FLEWIN AND KEVIS FOUND NOT GUILTY AND FREEMAN LIGHTEST SENTENCE

Flewin and Kevis Found Not Guilty of Attempted Murder and are Given Their Freedom

After returning first with a report of disagreement and being sent out again by Mr. Justice Morrison to reach a finding, the jury in the Clarence Flewin and Raymond Kevis attempted murder trial at the Supreme Court assizes yesterday afternoon at 5.30 o'clock brought in a verdict of not guilty and the two prisoners who have been in jail for the past nine months were thereupon freed. A murmur of applause commenced to rise among friends of accused in the public section of the courtroom but this was checked off by Sheriff Shirley.

The jury retired at 2.30 following the judge's address and remained out for almost three hours. They returned first at 5 o'clock and C. H. Thomas, foreman, reported a disagreement, whereupon Mr. Justice Morrison delivered a castigation.

"In a case where man like you, seemingly intelligent men, bring in a finding like this, I cannot understand it," declared His Lordship. "It shows that you have no true regard to your oath and have not performed the duty of a jury. I could have understood if you brought in a verdict of guilty or not guilty but if you take into consideration other elements than those which are presented in the evidence you are not performing your duty. Such a verdict as this is beyond my comprehension in view of the evidence. It is such as this that has made public here yesterday, and the preceding year there were 2,275 employers and they paid out a similar manner slightly over a million dollars. The total industrial payroll would be in the neighborhood of $100,000,000 if it had been possible to include the various steam railway systems. One of the industries showing a falling off last year was that of the breweries. Slight reductions are shown in the payrolls of the metal trades, oil refining and paint manufacturing.

LABOR IN B.C. ON INCREASE

Employers of labor to the number of 2,809 in British Columbia paid out in salaries and wages $86,192,190 during the past year, according to the annual report of the provincial department of labor. It is such as this that has made public here yesterday, and the preceding year there were 2,275 employers and they paid out a similar manner slightly over a million dollars. The total industrial payroll would be in the neighborhood of $100,000,000 if it had been possible to include the various steam railway systems. One of the industries showing a falling off last year was that of the breweries. Slight reductions are shown in the payrolls of the metal trades, oil refining and paint manufacturing.

The shipping industry showed the biggest reduction in payroll. In 1921 it amounted to $2,800,344, while in 1922 it dropped to $961,530. Consistent among industries with large payroll was the lumbering group. This department 667 firms returning paid out $23,204 in 1922, while in 1921 firms expended $18,180,962. Twenty per cent of the industry workers are of British origin. The report shows that during the last five years there has been a decline in the percentage of foreign workers. Last year it was fourteen per cent.

RECIPROCITY IS OFFERED

OTTAWA, June 15.—Several amendments to the budget resolutions were adopted yesterday in the House of Commons, including an offer of reciprocity with the United States. The minister of finance himself moved a modification of the latter, which restricts reductions in duties to pro rata reductions which may be offered by the United States.

Mr. Arthur Meighen accused the government of being lukewarm and said Mr. Fielding must know that he had little chance of getting genuine reciprocity with the United States.

THIRD READING OF BILLS OF INTEREST RETURNED SOLDIERS

OTTAWA, June 15.—The House of Commons adopted the third reading of the bill to carry out recommendations of the royal commission on returned soldiers' insurance.

A bill to provide for an appeal to special tribunals from the decisions of the soldiers' settlement board was also read a third time.

HON. DR. MCLEAN URGES FIGHT FOR PROFESSION

Says Unqualified Men Presume to Practice Medicine in the West

MONTREAL, June 15.—Hon. Dr. McLean of British Columbia told the convention of the Canadian Medical Association that when not measuring up to the qualifications of a medical doctor were presuming to practice medicine in the west and urged a strenuous fight to eliminate this "scourge of the profession."

NANAIMO BEAT LADYSMITH

LADYSMITH, June 15.—In the replayed game for the Island championship the Nanaimo soccer team defeated Ladysmith one to nothing.

Manson Liquor Import Law Receives Second Reading by Senate and Goes to Committee

OTTAWA, June 15.—When the bill to give British Columbia Government the sole right to import liquor came up again in the Senate yesterday it was given a second reading and sent to committee for the customary raking over before final submission to the House. Senators Taylor and Pianta of British Columbia opposed the measure.

