PROSPECTS FOR PEACE ARE BRIGHT TODAY

ADMINISTRATIVE CONTROL OF THRACE BY TURKS LIKELY TO BE PROVIDED

Arrangement for Conference with Kemal at Mudania Tomorrow Shows Improved Outlook for Settlement

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 2.—Orders for the cessation of military movements in the Chanak region of Asiatic Turkey and for a suspension of activities of the Turkish irregulars in Thrace have been issued by Kemal Pasha.

The Turks have agreed to an armistice conference to be held in Mudania Tuesday and have requested the allied high commissioners to appoint delegates to attend it.

The Kemalists have evacuated Erinkeu and the British now control the whole coast of the narrows to Chanak.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—With the virtual acceptance by Kemal of a conference at Mudania, the whole near east situation is considered to be temporarily easier. However, the Turks are still concentrating troops in the Ismiu zone, despite the withdrawal at Chanak, indicating, according to remarks after the British cabinet second meeting, that Kemal is playing a game.

Peril of War Less Menacing with Armistice Conference Arranged: Policy is Outlined

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 2.—An immediate mutual agreement to suspend all movement of troops is expected here today with the first outcome of the Mudania armistice conference which meets tomorrow.

The allied policy of the conference will be decided this afternoon at a meeting of the allied high commissioners. The conference will discuss the occupation of Eastern Thrace by detachments of inter-allied troops during the time the Greek army is withdrawn.

Expectation that the Greek evacuation will begin immediately after the conference permitting the establishment of Turkish administrative control.

With the armistice conference definitely fixed, the peril of war between Great Britain and Turkey appear less menacing today.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The Turkish assembly at Angora unanimously approved the action of Mustafa Kemal and authorized the despatch of delegates to Mudania and later to the peace conference, according to a despatch from Constantinople.

The report is a lengthy one.

COLLAPSE OF COAL WHARF CAUSE DEATH

Edward Hamilton Loses Life at Cold Storage Plant Yesterday.

Edward Hamilton, a bucket man engaged at the Canadian Fish and Cold Storage Company's coal dock yesterday, lost his life last night about 8 o'clock when a portion of the dock collapsed as the steamer Amur was unloading a cargo of coal there. The vessel had been at the dock all afternoon unloading and there were about 150 tons of coal on the wharf when the accident occurred, only three tons remaining in the hold to be sent up. Hamilton was the only man on the dock at the time, the remainder of the longshoremen being engaged in the hold of the ship. When the wharf gave away Hamilton was precipitated into the water on top of the first lot of coal, the remainder sliding in over him preventing chances of saving his life either by swimming or rescue. The portion of the wharf collapsing measured about 10 by 20 feet and about 100 of the 150 tons of coal went to the bottom. The body of the unfortunate man has not yet been recovered but it is hoped to take it out on the low tide tonight and a diver will probably be sent down.

Peculiarly, the portion of the dock which collapsed had been repaired only about four months ago and it was a bent over new pile that went through. It has not yet been definitely ascertained what was the real cause of the collapse.

The accident occurred not when the bucket was over the wharf but when it was in the hold of the steamer being filled. There were several eye witnesses of the tragedy. Aid, Montgomery, who was engaged on the same unloading operations, had left one of the coal piles on the wharf, a few minutes before the collapse occurred.

Hamilton who was about 58 years of age, was a native of the United States and came here from Tacoma. He resided on Park Avenue and leaves a widow who is very much broken up over the sudden death of her husband.

HEAVY RAINS OCEAN FALLS WRECKED DAM

Preliminary Construction for new Barrier Was Washed Out Saturday Last

Heavy rains coming suddenly at Ocean Falls during last week caused the water in the river to come to a peak last Saturday morning when flowing two feet over the old dam it washed out all preliminary construction work for the new dam. The new structure is being built over the old one necessitating the widening and broadening of the base of the old dam to allow for the fifteen foot addition in height. It was this portion of the new work at the base of the old dam that was wrecked. It is now believed that it will be impossible to proceed with the new dam construction until next summer because of the incessant high waters that may be expected during the winter.

The heavy rains came very suddenly last week. At the first of the week there had been fear that the plant would have to close down again on account of lack of water but the rain came in greater quantities than was wanted with the consequent damage.

