The Question Of Sunday Closing.

In view of the fact that there has been a good deal of discussion locally about the recent plebiscite at Victoria on the Sunday closing question, Victoria opinions on the matter will likely prove interesting here. Some people maintain that the result of the vote was an accurate register of Victoria public opinion on the question and that it may be taken as an indication of feeling in the rest of the province. Others claim that the vote was unrepresentative because the majority of Lord's Day Alliance supporters refrained from voting. Mayor Marchant, of Victoria, who was a champion of Sunday closing, falls in with the latter view and declared in an interview that neither he nor his wife had voted on the matter and many others had done likewise on the counsel of the Lord's Day Alliance. "On the other hand," said Mayor Marchant, "a vote such as 7 to 1 against would be impossible to ignore." The matter will be discussed again by the Victoria police commission tonight. Mayor Marchant and Commissioner Staneland favored Sunday closing before and Commissioner North opposed it. Whether their actions now will be changed on account of the vote remains to be seen. In the meantime the Anti-Blue Sunday League is making an appeal to the Attorney-General to withhold prosecutions and it expects that, in view of the vote, Mr. Manson will adopt the attitude that the police commission's policy is contrary to the will of a vast majority of the citizens.

Comment Of Neutral Paper.

Editorially, the Victoria Times, which has pretty well maintained neutrality on the question, said: "The vote on the plebiscite indicated that the unofficial status of the reference did not discourage the zeal of those who organized themselves in opposition to the enforcement of the Lord's Day Act in Victoria. On the other hand it is equally obvious that the supporters of the course of the local police authorities in enforcing Sunday closing, for the most part ignored the plebiscite, so it is impossible to estimate from the count what the comparative strength of the two elements actually amounts to. The number of electors on the roll is 13,200. The total vote on the plebiscite was 4,396, so that only a third of those who are qualified to vote in a municipal election took the trouble to express their views on the enforcement of the Lord's Day Act here, so far as it was possible to give such an expression by this means. Nevertheless the aggregate vote is larger than has usually been recorded at plebiscites in Victoria, but it must be confessed that few issues have been so energetically agitated as the Sunday closing question has been during the last fortnight. The result of the vote, of course, has no legal significance. It cannot affect the local police authorities, who, until, they ascertain what the attitude of the Attorney-General will be, have no other alternative than to enforce the law as their oath of office requires them to do. Law enforcement in most British countries is not determined by plebiscites. If it were there soon would be an end of law enforcement."

View Of Anti-Blue Sunday Newspaper.

The Colonist which has been against Sunday closing, said: "An excellent register of the state of public opinion on the subject of the enforcement of the Lord's Day Act was obtained in the plebiscite. The people went to the polls regardless of the fact that the plebiscite was unofficial. They felt their right to express themselves had been challenged, and they accepted the challenge with a due satisfaction, conscious in the strength of public opinion. The overwhelming majority against the enforcement of the Lord's Day Act in this municipality cannot be ignored, and it will be the duty of the people to carry on a campaign until their wishes have been given effect. Yesterday's vote was thoroughly representative. It was larger than the most sanguine supporters of the plebiscite believed possible at time when no municipal election was being held. This fact indicates a determination on the part of the people of Victoria that the municipality shall not be made an example of in British Columbia as the only place where the Lord's Day Act is enforced."

"We wish that the bitter feelings to which this question has given rise had never been engendered. They are unworthy of the present age. The people, obviously, are in no humor to be told abruptly that services which have been rendered to the community for so many years in a perfectly legal way are suddenly to be constituted a crime. They felt that an infringement of their liberty was intended. This method of dictation affecting a law which is patently one of local option, does not jibe with present-day interpretation of democratic government. We hope the Attorney-General will take cognizance of the state of public opinion in this municipality and not be a party to singling out Victoria as the sole city in the Province where the Lord's Day Act is to be enforced. He has given his opinion that the enforcement of the Act is a matter of local option, and he now knows what is the choice of the people of Victoria. For the moment the matter rests there. We may assume that the Attorney-General will give a speedy decision on the subject."