Sir George Foster and Senator Dandurand, leader of the House, favored the measure.

Senator Taylor in his speech said the real origin of the bill was in Victoria and not Ottawa. It was a contravention of the constitution because it interfered with inter-provincial and international trade. British Columbia, he said, had promised a supply of good liquor and to stamp out bootlegging, but investigation showed liquor of the vilest kind was being sold at exorbitant prices. Export licenses, he said, could not be secured without substantial blackmail for the party friends of the government. The present bill simply substituted one class of bootlegger for another. It would prevent ships from entering British Columbia carrying liquor and would give British Columbia government control of liquor prices in trade with foreign boats.

The object of the British Columbia government was to create a distillery monopoly in British Columbia with a trade of $10,000,000 yearly. No one in British Columbia wanted the bill, said Senator Taylor, except the Liberal party and they wanted it for political purposes.

Psychological Tests and their Value in Industry are Shown by Archbishop Du Vernet in Address

In one of the most interesting lectures yet given before the Rotary Club since its inauguration, Archbishop Du Vernet yesterday afternoon discussed the question of psychology as applied to industry. He told of the value of studying the employees in industry and their capabilities and vocational fitness and also of applying psychological tests to the work in hand and the methods of carrying it out. The laws governing effective effort were mentioned and many examples of saving of effort and increased wages given as a result of treating intelligently the problems affecting work and wages and other industrial problems.

In opening, the Archbishop distinguished between political economy and the psychology of industry. While the former was an abstract science, the latter dealt with the personal equation, the human element. Psychology

M. freighter Canadian Transporter which is due on June 25 from the south to load 400,000 feet of hemlock lumber from interior mills for Japan. G. W. Nickerson stated this morning that 200,000 feet of the lumber has already arrived here and the next 200,000 feet will be here within the next few days. The Transporter is coming here to complete her cargo, the first portion of which is being loaded in the south. The vessel will not go into dock here, having already received overhaul in the south. She would arrive about the same time as Sir Henry Thornton.

Captain Freeman States Reason for Taking Law into Own Hands: is free

Capt. Hoopes K. Freeman was found guilty by the jury yesterday afternoon at the Supreme Court Assizes of obstructing and assaulting Customs Officers W. J. Nelson and John Wynne and also carrying unlawfully an offensive weapon. The jury brought in a strong recommendation for mercy and Mr. Justice Morrison released accused, his punishment being the time he has already been under custody, namely since October 31, when he held up the customs house. Capt. Freeman has not been in jail but was out on $1,000 bail. The jury also recommended that records of entire proceedings of the case be forwarded to the Department of Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa with a view to obtaining an investigation of Capt. Freeman's grievances. His Lordship stated that it would give him much satisfaction to order accordingly.

Capt. Freeman's trial was accomplished in short order. He was arraigned in the prisoner's box at 2.15. The taking of evidence occupied 15 minutes and the jury was out for 15 minutes. On Capt. Freeman pleading "Not guilty" to the indictment, the following jury was selected:

W. W. Wright, foreman;
David Scott, Donald McLeod, James Simpson, B. E. Webster, Herman Capstick, W. G. Oakley, Sid Thomson, H. Astoria, F. Brochu, George Waugh and W. E. Willisroff.

PROSECUTION REVIEW

C. W. Craig, crown prosecutor, briefly reviewed the facts of the case. Accused had obstructed W. J. Nelson and John Wynne, customs officers, in the performance of their duties by keeping them away from the customs house from 9 to 1.30 on the morning in question. The fact that he threatened the officers also constituted an assault and he was also charged with unlawfully carrying an offensive weapon, namely, a rifle. Even if Capt. Freeman had received unfair treatment he was not privileged to act as he did in holding up the officers with a gun. It was not the idea to inflict a heavy penalty on accused but rather to show him and others that they could not act in such a manner and that the laws of the country must be obeyed. The matter of punishment, of course, would be entirely up to His Lordship.

Capt. Freeman was not represented by counsel.