The floods have not, however, curtailed the operations of the plant.

OCEAN FALLS, Oct. 2.—A big landslide took place at 3 a.m. at Elcho Harbor which hit the Davis Logging camp with the result that five people lost their lives. One was drowned and four it is believed were buried alive.

Davis and his wife who were injured were brought here and have entered the local hospital. They were living in the bunkhouse on the beach.

When the slide came down it carried everything before it. The camp was badly wrecked. Rescue parties left here yesterday for the scene of the disaster to render what aid is necessary to the men who are alive and to help recover the bodies of the dead. No further particulars are available yet.

RELAXATION OF TENSION

Note of Despondency Over Situation Gives Place to Hope

LONDON, Oct. 2.—There is relaxation today of the tension over the east situation. The despondency noted in the press comment of the last few days has given way to hope although not to absolute confidence that war has been averted.

The bulk of press opinion is that General Murrington has saved Britain from war thus far and it is hoped he will be left a free hand to deal with the situation until it is settled.

Organization Seems To Be Needed.

There is plenty of outborne freight offering for the vessels of the Canadian Merchant Marine, but very little coming this way. It seems that the merchant marine has no freight collecting agency in the Orient that looks after the interests of the vessels with the result that many of them come home practically empty.

If the merchant marine was a paying concern there could be no reason for criticism, but when it operates at a loss, suggestions for improvement are always in order. It seems, according to information received here, that the Blue Funnel line agents are the agents for the local steamers and when there is freight that the other vessels cannot handle, it is passed over to the Canadian vessels. As this condition is not a common one, there is not much freight handled by the Government line. At present most of the freight is carried by the Blue Funnel steamers, the Dollar line, and one or two other lines that go out for the business. They have agents at the important ports and if those agents do not get the business they are dropped and others appointed.

Visitors All Are Impressed.

All visitors to interior points are impressed with the results being obtained by the settlers already there. There is no longer anything experimental about the country. All that is necessary is to acquire a knowledge of what crops are best suited to the country.

There are people who go into various farming districts around Smithers, Telkwa and Vanderhoof and soon leave and tell stories of the summer frosts, the cold winters and other things to which they take exception.

Everyone knows the winters are cold, that occasionally there are summer frosts in some localities and that fruits and grains which are a success in some parts of the world do not succeed there. What is needed among those who come to the country is a knowledge of the limitations of the country and enough commonsense to enable the new arrival to adapt himself to the conditions under which he finds himself.

Many farmers in the Round Lake district raise wheat every year. They have been there for many years and still they find the wheat crop profitable. If it did not pay they would raise other crops instead. That is the experience in one district. Every district has its peculiar problems and the farmers are working out the best method of making the most of the conditions under which they find themselves. Because one man fails is nothing against the country. There are people who would fail anywhere.

What is noticeable about the interior districts, anywhere from Kitsumkalum to Prince George is that the farmers get results and there is very little grumbling about conditions.

Visitors to those districts are impressed with the wonderful resources as shown in the produce either exhibited at the fairs or marketed there.

More Favorable Condition Revealed.

Judging from the despatches arriving this morning, the eastern situation is very greatly relieved and a definite arrangement has been made for a conference between the allies and the Turkish Nationalists, headed by Mustapha Kemal. This is good news for what is needed now is peace to enable us all to overcome the effects of the great war. Another war would be disastrous. It is devoutly to be hoped that some method will be found to avert such a catastrophe as another European war. Such a condition cannot be brought about, however, by showing the white feather. A firm hand but a just and reasonable policy is what is needed to carry us over such crises as those of the past few days.

MANY DENTAL CLINICS IN ENGLAND TODAY

At the present time in England there are 586 dental clinics, employing 159 whole-time and 261 part-time dentists. The first of these clinics was established in 1907 in Cambridge, and every elementary school child in the town is treated. Originally it was discovered, after a thorough inspection, that only 2.4 per cent of the children had perfectly sound teeth. In all parts of the country school dentistry has proved that dental caries exists in over 90 per cent of our elementary school children. The coming report will, it is hoped, show that attention to dental disease is having a good effect and preventing decay.