LORD LISTER & Zam-Buk

Lord Lister's discovery of antiseptic surgery has saved the world a lot of lives, but it has been left to Zam-Buk to bring into millions of homes the full benefits of antiseptic healing.

Zam-Buk is the greatest antiseptic healer the world has ever known. Being of a natural vegetable origin, Zam-Buk has distinct and positive advantages over old-style mineral ointments.

Zam-Buk is a compact and highly refined herbal balm with an antiseptic power many times greater than that of any ordinary salve or ointment.

Zam-Buk kills and excludes disease germs, and instantly allays pain and irritation. It first cleanses a sore place and then grows over it new healthy skin.

As a first aid dressing for injuries, and for rooting-out such troubles as eczema, ulcers, ringworm, abscesses, poisoned wounds and piles; Zam-Buk is used the world over. It has the high endorsement of Dr. Andrew Wilson and other well-known doctors, surgeons and nurses. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25, all dealers.

Lt. Col. Warden Tells Rotary Club of British War Expedition into Persian Oil Fields.

"Before saying another thing I would like to pay tribute to the Prince Rupert men who I took away from here in the 102nd Battalion.

"With due deference to all other soldiers and commanders, I never had the honor of soldiering with or commanding a finer, braver or more honest body of men than I had in the 102nd Battalion. They were a credit to Canada and their home town while serving abroad, and those of the regiment who have come back to you should be a credit to your community."

So said Lt. Col. J. W. Warden, D.S.O., O.B.E., in addressing the Rotary Club at the luncheon held yesterday in the St. Regis Cafe.

In opening on his subject, "Experiences" in Persia, Lt. Col. Warden said that, after having served with the 102nd Battalion in France for over twenty months, he had been chosen as one of many others to go to the Orient on a secret expedition. There was a branch of the British War Office whose duty commands to defeat the enemy, called the Foreign Operations Department. This branch had figured out a way to beat the Hun, and had decided it could be accomplished in 1918, if every man carried out his orders and the task allotted to him. The idea was to beat the Turk first, then the Austrian and finally the German and if their plans worked out the war would be over by October, 1918.

Work on this scheme started in November and December, 1917. The secret expedition was organized and its duty in the East was done in November, 1918, so that the War Office was not very far out in its calculations. Which accomplishment, the speaker said, went to show how thoroughly efficient and well organized the British War Office was.

Baku Expedition.
It was decided by the British authorities that an expedition was to be sent up into the vast oil areas of Baku and Persia, with headquarters at Fiflis, Russia. Many men were floating around in those regions who were to be trained by the expedition and led against the Turks to draw the latter away from General Allenby's front, the idea being to split the army in Palestine. They had to gather up the arms and ammunition, then lying around in the country as there were no means of getting any such things up there.

The party which finally went on the expedition, known as the Dunster force, was selected from all portions of the British Empire, and included Australians, New Zealanders, South Africans and Canadians. All men selected from France were men who had served at least for one year in the trenches and were of good sound physique and absolutely reliable.

Before leaving England the men were rendezvoused in the Tower of London, so that no one would find out where they were going, enemy spies being very active in England at that time. On the way East the party went through France and the Riviera into the Italian war zone where other British troops, who were fighting with the Italians, were gathered up. On the Italian front they had guns up above the clouds on the mountains, aerial and cables were in use for transporting ammunition and the wounded. The party passed through Alexandria, Salonica, Egypt and Palestine, gathering strength as it went along and eventually arriving at Bagdad.

Magnificent Arabs
In speaking of the Arabs, Col. Warden said that in his opinion they were a magnificent race of people. An Arab was a man who would walk up to a person fearlessly and look straight in one's eye. He believed if the British could get hold of the Arabs and train them they would make the finest fighting troops the Empire could get. However, owing to the manner in which they had lived for the past 100 years, having been raided and plundered by other tribes, they have developed into great thieves. Out there they stole rifles out of sentries' hands and would even come into the camps and steal the waterproof sheets from underneath the men. Holes had to be dug in the trenches in order to hide the rifles and the men slept on top of them.