MANUFACTURERS ASK TARIFF INCREASES

Would Also Confine Governmental Sources of Revenue Within Bounds

TORONTO, June 15.—The Canadian Manufacturers' Association at its annual meeting favored immediate and substantial increases in the customs tariff on finished products and preferential tariff arrangements based on the principle of bargaining when high rates take effect.

Another important matter was a decision of the association to ask the Dominion government to confer with provincial governments to determine a policy which will define a source of revenue to which the Dominion, provincial and municipal governments will be limited for purposes of taxation.

STAMBOULISKI SHOT TO DEATH

Deposed Premier of Bulgaria Loses Life When Trying to Escape

SOFIA, June 15.—Former Premier Stambouliski of Bulgaria has been killed while trying to escape.

LONDON, June 15.—A Bulgarian semi-official agency this afternoon announced the death of former Premier Stambouliski and added that he was killed during a fusillade after a party of armed peasants had attacked the car in which he was passing through the village of Slavovitz.

CRIMINAL IS LET GO FREE

Judge Springs Surprise In Court This Morning In Assault Case

It would be a difficult matter to say who was the most surprised person in the court room this morning when Mr. Justice Morrison released Ingva and Christofferson who on Wednesday pleaded guilty to an attempted indecent assault on a young boy. Certainly everybody from the defending counsel down was astounded when His Lordship decided in such a manner when a penitentiary sentence was expected.

When court opened to deal with Christofferson's case, Milton Gonzales, counsel for the defence, asked for permission to call witnesses to give evidence as to the character of accused and his condition when he was arrested. His Lordship said that it would be unnecessary to call these witnesses and the defending counsel could tell the story himself. Mr. Gonzales went on to say that there was no question accused was very drunk when he was arrested and had no knowledge of the act he had committed. Constable Macdonald would testify to that.

In answer to His Lordship, Mr. Gonzales stated that accused was a fisherman and had been one up a half months in jail. On being told that accused was a member of the Fishermen's Union, Mr. Justice Morrison said he would take heed of that fact and thereupon released the prisoner, warning him not to do such a thing again.

Difficulty In Raising Money.

The Swimming Club is reported to be finding difficulty in raising money to carry out the improvements at the Salt Lake. It is difficult to raise money anywhere just now because people are not spending like they did a year or two ago. However, this is not a cause that should be neglected. It is a disgrace that the lake should be in its present condition at this time of year. This week the visiting journalists could not be taken there because of the mess they would see if they visited the spot. So it is with other visitors. Usually the Salt Lake is one of the show places as well as being a useful swimming pool. Now it is neither. Members of the swimming club give their services free and the least the citizens could do would be to provide enough money to make it possible to carry out the work.

Community Work On Trail Up Mountain.

It has been suggested that community work be done in building the trail up the mountain. The difficulty is to have the route properly laid out before any such work commences. Many people would turn out doubtless to help out the trail and make a beginning with the work and the probability is that some help could be secured from the provincial public works department. The trail would be a great thing for the place and could be improved from time to time as money became available. One important thing is that it be in the right place so that a route suitable for saddle horses could be utilized. At the top of the mountain is one of the finest views in the country and it would be a great thing to advertise it as a place for tourists to visit.

Senate To Discuss Liquor Restrictions.

The Senate feared that its character might suffer if it allowed the Manson letter to pass without challenge. It held up Mr. Manson's pet bill just to compel the attorney general of the province to take back what he had said. However, we would like to assure the Senate that its reputation would not have suffered if it had allowed the matter to pass for the simple reason that it has no reputation except one for being an encumbrance on the body politic. The Senate is an institution that the people do not want. Liberals promised to reform it, but when Laurier got into power the only method used was to appoint Liberal senators and then the leaders laughingly said that the reform had taken place. Now it is a Tory stronghold.

To us it makes no difference whether it is Liberal or Tory. In any case it is a pension home for disappointed or worn out politicians and as such should have no place in the Parliament of Canada. One House is quite sufficient in this country to attend to all the legislative duties. Very soon there will be once more a Liberal majority in the Senate and then it is to be hoped that the Mackenzie King Government will take action to rid the country of the expense of carrying on the institution. Present Senators would have to be paid their salaries but they would soon die and then the useless appendage would have been lopped off.

Salmon Eggs From Skeena For Fraser.