 "I am in my 78th year. About 25 years ago, I began to have trouble with my Stomach. One doctor said I had Cancer; another said, Ulcer of the Stomach; another, Gallstones; others, Ulcers of the Liver and Inflammation of the Gall Bladder.
 Three years ago, I consulted one of the best specialists in Montreal. He said I must go to the hospital, have an Ulcer cut out of my stomach and gall stones removed. I was then 74 years old. I said "NO."
 Then, I began to take "Fruit-a-tives". I found they helped me a lot, and I still take them occasionally, and I am so much better that my old friends often ask me what I have done to myself to look so well. I am gaining in weight and enjoying life very much."

WILL PURCHASE ANOTHER PLANE

Len Bell's Company Finds Business Enough to Keep Two Going.

"We intend to purchase a second hydroplane right away as soon as we have raised the necessary capital," said Len Bell to a Daily News representative yesterday. "We have now demonstrated the feasibility of this business and can make it profitable. Just now we have three parties awaiting our arrival at Hazelton to take them into the interior and then we return here to take George Clothier to the headwaters of the Stikkeen.
 "As soon as we get a second machine, one of them will be kept here a great deal of the time, making this port her headquarters," said Mr. Bell. "There will be a lot of flying to do from here."
 Just now the engine is being replaced in the seaplane following a thorough overhaul. A new propeller has just arrived costing $120 with 45 per cent added for customs charges, it having been necessary to purchase it on the American side.

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

The amateur performance by the Baptist Brotherhood of the comedy "Our Boys" in the Westholme Theatre last night was a great success. Those present were delighted with the plot and the acting powers displayed. Great credit is due to Mrs. Jack Chisholm for the manner in which she played the old maid. After the show, the Brotherhood gathered in Knott's Bakery where a pleasant little supper was spread for them.
 The main condition of the Prince Rupert Hydro-Electric Co.'s proposed agreement with the city for the supply of power has been laid before the council. Grant Mahood, head of the American Mining & Milling Co., will be here next Sunday night enroute south.

DUKE HARRIS TELLS MINING OPERATIONS

Two Car Loads of Ore at Smithers Awaiting Shipment.
 Two car loads of tetrahedrite ore is at Smithers awaiting shipment, according to Duke Harris the mining man who arrived last night from Hazelton and later went south. It is mostly grey copper and lead running about 300 ounces to the ton. It comes from the Henderson claim near the Mamie. Close to this are some claims owned by R. J. McDonnell of Hyder which also have rich ore. The difficulty is that the owners of most of the claims on Hudson Bay mountain want too much money for them, to warrant a person buying them and hoping to make anything.
 Mr. Harris has been doing some work on the Sunrise this summer. It is owned mostly by local people who hold the shares in the company. It had been his intention to have made a shipment this year but could not get packers. The mine is on Nine Mile mountain.

DAINTY MISSIVE SETS ALL A FLUTTER WITH WONDER AT WRITER

Number of LimePicks Received by Competition Editor.

There came to the office Saturday a pretty little buff envelope with gilt trimmings that made all the staff envious. It was neatly typed and naturally the competition editor was all a flutter as he opened it without unduly tearing so dainty a missive. This is what it contained:

Good for Wally.
If you admire an actor with speed,
You'll certainly love Wallace Reid;
With his eyebrow raised high,
He can make the girls sigh,
"Oh, he is my hero indeed."

This From Terrace.
Ah! Carter De Haven get busy,
For you're soon going to need a
Tin Lizzie
To handle the bunch
That you take out to lunch
To the place where they serve them up fizzy.

Wonderful Play.
To the Westholme I went yesterday
And saw a wonderful play,
Agnes Ayers was so real
In the trying "ordeal"
I wish she'd ne'er go away.

Christie Comedy.
And "Christie" was awfully nice,
The comedy chuck full of spice,
For "He Married His Wife,"
Had a terrible life:
I sat through that part more than twice!

A Movie Mad Mrs.
There once was a movie-mad Mrs.
Enraptured with celluloid kisses,
So she bought Eucalyptus
Because, as she tipped us
It lessened the danger of phthisis.

Man For a Thrill.
Bill Farnum's the man I admire,
He sends my blood pressure higher;
If you want a thrill,
You'll get it from Bill,
He is all your heart can desire

Let's Go.
Let's go to the Westholme old Buddie
And see old Ben Turpin so funny
We may see old Bill Hart
Who gets into your heart
And thirty-five cents ain't much money.