Upon leaving Bagdad for Baku most of the party started out on foot only thirty horses being allowed them. However, in thorough colonial style they managed to gather a few more horses and supplemented the transportation facilities with camels, mules and donkeys. Owing to the intense heat most of the men suffered with sore feet. The Colonel said that owing to the men suffering so much he stopped convoys on their way up and put the men into the wagons and carts.

Baku Country Mountainous.

The country around Baku was very mountainous, similar to our own country but the mountains were very much higher and in some places the troops had to climb from 8,000 to 9,000 feet to get over the mountain passes. There were no roads, only camel trails which had been used for the past thousands of years by merchant camel caravans.

Upon arrival the country was found to be in a state of famine, and the people were dying at the rate of 100 per day. The refugees were collected in by the troops and placed behind to lay out roads, the women collecting small stones in baskets and throwing them on the road. For this service they were given shelter and food no money being asked for the labor.

This method of building roads was the forerunner of some splendid roads being built right from Bagdad to the Caspian Sea, and the colonel said that when he came out the roads built were capable of carrying heavy artillery and motor trucks.

The natives were very treacherous. They would come into the camp at night and drink coffee and next day would snipe at the soldiers from behind the boulders. In that country the natives had no respect for any man who walked and all but beggars rode on camels, mules or donkeys.

Natives Treacherous.

On arrival at Aleppo they found 75,000 men under General Allenby who were there for about a month, when the Turks came up with 15 divisions and made an attack. General Allenby beat them. The Turks in turn showed fight to the Dunster force who had pushed on but owing to their shortage in numbers and the lack of fighting spirit among the natives they lost 800 men out of 1,800.

In closing the colonel said that the British staff in London had figured this thing out months ahead. He had reason to be proud that he was a British subject. He had served with soldiers of every allied nationality but the British soldier was in a class by himself being the essence of honor and justice.

A vote of thanks was passed to Colonel Warden.

SHIPBOARD PAPER

Red-Blooded, Two-Fisted Sheet
Published By Harry Cowper,
Formerly of G. T. P.
Steamship Service.

A novel shipboard newspaper is published on the old Elder Dempster freighter Jebba now at anchor loading freight at New York for West Africa. It is largely the work of Bo'sun Harry Cowper, the sailor artist, well known on this coast, where he served for several years before the war on the G.T.P. boats Prince Rupert and Prince George. Editions appear as time and circumstances warrant. There are twelve pages of reading matter, under a colored heading, with advertisements on the cover. There is a page of comment, a page of nautical news items, a page of wit and a cartoon. The articles include a dissertation on the Bottomley case, an article on the whereabouts of famous old ships, the history of the nomenclature of shipping companies, the doings of the ship's concert party and other "dope" calculated in the opinion of the editor to keep old shellbacks in the forecastle mentally occupied. The editorials in the first number starts as follows:

No Vulgar Display.

"Today sees the birth of a new enterprise in the field, or shall we say the 'sea' of journalism. The Jebba Review makes its initial salute to the public. On some of the crack liners it is the custom to offer a poor puerile sheet of condensed wireless dispatches to the passengers under the name of 'newspaper.' But the Review is the first red-blooded, two-fisted properly edited newspaper ever conducted on shipboard, and that ship is the Jebba. Not one of your fancy mail boats with a vulgar display of flags and brass and its bevy of frowsy stewardesses hopping about and smirking like the back row of a revue chorus but the Jebba, dirty, smoke-bearded workaday old freighter. One of the ugly ducklings of the fleet; a sea-going Cinderella," etc.

The editor-artist confesses that his chief lack is that of news or jokes or ideas for cartoons, but of suitable white paper.

Bo'sun Harry Cowper, whose sea paintings have won him many medals in art exhibitions, including the Prince Rupert Fair blushes under a double row of decorations received for services during the war, principally running the submarine blockade. He was at the wheel of the Olympic when she rammed one German sub in mid-ocean and sank another by gunfire. He also assisted in the death of two other submarines. He is a brother of Mr. J. S. Cowper, of Vancouver, formerly editor of the Prince Rupert Daily News.

SMITHERS

Failure of local citizens to attend the annual meeting of the Fair Association makes it appear as if there will be no exhibition here this fall.