There has been a controversy as to whether or not salmon eggs should be allowed to be taken from the Skeena watershed and planted in the Fraser River. The Fisheries department claim that no harm is done the Skeena in taking the eggs away but that by the return of 25 per cent of the eggs in Harrison boxes under conditions insuring incubation, the river would benefit.

J. P. Babcock, the expert adviser of the provincial government, disagrees with this view. He objects strongly to taking the eggs from the Skeena, which is a Canadian river and placing them in a river from which over sixty per cent of the fish go to Puget Sound canneries. The B.C. Canners' Association takes a similar view, with the exception that it recognizes the value of the Harrison box system.

This is largely a matter for experts to fight out, but if there is a doubt it should be thrown in the way of the Skeena being depleted to any extent in favor of the Fraser.

dustry, yet the infant was a lusty one.

In dealing with the problems of the workers one of the first things psychology did was to measure the general intelligence. In different kinds of work different degrees of intelligence were required. Many employers just hired and fired in selecting employees, others formed general impressions of those they took on or asked for letters of recommendation. The modern plan was to apply scientific tests of the intelligence of the workers. There were at least a dozen well known. The test of substitution was to prove mental alertness; direction tests proved ability to carry out orders; common sense tests showed whether the candidate for the position was of the common-sense, visionary or emotional temperament. In the late war tests were used in the American army and officers chosen from the highest classes. The applicants were graded into four grades:

- a. Exceptionally high.
- b. Superior.
- c. Average.
- d. Inferior.

While there were many mistakes and failures, yet the results of the tests well repaid them for their trouble. Never before had psychological tests been applied on so large a scale. Since that time however they had been applied in factories and other industries. Some big firms kept on the staff practical psychologists to carry out tests with a view to applying the results in the work.

School Tests

Tests were applied in the schools in Vancouver and the result was to confirm the records kept by the teachers. In this city valuable records were kept by the teachers and he thought this record should be passed on to employers. Industrial psychology was making an effort to measure the intelligence of the workers in order to discover their vocational fitness, natural aptitude and tendencies. "To every man his work." It was very desirable that scientific tests should be made to find out vocational fitness.

The archbishop gave an instance of one boy who had gone to sea with the idea of making it a life profession. It was only when he went up for examination as second mate that he found he was color blind and absolutely unfit for the work. What a saving it would have been had he been examined before commencing. If pupils showed themselves weak in arithmetic why make bankers of them or place them in accountant's offices? The shores of life were strewn with wrecks of vocational misfits.

The archbishop illustrated his remarks by reference to selection of telephone operators where memory, attention and action were needed. On one occasion a telephone company was asked to be allowed to make tests of the operators. There was a number of inefficient employees who were about to be discharged mixed with the efficient. These were at once detected by the tests, much to the amazement of the officials. The best operators were at once placed by the psychologist in the first class and the poor ones in the last. He pointed out how much better it would have been to have tested the applicants at first.

Curve of Efficiency

The curve of efficiency was the next mentioned. It had been shown, the speaker said, that commencing in early morning efficiency increased for a time and at about 11 o'clock it began to decline until the noon hour. In the afternoon there was a similar condition the highest point being reached at about three o'clock and from then a steady decline with often a slight upward spurt toward the end.

Incentives were then discussed, the speaker showing that that there was no such thing as motiveless work. Among the incentives were rewards, joy in created work and the moral conscience. Every man had a duty to God and men and the employer had a duty to God and his employees. The mental set of the workmen's mind was important. If a person set out to work with confidence it could easily be done. Suggestion thus become an important element. Four of the factors in work were:

Practice, or the law of habit under which many actions became automatic.

Warming up to work, just as a machine ran better when it warmed up.

Settling down to work so that the mind and body became attuned to the rhythm of the work.

Fatigue and its results on the work in hand.

The question of fatigue was then discussed both local and general and relation of fatigue to spoil work. Fatigue lessened the power of control over the mind, senses and limbs. Psychology was doing inestimable work in connection with this study. It showed the value of periods of rest, muscular and mental. This was well illustrated in tests carried out in both military and industrial life and most amazing results were obtained by the Bethlehem steel works under which they were able to increase the wages of employees and get better results for the firm.

Labor made a mistake in demanding an eight hour day in all cases. In some occupations hours of labor might be longer than others especially in the case of the farmer who had a short season in which to complete a great deal of work and a long season with little to do.