Well Damfino
There once was a play called the "Sheik,"
By an actor whose name is a freak,
It ends Valentino,
And begins—well, damfino,
Its Rudolf—he's coming next week.

Made You Feel.
There once were two sisters called Gish
Whose acting was all one could wish.
And when Dode and Lil
Were filling the bill
They made you feel good and skittish.

Rocking the Boat.
There was a young lady from Wick
Who said picture shows made her sick,
For once after eatin'
She saw Buster Keaton,
And rocking "the boat" did the trick.

Freighter Canadian Prospector Here for Overhaul at Dry Dock Went Through Two Big Typhoons

Completing her seventh Transpacific voyage which was featured by encountering two terrific typhoons on the China coast, one of which was the same blow that wrecked the port of Swatow early in the month of August, the Canadian Government Merchant Marine freighter Canadian Prospector, Capt. Charles Wallace, reached port at 4 o'clock yesterday morning after having made the passage from Dalny, the Jap treaty port in Manchuria, to Prince Rupert in 24 days. The vessel made but two ports on the voyage just ended, the first at Shanghai, where she discharged her cargo of 3,700,000 feet of Canadian lumber and loaded 400 tons of bituminous coal which is to be used for experimental purposes in Vancouver, and at Dalny where she bunkered taking on 1,600 tons of Chinese coal for her own use. The vessel is here for scaling and painting of her hull in the local dry dock and also to receive minor repairs to her engines. She went up on the pontoons yesterday about noon and will be there till about Friday when it is expected she will get away for Vancouver to discharge her coal and take on another cargo of lumber at Vancouver Island points for the Orient.

After loading at Alberni, Portland and Chemainus the prospector left Vancouver on July 18 for Shanghai which port she reached on August 14. Before entering Shanghai, however, she was holed for two days outside the Yangtze-Kiang River in a typhoon. The wind and seas were terrific but, eventually the steamer made port. On August 31, while in Shanghai, another big typhoon came on and the vessel, lying in the river loading coal from lighters, dragged anchor. Two of the lighters, front which the coal was being taken, capsized and two Chinamen were drowned.

Not Far From Swatow
A great deal of damage was done from these two typhoons among the river craft at Shanghai but it was further south at Swatow, 500 miles from Shanghai, and neighbouring ports where the great storm was centered and where the most damage was done. Swatow was wrecked completely and 30,000 people lost their lives. Wharves were blown down, steamers went ashore and the damage and loss of life was general along the coast, 25 boats having gone ashore as far distant as the Japan coast. The Prospector was fortunate in sustaining no damage herself, but she did not receive the full blast of the storm.

The vessel left Shanghai on September 3 and arrived at Dalny on September 5, bunkering for three days and leaving on September 8. Eleven days out of Dalny and off the Aleutian Islands, the Prospector came to the assistance of a Japanese sealing barquentine which, returning from the Aleutian seal grounds bound for Kobe, had become becalmed and had run out of fresh water. Water was supplied the small craft and the Prospector came on after having been delayed about an hour. The rest of the passage here was uneventful and weather was fairly good.

Particulars of Ship
The Canadian Prospector is a 8,100 ton steamer of the same class as the Canadian Scottish and Canadian Britisher though she is not equipped with refrigerators like them. The result is that she is now used more in the freighting of lumber to the Orient while the Britisher and Scottish are sent to Australia from where they can carry meat. The Prospector was built at Gouglan's yards in Vancouver in 1920 and has made voyages to Australia and Egypt.

HINDU LADY TALKS AND DISCUSSES WAYS OF WHITE PEOPLE
(By Irene Burn in London Times.)
The Hindu lady gazed at me half-timorous, wholly curious, for I was the first white woman she had ever met. Indians find our clothes over-cheap, clumsy, and hideous. They fail to recognize any quality of usefulness.

For her part the lovely little Hindu was draped in a sari of Benares weaving, orchid mauve, patterned and bordered with pure gold. A sari is merely a length of stuff with a contrasting border. It is wound round and round the waist to form a skirt, and one end is brought over the head and shoulders in Madonna-like folds. It is the dressiest costume in the world, and the sari before me was of the diaphanous loveliness of a butterfly's wing.