Spring seeding is well under way in the Bulkley Valley in spite of the late arrival of summer weather. There has been practically no rain here so far this year.

Rev. R. E. W. Bidell has been appointed Anglican Church minister here in succession to Rev. F. V. Abbott who has resigned on account of the illness of his wife. Mr. Bidell who has just graduated will arrive here with his wife at the end of next week.

Smithers is making generous response to the needs of the hospital and a drive has been instituted which so far has resulted in the collection of $800 locally.

J. C. K. Sealey has bought by auction the stock and equipment of the Hudson Bay ranch. R. J. McDonnell was the former owner.

The annual meeting of the Smithers Miners' Association took place last week and the following officers were elected: President, J. S. Kelly; vice-president, P. Schaefer, secretary; J. Watt; assistant secretary, L. P. Green. A district exhibit is to be sent to the International Mining Convention at Nelson on July 3.

Mrs. James A. Macdonald left on Thursday last by way of the coast cities to spend a holiday in Ottawa.

Two Men in a Car

A short account of a Trip to California in a Ford Flivver
By H. F. Pullen

SHOOTING A SCENE.

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—Get that spot a little lower. There, now you have it. Keep it there." "All ready. Camera. "Call your maid." "Right. Now we will do that again."

Those were something like the orders the director gave as a few feet of film was made with Enid Bennett as the central figure in the new play "Robin Hood" being made at Hollywood by Douglas Fairbanks at his own studio.

There had been an hour of preparation and fifteen or twenty minutes of shooting in order to make not more than fifty feet of film. During the shooting all that was done was for Miss Bennett to sign her name to a document. Call her maid to her and then look intently at the document as if reading. Simple as this seemed, it was done with painstaking care. The whole lighting system had to be arranged for it. Two or three spotlights were used as well as the regular violet rays with which the general effect is given.

Preliminaries.

During the first focussing the maid sat in the chair in which she later was to be. Then a super took the place where Miss Bennett was to sit until the focussing was done. The lights were arranged, lots of them, mostly above and at the sides. The cameras were moved until the right place was found. Minor details in the curtain and the stage had to be adjusted. All this took time.

Douglas Fairbanks and the other important personages arrived and talked things over. Miss Bennett took her place and then all sorts of changes had to be made. One or two practices were given before the cameras were brought into action and even then, three times the picture was made before the director was satisfied.

Prominent Director.

The camera men have all the lighting effects at hand to and the director is responsible for the dramatic results. In this case the director was Allan Dwan. He sat leisurely on the platform in front of the scene until everything was ready and then he suddenly awakened to action.

I could quite understand after seeing this bit of work what the movie artists mean by working hard. It is a big strain for them to be under while all the arrangements are being made.

Distracting Surroundings.

While only two characters will be seen in that bit of the film, there were at least thirty people present at the time of taking and most of these were engaged in the work. There were two camera men, the director, various assistants, electricians, carpenters, and the other chief actors whose duty it will be to connect their scenes with the one we saw taken. Also here was an orchestra of four pieces playing throughout, carpenters working on adjoining scenes were hammering, the electric lights were sputtering and humming, actors and others were talking and the uncouth mixture of actors, spectators, officials and stage properties all mingled with lighting apparatus, furniture and glare would to a novice prove very distracting.

Only a few minutes during the actual photography was there anything approaching a hush and even then the hammering and other builders' noises in other parts of the building proceeded.

Visitors a Nuisance.

We were quite tired by the end of the work. We could appreciate why they objected to visitors being present. There were less than a dozen on this occasion and some of them were in the way. Had there been more they would have interfered with the work.

I forgot to tell you that we very nearly got fired out ignominiously. As we were getting our positions just before the work began, an official came to us and asked for our passes. We did not have any. We told him our story and he reluctantly allowed us to remain. He explained, however, that it was his

In the Letter Box

Editor Daily News:

(Set to Tune Old Cow Died of Music by Knives and Forks.)