Archbishop DuVernet in concluding said he hoped he had said enough to convince his hearers of the value of the new science, the psychology of industry.

YEAR IN JAIL AT END OF FIVE HUNDRED MILE TRIP FROM FAR NORTH

EDMONTON, June 15. — At Fitzgerald — Alberta's most northerly settlement—one W. H. McElhinney having figured out the law of supply and demand determined to enter business as a producer of illicit liquor, but in his calculations he forgot to include the R.C.M.P. and as a consequence he arrived in this city in charge of Constable W. J. Garland of the Fitzgerald detachment.

Like the "hoozy man" of childhood's days, the R.C.M.P. have a habit of "gettin' you if you ain't good" and Mr. McElhinney's still was proved to be no exception to this theory. The story of his trailing, capture and appearance before the local magistrates was short, sweet and to the point. J. Hursell and Inspector Fletcher, R.C.M.P., occupied the magisterial bench and the would-be merchant was fined $500 without costs, also imprisonment for six months. The fine not being forthcoming the brewer will occupy a cell in Fort Saskatchewan jail for a year.

Constable Garland brought his prisoner south via the river steamer from Fitzgerald to Waterways and thence by the A. & G. W. train to the city.

HE STILL HOPED

Mrs. Quiverfull—Forty years old Mr. Singleton, and never been married? It's remarkable. But surely you have not given up hope?

BRINGING UP FATHER

FLEWIN AND KEVIS FOUND NOT GUILTY OF ATTEMPTED MURDER AND ARE GIVEN THEIR FREEDOM.

crete case before them he thought they would have no difficulty in reaching a verdict. However, if they took the submission of Mr. Patmore, for the defence, and concluded that the picture he put before them had been filled in with the evidence they had heard he believed the jury would find that the accused were not guilty.

It was for the jury to determine the facts as they were the sole judges. He, as judge, was permitted in a discreet way to go over the evidence and make comments. The jury were charged to place the value they saw fit on the facts brought before them either by himself or counsel. When it came to the law applicable to the case it was for him to express it and the jury would take the letter of the law from him. There had been nothing proven until the jury said so. As a matter of fact there had been nothing proven in the case yet and any proof had to be determined by the jury.

No Come Back

He charged the jury not to have their views of the evidence diverted in any way by what the counsel had said, and not to mix up evidence with eloquence. The jury could not arrive at a conclusion of the facts by guessing. It was the bounden duty of the jury to give the accused the benefit of any doubt. The defence had been based upon the proving of an alibi which was the strongest and most conclusive sort of evidence. At the same time it was the most dangerous evidence as the prisoners had no come back. The prisoner had to prove at his peril that he was somewhere else when the deed was committed. It was very necessary for the jury to account for every moment of the time which the defence brought up, and they would undoubtedly see the great importance of time in this case. The first witness for the crown had given evidence which nullified the evidence for the defence. Touching upon the evidence of Joshua Ryan the judge called upon the jury to associate Mr. Patmore's evidence therewith. This witness had testified that he saw two men about 10 or 10.30 on the night of the occurrence, one of whom he took for Clarence but could not recognize the other. It had been stated there were Indian boys of the same appearance and it may have been these boys the witness saw. Mr. Young's evidence had told them it was Clarence and it was for them to draw fair and reasonable inferences.

The matron of the hospital had said that she saw two men near the scene in question on the particular night and one of them resembled Clarence Flewin. They had come from the direction in which the assault occurred and went towards Flewin's house. They had also heard the evidence of Dr. Friend and Dr. Spence, Provincial Constable Saint who had arrested the boys on the boat, had warned them and had identified their clothes. The judge also touched upon the evidence of Constable Watkinson who had described the clothes worn by Kevis at Port Simpson, and the evidence of Dr. West and Dr. Eggert as to the blood stains.