"Of your clemency, be so good as to sit." Her eyes, as she spoke were riveted upon my hat. The zenana often shrieks with laughter at its first sight of an English hat, but my hostess repressed her disapproval. She expected insanity, and the hat might have been even more foolish.

We sat side by side on a low bed, while her attendants fluttered to earth by the farther wall.

The Englishwomen's Day.
"And now," she began, "since you can speak my tongue, let us make talk together. Of the mem-sahib no true word comes to the pardanashim—the curtain-sitting folk. Let us now make attempt to understand one another. Be so good as to describe one day in your life from dawn to sunset. Then I will describe mine. Let us speak clear words between ourselves. Begin now, and when I understand not I ask a question."
She interrupted my very first sentence.

"Ride on a horse!" she cried. "But I thought your lord was rich. Why does he make you sit on the back of a horse and not in a carriage when you go out to eat the air?"

I failed miserably in my attempt to convince her of the joy of my morning gallop. The Indian lady does not ride, even if she comes out of parda.

"After my ride I bathed and changed my clothes," I went on in despair. "Then I did the house management. I gave orders for all the meals and gave the cook and the table servants the tea and sugar and flour for the day. Then at eleven my husband came from office for breakfast."
The Hindu's face had cleared at the mention of the cook and the stores.

a free Latin lesson to a Eurasian girl struggling to take medical examinations, afternoon tennis, and a dance after dinner I felt my self-esteem crumble into sand.

"Instead of caring all day long for your lord it seems that you take thought for maidens who should, but for your strange customs, be in the care of lords of their own. Also there is no mention of prayers or of God in your life," she said astutely. "Neither have you said aught of children."

"My two little girls are in England," I began, eager to get on to safe ground, but my hostess's disapproval had melted suddenly into pity.

No Sons
"No sons?" she asked, with her beautiful deer's eyes meeting with compassion. But her turn had come, and she described a day of self-abnegation, prayer, and service. In her charge is the house shrine with its god. She prays there for the whole family at dawn and during the day. She teaches the children the sacred hymns, she sees to the ways of her household, and may not eat until all are satisfied. The Hindu lady's first meal is not taken until after midday. She passed over, of course, all the jealousies of the myriad women behind the curtain. Their interest is centred entirely in the man of the house and in the children. Yet she gave an impression of serene content. She did not envy my freedom.

WEEK AT THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday, 7 and 9 p.m., Anita Stewart in "The Woman He Married," Mack Sennett special comedy, "On Patrol."

Wednesday and Thursday, 7 and 9 p.m., "Rider of King Kong," A Pathe special production.

Friday and Saturday, 7 and 9 p.m., Saturday Matinee, 3 p.m., Monte Blue in "The Kentuckians," A Romance of stout hearts and of love great enough to surrender.

Service, distinguished author and poet, visited the Mayer studio during the making of "The Woman He Married" a First National attraction showing tonight at the Westholme Theatre, and watched Anita Stewart play a number of dramatic scenes under Fred Niblo's direction.

"The Poet Laureate of the Yukon" as the famous writer is frequently called, has long been interested in motion pictures, but had never before seen them from behind the camera. He was deeply impressed with the serious side of film making, and made many notes regarding the operation of the powerful lights, the multitudinous details that go with the construction and dressing of sets, and the infinite care taken to get the most out of every scene.

The Judge of the movie limelight campaign will have a hard job making for a number of the limelights are very good. Some of them are rather commonplace but occasionally there is a clever one. The ten dollar prize may not be won yet. There ought to be a lot more people who can write good limelights take part in the competition.

WOMAN HE MARRIED WESTHOLME TONIGHT

Story in Which Irate Father finally Apologizes to Girl His Son Married.

Anita Stewart in "The Woman He Married," a First National attraction, will be the feature tonight at the Westholme Theatre.

Adapted from the play by Herbert Ashford, "The Woman He Married" tells the story of an artist's son whose marriage to a millionaire's daughter brings down upon him the wrath of the irate father. Untrained for the commercial world, the boy finds it impossible to support his wife, but she sticks to him loyally, determined to win his father's respect and to shame him by cutting off the son he had never taught to work.