The editor tells me that I do not obey the rules and that my letters should be typewritten.
This is just another sample of how we are ground down by the plutocratic. (That's a good word) press. I have a typewriter
I couldn't afford to pay for her shoes and I can't furnish her with the beautiful surroundings which she would require, so I have to write my own thoughts all by myself. Now if I owned the Daily News, which I do not, I would have a flock of the prettiest typewriters in town ready at the call of any old batches who wanted to use one.

You will notice that, not having a paper, I can tell you all about how to run one, just the same as you who don't have a boat can tell those of us who do have them what to do.

Is it not one of the strangest things that those who work can tell us how to idle, those who are idle can tell us how to work?
Those who are good can tell us all about evil. Those who are bad can tell us all about good.
Those who are single wish they were married and those who are married—well, we won't say it.

I have an idea that some of our reformers would steal the jewels from the golden gates and some of our criminals would pack a bucket of water in hell for fellow-sufferers.

Sport Chat

The recent unfavorable weather conditions have been interfering somewhat with the opening of the sport season. The Baseball Association was to have started its schedule on Monday night, but the opener had to be postponed. The Foothills Association, however, has been meeting with better fortune and the first two fixtures were played as per schedule. Although weather was not the best there were good crowds out on either occasion. The third game is to be played tonight between the Grotto and the Gallies with Jim Hunter refereeing. It is to be hoped that the weather improves soon so that all sport may be properly started under favorable conditions.

It is beginning to look like a merry tug-of-war between the daylight savers and the antis for the favor of the council on the measure. Athletes are generally still keen for the continuation of the scheme but there is a great deal of opposition among the citizens generally as the 700 odd name petition which was put before the city fathers on Monday night would indicate. What is to be the outcome will probably be decided once and for all next Monday night. Perhaps a compromise can be reached that will be suitable. Daylight saving may not be necessary during the rest of this month, June and July. Vancouver is to adopt it on July 1. Perhaps peace might be restored between the differing elements of the community by following a similar course here.

An exhibition soccer game at Nanaimo on Sunday between the Nanaimo city team and the Ladysmith seconds, who had previously defeated the Nanaimo city team for the Brackman-Ker cup, and consequently knocked them out of the provincial championship games, resulted in a 3 to 0 win for Nanaimo.

During the game, Dickie Stobart for Nanaimo, a fast and fighting player for his team got into an argument and with Williamson for Ladysmith help him, another player hit him so hard that he was obliged to retire from the game shortly after half time.

When the full period had been played, however, Dickie arranged a little side battle himself and George Anderson of the Ladysmith team being the principals, while George Hope of Ladysmith was appointed official referee. The battle was proceeding merrily, when the city police stepped in and arrested the trio. They were all released on bail of 25 each later, the charge being "fighting."

The possibility of the 1924 Olympic Games going to Los Angeles were apparently brought a stage nearer by a meeting last week of the French Olympic committee when attention was drawn to the fact that Parliament had not yet voted the promised credits to finance the MONEY INVESTED IN VICTORY BONDS can be made to earn larger interest by selling the bonds and investing in first mortgage on improved City property. And the mortgages are just as safe, although not so readily convertible into cash. Money invested in mortgages is, generally speaking, fixed for the term of the loans which run from 6 months to 5 years. Hence the larger rate of interest. Drop in and talk it over.

FALSE ECONOMY

The family that does not provide for laundry service in the weekly budget is practicing false economy. Under our new plan, Laundry work by the pound, practically the entire family bundle washed and returned, damp almost ready for ironing, for $1.25.

This is the cheapest Laundry Service ever offered locally, and the husband who has the welfare of his family at heart cannot afford to pass this service up without serious consideration. We have also our Soft Finish Service, where for a small additional charge, everything is dried and all flat pieces ironed and folded.

To those who can afford the small additional cost, this is the most complete service possible, without finishing the entire bundle. The cost will be found to be considerably below the prevailing price.

A trial will convince you of the merits of this service.

FINE PICTURE AT WESTHOLME

"Fool's Paradise" is De Mille's Greatest Production Yet

There is a great treat in store for local movie patrons in the big Cecil De Mille picture, "Fool's Paradise," which is the feature at the Westholme Theatre this week-end. This is said to be the masterpiece of a long succession of pictures by this producer which have already become so popular in Prince Rupert.