For the Defence

For the defence there was the evidence of Mrs. Flewin, a sister-in-law of one of the prisoners, who was a patient at the time in the Port Simpson hospital. She had stated that the prisoner had visited the hospital about 7 o'clock to say good-bye and to make some purchases for her. On his return the accused had stayed for about ten minutes and left the hospital about dusk. She had heard a conversation in the hospital between Young and some other person to the effect that he knew it was Clarence Flewin because he was taller than the other. Mrs. Flewin, another sister-in-law, stated that on the night in question the prisoners were at her place during the material time. If she was telling the truth the evidence was in straight contradiction of the evidence of the crown and it was for the jury to say what evidence they would give to the evidence on either side.

The judge requested the jury not to let anything he may have said in the course of the trial impress them in a serious way. He, like themselves, was a disinterested party and had no feeling whatever in the case. He had remonstrated with Mr. Flewin when the latter was giving evidence, for his own sake and having regard to the interests of the accused. If Mr. Flewin had remembered the details so fully on the night in question it was for the jury to decide as to whether he remembered them on other nights. If they decided he did not they could perhaps come to a reasonable conclusion that he was drawing a long bow on this particular occasion.

Credibility of Evidence

George Brown had corroborated the evidence of Mr. Flewin. If Mr. Flewin, Mrs. Flewin and George Brown were telling the truth, then the hour during which the boys were in the house did not chime in with the time the crown said they assaulted Mr. Young. It was for the jury to apply their knowledge of the ways of boys and their deeds when they themselves were young.

Mr. Johnson, the merchant on the bridge, said he knew Clarence well, and that just as he was closing the store about 10 o'clock they had come in to buy some goods. That did not chime in with their evidence. In order to determine the credibility of witnesses, one of the tests to apply was what where their respective interests in the outcome of the trial. The crown had no interests in the outcome of the trial, and he was quite sure that Mr. Craig had followed the dictates of his office and had not lost sight of his position with regard to his duty to the citizens of B.C. The outcome was just as much a matter of indifference to Mr. Craig as it was to the speaker. On the other hand it was only fair to say in the interests of justice that the witnesses for the defence, naturally had a very deep interest in the result of the trial. Eliminating all the interested witnesses it was for the jury to look for independent evidence. It was for them to say whether Johnson was an independent witness. As a matter of fact the accused was his customer and in coming here and taking the oath it was for them to assume that he was telling the truth. Upon what ground could they disbelieve Johnson? The letters of Mr. Flewin to the attorney-general could not be ignored.

Use Reason

In his final sentence Judge Morrison said "I will appeal to you particularly to summon to your aid your just and ordinary reason. If the evidence tells you that the prisoner's guilt is reasonably proved then the law says that you are to find him guilty." The jury filed out of court to consider their verdict at 2.30 p.m.

the top of the stairs he was advised to stand back. Capt. Freeman was standing in the corridor outside the customs house door. It was dark and the lights in the hall were out but he recognized Capt. Freeman's voice as he was talking to Mr. Wynn. He said, "I am going to get satisfaction." Mr. Wynn informed witness that it was Capt. Freeman and he had a gun. Then witness heard the action of the gun and the captain said "Nobody is going to get in here except over my dead body. He talked to Mr. Wynn a few minutes and advised him (Wynn) to go and get the assistance of the police. Witness then went downstairs and met Constable Cameron. In answer to Mr. Craig, witness asserted that he had been unable to get to his duties in the office on account of Capt. Freeman. He did not see Capt. Freeman again that day and it was 1.30 before he got in the office.

On being asked if he had any question for the witness, Capt. Freeman said:

"Had you any idea that the defendant had a grievance against the government?"

Mr. Nelson—Yes.
By Replying to another question by Captain Freeman, Mr. Nelson declined to express an opinion as to whether or not he (Freeman) had been treated fairly by the department. He believed, however, that Capt. Freeman's grievance had been the reason for his holding up the customs house.

Wynne's Evidence

John Wynne told of going to the customs office at 5 minutes to 9. Shortly after Capt. Freeman walked into the hall and asked when the office opened. Witness said nine o'clock and Capt. Freeman said it would not open that day. Accused had a rifle in his hand and said that he had a grievance which he was going to bring to a head. Witness then proceeded to walk up and down the hall and Capt. Freeman said "Stop, if you come any further I will shoot." Accused seemed excited and not himself and he had no hat on. Mr. Nelson then came along and witness went downstairs after staying about four minutes. He did not get into the office until 1.30 because Capt. Freeman was there. He saw Capt. Freeman go out at 1.30. In the meantime several persons went up to remonstrate with Capt. Freeman.