Complications set in, and when the smoke clears away the girl stands accused of murder with circumstantial evidence strongly against her. In a scene that lured boys with excitement and surprises, the mystery is cleared up, the girl vindicated and the wealthy father, now fully convinced that his new daughter is worthy of the family name, abjectly apologizes on bended knee.

ROBERT W. SERVICE VISITS STUDIO AS ANITA STEWART PLAYS

Famous Poet and Novelist Looking for Local Color for New Novel.

In gathering "local color" for a novel to be based on motion picture studio life, Robert W.

In his new story, Mr. Service has utilized the studio as the industrial background for his characters just as some books have Wall Street, the lumber country or cattle ranches for their locale.

SPECIAL RALLY DAY SERVICES METHODIST CHURCH YESTERDAY

Rally Day services were featured at the Methodist Church yesterday at all three services, morning, afternoon and evening. The attendance for the day which totalled in the aggregate some 400 or 500 persons, was the largest in years and the treasurer of the church reported collections larger than for any Sunday since December 1920. Special music and other features were provided.

In the morning there were a large number of young people present. Miss Haddock took the service and gave an address on her work as deaconess in Sault Ste Marie. Special musical numbers were rendered by the girls' choir under H. C. Higgins.

Both children and parents took part in the Sunday School rally in the afternoon. Special music was given by the Primary classes under Miss Way and the Intermediate under E. V. Ling. F. Derry, superintendent, led the exercises, the two features of which were the saluting of the flag of Christ by the boys of the Trail Rangers and a missionary pageant by the Intermediate girls.

The evening service was of a musical nature, the soloists being Mrs. Stockdale, Miss M. Lancaster, E. V. Ling and H. C. Higgins. The soloists also gave a number as a quartette. An orchestra comprising H. Aubrey Pryce, violin; C. Woodward, violin; A. J. Lancaster, cello, and Miss M. Lancaster, piano, took part in both afternoon and evening services. In the evening Rev. G. G. Hacker gave a short talk taking as his subject "The Call of Abraham."

Sport Chat

The recent inclement weather has been putting the evening outside games out of business for the past fortnight and the reversion to Standard Time now will definitely kill them for the rest of the year. It is understood that the remaining two games of the Stuart Shield competition at soccer are to be cancelled in view of the fact that the trophy has now been won by the Sons of Canada. Also it is with difficulty that players can be mustered for an early session so it is practically impossible to carry on with them. A six-game finish in the Junior Baseball League, the games to take place on Wednesday afternoons and Sundays, was announced several days ago but, as yet, only one of these matches has been played. It is understood, however, that they are to be finished up and the games played to a deciding point at any rate.

Unless weather conditions improve a little it is not likely that there will be much deer hunting until it gets colder. Most of the local nimrods have tried their luck at least once but they seem to be disgusted with the difficulties that are attending seeking for the wily deer at this time. Besides having had weather to contend with they have to climb high to get among their quarry and long packs are usually necessary. The most of them are saying, "Never again, for the present at any rate."

JASPER PARK WAS POPULAR THIS YEAR

Accommodation at Lodge Is to Be Trebled in Readiness for Next Season.

EDMONTON, Oct. 2.—Jasper Lodge, that beauty spot in Canada's national playground along the Yellowhead Pass, was an unqualified success this summer, according to P. K. Hunt, manager of the Macdonald hotel. Its capacity will be trebled next year to accommodate the guests expected.

Superintendent McLean of the Canadian National Railway Hotel system passed through the city Wednesday after officially closing down the camp for the season, and conferred with Mr. Hunt. He is very enthusiastic about the enlarging program that has been mooted and is going east where he will confer with the general manager. At this interview the superintendent will submit figures and recommendations and he hopes that construction will commence very shortly on a main building that will house the office, dining room, rotunda and a number of bedrooms. In addition to this structure he will urge the erection of fifteen more cottages.

Many letters expressing pleasure and commendation have been received by the hotel management from guests of the lodge and these tend to show the necessity for an immediate increase of size. With suitable facilities of transportation, first-class service and foremost scenic grandeur of the dominion, tremendous possibilities are in store for this mountain lodge. The railroad authorities have public support back of them in the project and will continue to improve conditions with the hope that Jasper Park will become the premier playground of western Canada.
