President Hoover Is In Fighting Trim in Indianapolis Speech

Chief Executive Takes Democrat Opponent to Task For Utterances on Economic Issues and Contrasts Policies—Is Given Mighty Reception By Thousands

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 29.—Taking his Democratic opponent for the presidency to task for his utterances on economic issues and contrasting the policies of the Republican and Democratic parties, President Herbert Hoover gave one of the major addresses of his campaign here last night before a tremendously enthusiastic audience of many thousands who packed the great Field House of Butler University to the very rafters. Mr. Hoover was accorded the mightiest reception he has received so far in the campaign and his audience found him in fine fighting fettle. He not only gave a vigorous defence of the actions and a convincing exposition of the accomplishments of his administration but carried many stinging rebukes into the camp of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Democratic party.

Declaring that the measures of legislation which had been evolved by the Republican administration had saved the country from destruction and chaos, President Hoover asserted that the most important issue of the campaign was to overcome the present economic crisis, to restore the people their jobs and to bring agriculture and business of the country back to normalcy. "Our policies are already driving the two weeks on the issue of the agricultural tariff. He questioned the sincerity of his "eleventh hour conversion" to the Republican policy on this question. In that short time he had rewritten the traditional policy of the Democratic party on the tariff. "May we next expect an apology from the Democrats for the abuse to which they have subjected us for favoring a high agricultural tariff?" asked the President amid laughter.

President Hoover declared that he believed in a strictly limited immigration policy although he would favor making it possible for the relatives of those already here to enter the country.

Sincerity Questioned
The President questioned Governor Roosevelt's sincerity when he went about the country declaring what he would do, if elected, to reduce expenditures of the governmental departments. The Democratic party, although in control of Congress, had advocated no such policy there. "But if I am given a mandate, I will be able to offer real economies," declared Mr. Hoover, reminding his hearers that he had been the first to move along this line.

Mr. Hoover pointed out that Governor Roosevelt at no time during the campaign had disavowed the two billion dollar "greenback" currency proposal which had been made by his (Roosevelt's) running-mate, Speaker Garner. It was too (Continued on Page Two) late for him now to repudiate such a proposal which, if effected, would have dire effects upon the country's financial stability. However, tampering with currency had become a perennial policy of the Democrats.

The President charged that Governor Roosevelt had not met fairly and squarely the question of payment of the soldiers' bonus. As for himself, the President declared that his attitude was well known. He favored a policy of building up the bonus fund steadily year by year but he could not and would not consent to endangering the stability of the country during times such as these by committing himself to immediate cash payment of the bonuses. "But, as far as I am concerned, let me assure the veterans that, when they are paid, they will be paid in real American money." Meantime, his policy had always been that of meeting the immediate needs of distressed veterans.

President Hoover disclaimed the administration's responsibility for bad foreign loans which might have been made. The fact was that the bulk of these loans had been made in New York and could have been controlled by that state. He reminded his hearers that he had consistently issued warnings against loans being made without adequate security. He had ever urged that all loans made by United States be properly secured loans for reproductive purposes. Such loans would benefit the American people by making additional business and work.

The President dubbed as "atrocious" the suggestion of Governor Roosevelt that the Supreme Court had been politically controlled. He defended the sanctity and independence of the Supreme Court which he had ever sought to maintain.

In closing the President asked his audience if the American people chose "to carry on along the lines of the traditions of the race with policies based on the foundations of our forefathers or be deluded by sinister revelations and veiled promises?" He could, at least, give assurance of the road he intended to follow.

Great Reception

The arrival of President and Mrs. Hoover in Indianapolis was heralded by the most spectacular street parade ever held in the history of the city. It was a remarkable reception which the chief executive was accorded by thousands of wildly enthusiastic supporters. The president and Mrs. Hoover were dinner guests of Governor and Mrs. Harry G. Leslie. Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth being among the guests.

It was estimated that at least fifty thousand persons had to be turned away from the meeting. Radio transmitters were hastily installed to carry the address to throngs gathered in the streets outside.