"Did you have any idea that defendant had a grievance against the government?" asked Capt. Freeman.

"Yes, I heard a rumor to that effect," was Mr. Wynn's reply.

Capt. Freeman—"Do you believe the department of Marine treated defendant fairly?"

Mr. Wynn—"The matter had nothing to do with my department."

Constable Cameron

D. S. Cameron, who was a member of the city police at the time, said that about 9.15 on October 31 he was coming out of the post office and met Mr. Nelson. On information he received from him he went up to the customs house lobby. Capt. Freeman was reclining in a corner of the hallway and ordered witness to stop. Witness pointed out to accused that he was committing a serious offence in holding up the business of the customs house and advised him to give up his rifle and come to the police station. Accused said he had been held up for five years by the customs department and he would not allow them to do business until he got an investigation. Witness endeavored to get closer but accused said to stop or he would shoot. He went out and reported the situation by telephone to Chief of Police Vickers who ordered him (witness) to allow matters to stand as they were for the present. He (witness) was then put on duty outside the door leading to the customs house until 1.30. Ben Self and Dr. Cade went up to speak to Capt. Freeman and then went out to see Mr. Stork.

M.P. They returned with a letter from Mr. Stork promising an investigation. Thereupon, accused handed his rifle to Mr. Self and came downstairs and witness accompanied him to the police station after giving him lunch at the St. Regis cafe. When they arrived at the station the rifle was examined. It was found to contain no ammunition and accused had no ammunition on his person.

Deprived of Business

Capt. Freeman, on taking the stand on his own behalf, said it was not necessary to say much. He had built up a business to Portland Canal with his gashawl and had been deprived of it unlawfully when the steamboat inspector, Mr. Farrow, refused him a license. This resulted in the customs refusing him a clearance. At the time his license was taken away his boat was loaded with freight but had no passengers although he was accused of having passengers.

Capt. Freeman then went on to explain the various classes of licenses for boats. He had been denied a license under all classes. Finding it impossible to get satisfaction from any of the officials, he had resorted to an illegal act to force the officials to obey the law. Accused admitted that he had no personal grievance against Mr. Nelson or Mr. Wynn. The customs had denied him a clearance because he could not get a license from the steamboat inspector, Mr. Farrow.

His Lordship asked Capt. Freeman why he had not gone to Mr. Farrow or Mr. Stork, to which accused replied that Mr. Farrow was in Vancouver and he had gone to the chief federal office in the city—the customs. He had written to Mr. Stork but had succeeded in getting no reply.

"I surrendered myself on the written promise of Mr. Stork that there would be an investigation which has not yet been held," asserted Capt. Freeman in answer to a question from the jury.

"If you had not received that promise, what would you have done?" asked Mr. Justice Murphy.

Naturalized Canadian

Capt. Freeman said he was a native of Illinois and had resided in Washington, then going to the Yukon and coming to Prince Rupert in 1906. He was a naturalized Canadian. For twenty months he had been carrying freight, passengers and mail to the head of Portland Canal and had then been refused a license. He was required to carry a 18-foot lifeboat on the basis of outside water when everybody knew that the waters thus traversed were sheltered. Later he had been refused a license, even when complying with this regulation. "In the meantime, another boat, the Provincial, had cleared for Stewart with a 14 foot lifeboat. He (Freeman) had offered to put on reasonable equipment but the inspector said that he could not get him a license. He (Freeman) was refused a license altogether although he had been informed officially by the department that he was entitled to a license. He had done everything reasonable to get a license under some class and had taken the matter up through Williams & Ganzales and Fisher & Oughton.

W. E. Williams was called to the stand by His Lordship. Mr. Williams said that what Capt. Freeman had said he believed was pretty much the correct story. He did not know what the real reason was and had been unable to find out why Capt. Freeman could not get a license. It seemed that he had been ordered to put extraordinary equipment on his particular boat. Apparently the captain had a grievance although he (Mr. Williams) did not know fully the other side of the question. An 18-foot boat it would seem to him would take care of a great many passengers in these waters. He (Mr. Williams) felt that everybody had a lot of sympathy with Capt. Freeman although some might object to his methods.