The story is of Arthur Phelps, a wounded American soldier, who fell in love with Rosa Duchene, a beautiful French dancer. Phelps returns home and goes to the oil fields and becomes acquainted with a dance hall girl who falls in love with him. Rosa appears on the scene and a series of compromising situations follow in the course of which Phelps loses his sight. In the meantime Rosa leaves for Siam and Phelps, now cured, follows her. After many thrilling situations finally everything is cleared up and both are happy in their mutual love. The story is highly colorful and dramatic and is distinctly new and vital.

In selecting the cast for "Fool's Paradise," Mr. De Mille chose his players from the ranks of stardom. Ability, beauty and type influenced him on his selection. The effect is seen in a performance seldom equalled on the screen.

Dorey Dalton, Mildred Harris, Conrad Nagel and John Davidson appear under the banner of De Mille for the first time in this production. Two favorites of past De Mille productions — Theodore Kosloff and Julia Faye — complete the cast of principals.

TREATY VOTE IN IRELAND EARLY JUNE

posed of three sections. It has all the Sinn Feiners who regard the treaty as a victory, and as furnishing to Ireland, if not absolute freedom, the means of eventually attaining all its demand. The Free Staters are also supported by all the mass of voters formerly identified with the constitutional agitation for home rule and by many men who were formerly Unionists but who now gladly accept the treaty as the way to peace.

The third section of the Free State party is composed of extreme Republicans who will be satisfied with nothing short of an absolute isolated republic. They say the quickest way to an eventual Irish republic is to make use of the powers of the treaty to enforce it.

They are understood to be in association with the Irish party in America which differed with Mr. De Valera when he was in the United States.

Opinion Not Uniform.

Though the anti-treaty party is more homogeneous than the treaty party, it, too, is not quite uniform in opinion. A determination to resist the treaty by all legitimate means is common to the whole party. Some of it would include armed force among the legitimate means. But the whole party is not committed to the plan of De Valera for a republic externally associated with the British Empire. That plan was an attempt to make the London negotiations fruitful without sacrificing the Republican principle. But the main force of the anti-treaty party is in its assertion of undiluted and unqualified Republicanism. The most conspicuous figure among the undiluted Republicans is Liam Mellows.

Though the DeValera party long remained undecided whether to consent to contest the elections, or even whether the election will be permitted, it prepared sheets of election leaflets.

Probably this was the first time when electors had been threatened with war by both sides. The Free Staters argument was that the alternative to the treaty was war with England and their opponents retorted by saying that if Griffith and Collins won the elections civil war would destroy the country.

Attitude Toward Ulster.

Great material for the De Valera leaflets is furnished by the speeches of British ministers on the Treaty and Lord Birkenhead's speech in the House of Lords on March 16 has been reprinted and widely distributed.

THE DAILY NEWS

HEARTBURN

A SEVERE CASE

Many people are troubled with heartburn who really do not realize just what it is.

In cases of this trouble, there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by disturbed appetite. It is generally caused by great acidity of the stomach, and whenever too much food is taken, is liable to ferment, and becomes extremely sour, causing heartburn. In such cases vomiting often occurs, and what is thrown up is sour and sometimes bitter.

The one way to get rid of heartburn is to keep your liver active by using

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

and you will have no heartburn or other liver troubles such as constipation, jaundice, water brash, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, foul breath, etc.

Miss Edith Cutting, Shallow Lake, Ont. writes:—"I have had heartburn for a long time. There were gnawing and burning pains in my stomach, and then when I vomited there was a sour and bitter taste. I used two vials of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and they have cleared me of my heartburn. I don't think they can be beaten by any other medicine."

Price, 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

as an evidence that the British government is using Griffith and Collins to "put down the turbulent population of the South of Ireland."

A fundamental difference between the opposing sections is in their attitude toward Ulster. The Free Staters favor methods of conciliation and removed the boycott on Belfast goods. Their opponents reimposed the boycott and daily destroyed goods from Belfast and northern towns.
