea bath. The more aggressive members of the party journeyed to Port Edward and inspected the salmon cannery there while the leisurely ones basked in the sunshine and caught crabs. The two parties joined again at supper time and had a great feast on the site of the noonday camp. Many wonderful names were manufactured during the day supposedly descriptive of the characteristics of those bearing them. A few were Sleepy, Know-it-all, Lemon, Gas Bag, Prune Chief, Eagle Feathers, Scottie, Professor and Baby Elephant. The party in private life have very dignified names, being members of the Trail Rangers and Canadian Girls in Training. The twenty mile walk brought the hoboes home ready for bed just as the curfew sounded.

CLOSE SEASON FOR HALIBUT AND OTHER MATTERS BEFORE COMMISSION FINAL SESSION.

season on certain banks. Would it injure the industry to prohibit fishing there altogether?

Mr. Dybbavn intimated that it would not. On the other boat to which he referred there were only 2000 medium sized fish out of 10,000. He would prohibit fishing on those grounds.

In regard to the complaint about culling, the buyers took the stand that if the fish was not in condition to stand the transit to the market in the East it was thrown out.

W. E. Williams.

W. E. Williams said he had been asked by Capt. Babington to bring one or two matters before the commission, the Captain being unable to attend. Personally he had been identified with fishery matters for a number of years. Capt. Babington was the owner of a small cannery that put up 1500 cases yet the legal tax on the cannery was $500. He favored a tax on the output, rather than a dead level rate. It would encourage the small man to develop the industry. He also asked that there be a close season on crabs from May 1 to September 1.

Mr. Motherwell stated that the matter of a close season was under consideration by the fisheries department. Also this year Capt. Babington had been charged only $5 for a license.

Mr. Williams said that on the general fisheries questions he backed up the evidence given by G. W. Nickerson. He suggested a cullers' organization for the halibut just as they had in the lumber business. The less the department interfered with these things the better, he thought.

In regard to gas boats on the Skeena, Mr. Williams said the citizens generally favored their use. There was no reason they should have to run against wind and tide when the weather was often bad. He thought conservation could be taken care of by other regulations.

The opinion was general that a change would have to be made in regard to Orientals but he thought it would have to be made gradually. The settlers in the north should have the first chance to get a fishery license. Over half the cannery employees came from the south and were not helping to build up a permanent citizenship. He saw no reason why the trollers should not use gill nets.

Judson Thurber.

Judson Thurber, halibut fisherman at the evening session said he would like to see a close season for halibut from November 15 to February 15. This would be a good thing for the fisheries and had the support of nearly all the fishermen in Prince Rupert. If something were not done there would be no fish at all. There would have to be an international agreement. Questioned by Mr. Duff, Mr. Thurber expressed the opinion that regulating the size of fish would be impracticable.

Andrew Christiansen said that making of a close season was a serious problem. He had come merely to talk about it but did not know whether he was in favor of it or not.

Hatchery Superintendent.

James Galt, superintendent of the Lakelse hatchery was the last witness. Mr. Galt explained the workings of the hatchery and declared that they were a very effective means of combating the depletion of the fish. Fry propagated in hatcheries was much more effective than by natural means. Besides sockeyes humpback salmon and cut throat trout were also propagated at Lakelse Lake.

Mr. McQuarrie, while not knowing about local plants, was inclined to doubt the effectiveness of the hatcheries pointing out the one at Harrison River as an example.

Winers maintained that the methods of the hatcheries were fully justified by the results.

The session closed about 10:30, Mr. Duff announcing the commission adjourned until it met on the Naas River this afternoon.

O'REILLY QUILTS

WILL CLOSE OUT RATHER THAN CONTINUE DOING BUSINESS AT A LOSS.

Have quit buying and, starting Thursday, am placing my entire stock of Men's Clothing and Furnishings on sale at greatly reduced prices. It is a well known fact that for the last couple of years business has not been a very profitable venture. During that time many firms, owing to the unsettled conditions, have met with disaster. Others, rather than continue at a loss, have closed out their business.

If conditions do not show a marked improvement in the near future, rather than continue playing a losing game, I will close out for the time being.

With that end in view I am clearing out my present stock at such unheard of prices that this sale will be in the nature of a public benefit.

For many of you that have been putting off buying, waiting for the lower price, THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY.

Come and see us Thursday, you will find lower prices prevail throughout the store.