Mr. Craig said that it would be unnecessary for him to charge the jury.

Judge's Charge

Mr. Justice Morrison, in his charge to the jury, pointed out that though the captain probably had a grievance he had certainly not gone about getting a settlement in the right manner when he had taken the law into his own hands. Such an action as he had taken was serious and tended to a breach of the peace. If a police officer had gone up and shot Capt. Freeman, he might have been dead today and the policeman would not be to blame. The captain would be in his grave. They would find that he had had no ammunition in his gun and they would just say "The Old Fool." Though, under the circumstances, a hot headed policeman would have been justified in shooting, fortunately, the officer had kept control of himself, no doubt knowing Capt. Freeman personally. He (Capt. Freeman) was running an awful risk however, for nobody knew the gun was not loaded. The customs officer had not said as much but he must have thought that Capt. Freeman had gone a little nutty. As far as he (His Lordship) was concerned, Capt. Freeman looked to be far too sensible a man to do such a thing as he had done. After all, the reason for the action had nothing to do with the fact that he had broken the law in using a lethal weapon to threaten the officers. The case was undecided so the jury only had one thing to do, Capt. Freeman might just as easily today have been a corpse as sitting in the prisoner's dock. The ideal of this trial was to prevent him or anybody else repeating such a silly action. As far as the jury is concerned, the charge is practically admitted and the matter of mitigation is up to me, concluded His Lordship.

Verdict and Sentence

When the jury returned with its verdict of guilty and the recommendation Mr. Justice Morrison asked how long accused had been in jail.

"Not at all," was the reply.

"You have been in custody then?"

"Yes."

"Well, I am going to let you off with the time you have already been in custody," decided His Lordship. "I know you will not do such a thing again and will tell your friends not to do it. The next man might not get off so easily. Like the jury, I sympathize with you but that is no excuse for your action. You may go."

To the jury, Mr. Justice Morrison said it would give him much satisfaction to order the proceedings sent to Ottawa as they had recommended.

KAIEN SHOE STORE OPENS

Is Under Same Management as Family Shoe Store

Another practical sign of the city's progress is evidenced today by the opening of the Kaien Shoe Store on Second Avenue under the same management as the Family Shoe Store Ltd. Such happenings are indications that the management of this well known shoe store has implicit faith in the business future of Prince Rupert. D. Bone, manager of the Family Shoe Store, stated yesterday that in spite of the talk of hard times going the rounds in some quarters of the city, he had found from a long shoe selling experience the public will respond faithfully to the local merchant if the right goods and right values are offered. The new premises on Second Avenue are very compact and have been entirely remodelled on the most up-to-date principle for the handling of every description of footwear. In celebration of the opening day a boot and shoe sale is in progress at the Kaien Shoe Store.

COLTS BEAT PUBLIC SCHOOL AT SOCCER

Good Junior League Game Played Last Night Resulted in Score of 4 to 3

In a good close game played before a very fair crowd of fans at Aeropolis Hill grounds, the Colts last night defeated the Public School by a score of 4 to 3 in the Junior Football League fixture. The Public School opened in the first half by playing down hill and had a lead of 2 to nil before the Colts scored. The latter came to with a rush, however, and when the half closed they were ahead by 3 to 2, having scored three in quick succession. Each side made one tally in the second half leaving the final score 4 to 3 for the Colts. The Public School scorers were D. Gurvich, 2 (one from

TAILORED LADIES' SUITS

Not after all, but first of all, there's nothing like a tailored suit.
Possibly a tailored suit is a wardrobe with you—something you choose each year because you simply couldn't do without it. Ordinarily there would not be much thrill in selecting something that you select each year, but this season there is because styles are so swagger. Fine tailors cleverly placed distinguish the new suits, give them a trig trimness that is the height of costume refinement.
We have added 12 more Blue Tricotine Suits to our already complete stock and are offering you values that you cannot equal elsewhere at a cost of at least $12.50 to $15.00 more than our price. These suits priced at $24.50 to $33.75 represent value of from $37.50 to $50.00. No two alike. Act quickly.

SWEATERS.
Street and Sport Sweaters in Honey and Blue Patterns for Peter Pan Collars and Cuffs. Grenular and perpendicular stripes. Plain and Persian patterns.