Miss Dorothy Cunningham, Republican national committeeman for Indiana, presided over the meeting which was opened with prayer by Rev. David France. Other speakers were Governor Leslie and James E. Watson, candidate for senator, who were both heard briefly in introducing the President.

Due to the tremendous ovation the President received, the meeting was fifteen or twenty minutes late in getting under way.

The Upward Trend of Public Confidence

MONEY rates are a barometer of conditions. Lower interest rates and consequent rising bond prices indicate confidence. This upward trend of confidence has been evident in the important financial centres of the world.

Investors have recognized the encouraging world-wide tendency toward lower interest rates by subscribing heavily to recent public issues. There is cause for satisfaction in the fact that bonds of the Dominion of Canada are sharing in the improvement that is taking place.

Plan Now to Buy the New Dominion of Canada Bonds

On Monday, October 31st, there will be offered to the Canadian public an issue of $80,000,000 Dominion of Canada 4 per cent, bonds, 1932. They will be offered at a discount which will provide an income yield in line with present interest rates. This issue will offer Canadians an opportunity to obtain the soundest investment for their savings and, at the same time, to render an important national service.

As an investor and as a citizen---for your individual benefit and for national advantage---plan now to buy the new Dominion of Canada bonds when they are offered on Monday.

This preliminary advertisement is published by the DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE to enable Canadian investors to make arrangements to participate in this offering.

A SATURDAY SERMON

"Plain Bread" Religion

(By Rev. C. D. Clarke, First United Church)

Is anything more bewildering to the average person than the Christian religion—bewildering, not because of Christianity itself but because of the multifarious labels we have put upon it? Take the church page of any city newspaper on Saturday and note the many different varieties of Christianity, so many as to leave the famous "57" far in the shade. Confusion in the household of faith—and why?

A good lady at death's door was talking about religion to her husband and said: "My religion is very simple—Our Father, who art in Heaven." Simple indeed, yet enough religion to keep us busy the rest of our days.

"Woodbine Willie," the noted British chaplain, called the Lord's Prayer, "Plain Bread Religion." It seems to me that the world is in need of this religion today. Plain bread is what man needs—no one thinks of getting along without it. Soups and savories, pies and pastries come and go but bread goes on forever. We have been trying to nourish our souls upon the pastries of religion with the result that, since the world has become sick unto death, we have not enough spiritual strength to stage a comeback. Let us build up our strength by feeding upon this simple plain bread religion, the Lord's Prayer.

Of course it may be said that we have always used the Lord's Prayer. True, scarcely anything in the Christian faith is used more widely than this prayer. If—note the little word—people of the various brands of Christianity could be gathered together, they would agree on one thing, and I think only one, which would be the Lord's Prayer. It is used in our churches, at baptisms, weddings and funerals and in all the services of the church. It is used in schools, colleges, in parliaments, councils, clubs, conventions, conferences and almost everywhere that a meeting is opened or closed by religious ceremony. Nothing is more widely used than these words of the Man of Nazareth—and dare we say that nothing is more misused because we have made this prayer a vain repetition? Differences in Praying There is a difference in praying and repeating or saying prayers. We have committed the Lord's Prayer to memory but have not learned it by heart. It has remained in the mind but has not reached the depths whence springs real prayer. "Prayer is the soul's sincere desire, Uttered or unexpressed. 'The motion of a hidden fire 'That trembles in the breast.' What is your 'soul's sincere desire?' What is your demand on life? You need not answer. Your neighbor, your pal, your fellow worker, your friends know. Your life, your character reveal your 'soul's sincere desire' which is your real prayer and your religion. The condition of the world reveals that the dominant desire of man has not been the Lord's Prayer. This prayer never caused a war, nor a depression. There is in the Lord's Prayer the seed of a warless world, peace and goodwill and harmony and co-operation among the sons of men. There is in it the power that can make on this earth a quality of life like unto heaven itself.

We are looking for a way out, for a new world, a new social order, a new economic order. We can have them all by making this prayer the soul's sincere desire. Feed on this Plain Bread, never mind the pastries. Let us pray this prayer, think over the petitions, one by one. Consider the pronouns—"ours" and "us."

"Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name. Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors. And bring us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one."

Sharks in Skidegate Inlet—White Hope Last Boat Boat to Return—Halibut Landings

Large sharks, believed to be man-eaters, some of them being over thirty feet in length, have been chasing salmon trollers off Skidegate Bar recently, according to word received at Prince Rupert. The huge brutes are said to make a rush at a boat, then leaping high in the air as if to land in the boat. Sharks are said to be getting more plentiful and more dangerous every year on the Queen Charlotte Islands. They are even declared to be driving salmon and flatfish off the bar.

Capt. Don Yelf of Vancouver, who has been buying salmon at Langara Island all summer, took out the last load of the season recently from Skidegate aboard his packer B. and Y. Quite a few splendid cohoes are still reported to be running in Skidegate Inlet.

Following the closing of fishing on October 22 in the area of the Pacific Coast between Willapa Bar and Cape Spencer, where the most of the Canadian vessels operate, the White Hope, Capt. Pete Thompson, was the last vessel of the Prince Rupert halibut fleet to return to port from its final trip of the season. The White Hope came in today with 5,000 pounds.

With a number of the large American schooners fishing in the western area right up to the closing date of November 1, it is anticipated that November 7 will have seen the final halibut catch of the season landed at Prince Rupert. While it is expected that the most of the Seattle halibut boats will run right through to their home port in Puget Sound with their final catches, there may be the odd one landing at Prince Rupert if prices are right.

No more clearances for halibut fishing are being granted by the customs at Prince Rupert.

National Fish Week was duly observed in Prince Rupert by both the service clubs of the city. Norman L. Freeman, Prince Rupert representative of the International Fisheries Commission, gave the Gyro Club an interesting address Tuesday on the work of the Commission in connection with the Pacific halibut fishery. Col. J. W. Nicholls, comptroller of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co., on Thursday gave a fisheries address before the Rotary Club which proved equally interesting.

The salmon pack for the Pacific coast up to October 15 this year is officially placed at a total of 1,015,575 cases as compared with 663,667 cases at a similar date last year. The packs of all species but sockeye and steelheads are showing an increase this year. Production is up over last year in all areas with the exception of Rivers Inlet. The pack per species this year

Sockeye	275,318	282,848
Springs	72,546	26,207
Steelheads	1,059	1,217
Bluepacks	27,649	25,214
Coho	152,542	71,430
Pinks	215,339	201,461
Chums	271,122	55,290

Bearing evidence of a very rough trip, the well known local six-man halibut boat Lysekil, with Capt. Al Wole in command, arrived in port yesterday and sold a catch of 15,000 pounds. So rough were the elements which the Lysekil encountered that she lost most of her gear as well as lifeboats. Pilothouse windows were stove in and there was other damage. Fortunately, there were no serious casualties although some of the members of the crew had narrow escapes.

With landings accounted for up to and including yesterday, it becomes evident that the halibut catch at Prince Rupert for the 1932 season will run about one million pounds lower than the volume for 1931 which, considering the difficulties of the year, is not such a poor showing. Up to yesterday, landings at Prince Rupert for the present season amounted to a total of 14,286,350 pounds as compared with 15,316,940 pounds up to a corresponding date last year. Canadian landings had reached a total of 4,137,250 pounds as against 5,558,300 pounds last year while American landings for this year, standing at 10,149,100 pounds, were showing an increase over last year's 9,758,640 pounds at the corresponding date in 1931.

During the week ending yesterday most of the halibut landed at Prince Rupert was shipped fresh to the eastern markets with the result that prices were at a fairly satisfactory level. During the week a total of 322,500 pounds was landed of which 257,500 pounds was from American boats and 65,000 pounds from Canadian. The top price of the week for Canadian fish was 6.7c and 3c which the Capella was paid for 10,000 pounds and the low 4c and 2c received by the Lysekil and Toodle for catches of 15,000 and 8,000 pounds respectively.
