FURTHER ECONOMY IN SMELTING OF ORE

MUCH ACTIVITY NOTICEABLE AT LOCAL DRY DOCK IN REPAIRING OF SHIPS

Granby Will Ship its Copper to Tacoma soon Instead of Long Island

(Special to Daily News)
VANCOUVER, March 1.—The office of the Granby Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. here announces that the Anyox blister copper is to be refined at Tacoma, B.C. It had previously been shipped to Laurel Hill, Long Island.
The new arrangement means a substantial saving in freight charges. Hitherto it had been taken to Vancouver and re-shipped to Tacoma.
The steamers Grifeo, Amur, Anyox, Marmion and a fleet of tug boats operated by the Coastwise Steamship Co., a subsidiary of Granby, will carry the copper direct to Tacoma. The gold will be extracted at Tacoma and the concentrates will then be carried to the market where the final product is used.
Since the reorganization of the company the appointment of the president has been cutting down the operating costs to a minimum. This way they will be able to produce ores which otherwise could not be smelted profitably. The latest move is one more step toward economy of operation, with a view to giving the shareholders better returns on their investments and extending the life of the company.

FEAR UPRISING LONDON TODAY

People Complain of High Cost of Living: Takes All Wages to Buy Food
LONDON, March 1.—Two army officers arrested and imprisoned are believed to be the outward signs of inward troubles growing out of the high cost of living which threatens to assume the proportions of a revolution.
Workmen complain that if they do not get all their wages to buy food and talk of looting grocery stores. The police fear they will not be able to cope with the situation if there is an uprising.

The Prince John, which called at Buckley Bay yesterday en route from Seattle, had 50 more men for the mill there.

TRANSFERMAN FOUND DEAD

Indian Girls Find Body of J. R. Cody—Bullet Wound Through Neck

With a bullet wound through his neck and a 38 calibre Smith & Wesson five chamber revolver lying on the floor beside him, the dead body of Judson R. Cody, aged 45, transferman, was found by two Indian girls in his shack at the corner of Second Avenue and Eighth Street at 12:40 this afternoon.
The girls, Jennie Dennis and Doris Larsen, calling at the house, tried the front door and finding no one in went around to the side. Opening this door, they found directly in front of them the bed with the dead man lying on it. He was lying on his back under the blankets with only his arms and head out of the covers. The revolver was lying on the floor beside the bed.
The girls notified Dr. L. W. Kergin who in turn notified the police. Constable D. S. Cameron and Dr. J. P. Cade, going to investigate, found that deceased had apparently been dead some 3 or 4 hours. The body was taken to the H.C. Undertakers' Parlour and an inquest will be held.
Noises at Night
Recently the police had been receiving complaints from neighbors of Cody's telling of noise in his shack at night. This morning at 10 o'clock Constable D. S. Cameron, in the course of his rounds, looked in at the kitchen window. All was quiet. The officer could see into the bedroom but not the bed. All the blinds were down with the exception of the window in which the officer looked.
Mrs. Norton, who had been staying with Mrs. Ponzio in a house nearby and who had been taking orders for Cody, stated to the police that she had seen deceased at 5:30 last night. He seemed quite normal then. Later she had heard him talking in his house at 11 o'clock.
Cody conducted a transfer business in the city under the name of Cody's Transfer for about two years. He had resided here for several years.

MOTHERWELL MENTIONS EXPERIMENTAL FARM IN SPEECH AT OTTAWA

Hansard report of the speech of Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, contains a reference to the promised experimental farm as follows:
"Last year I tentatively intimated that I should like to carry out what seemed to be the policy of my predecessor in regard to the location of an experimental farm on the Canadian National line some where between Prince Rupert and Prince George. We found a number of localities suitable for such institutions; and in my opinion, when that part of the country is supplied in this respect, it should really have two farms to meet the situation. However, there may be a difference of opinion with regard to that. After returning to Ottawa and getting down to the preparation of these estimates, however, I found that for another year or two we should have to abandon the prospect of establishing a new farm in that district, although when we do establish one I think that is where it should be located. It is not a very good practice to make too many forecasts, because we have such financial limitations to face. But some day we shall be extending the number of our experimental farms, and I have no doubt that this locality will receive one. My predecessor is of the same opinion, as I understand, are all the members of the departmental staff."

ECZEMA

Hands Were Raw
 Would Crack and Bleed

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is commonly called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when exposed to heat, are almost unbearable and relief is gladly welcomed.

Burdock Blood Bitters

has not with it permanently removing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.
 Mrs. M. B. Willard, Dundas, Ont., writes:—"For about three years I had eczema, in a very bad form, on my hands. They were all raw and would crack and bleed so that I could not do my housework. I tried everything I could think of without any results. At last I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and when I had it about all taken I could see it was helping me; by the time I had taken five bottles my hands were all well again and I have not been bothered since. I cannot praise Burdock Blood Bitters enough."

ARCHBISHOP IS BEFORE PUBLIC

Explains and Demonstrates His Method of Thought Transference at Vancouver

INTERVIEWED BY PRESS

Nothing Unusual or Supernatural About Matter, Just Scientific Proof

An interview with Archbishop Du Vernet written by James Butterfield and published in the Vancouver Province will prove of interest locally. The interviewer says:

Archbishop Du Vernet, whose successful experiments in the realm of controlled thought transference over considerable distances have caused some uproar in the scientific world, arrived in Vancouver from Prince Rupert late on Saturday night and I was fortunate enough to be accorded an interview with him on Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. J. R. Seymour, where he is a guest.

I found the prelate an urbane, cultured and earnest cleric, who combined the qualities of an experienced man of the world with the authority derived from his office. Quiet and unassuming, but diffusing a sense of power and direction for which one was not prepared by his appearance, there is nothing of the trappings of the mystic about him, nor are there any indications of the psychological enthusiast apparent. In fact, it becomes immediately evident in conversation that he distinctly disclaims anything unusual or supernatural in the nature of his experiments. He is an ordinary man, who has conceived and pursued an idea until he has invested his views with a definite proof of their truth.

No Miracle About It

Of medium stature, he has a quiet but convincing voice as he states his points and conclusions in the simplest possible language. After giving me a brief resume of the extent of his work in the field of controlled thought transference he said in the manner of one offering the most commonplace:

"But perhaps you would like me to show how it is done; you see, there is no miracle about the business, it is just an ordinary experiment that anyone may carry about in their living room."

The interviewer then told of taking part in a simple demonstration as described often before.

"Now I wish you to understand," said his grace, "that all this is only the mechanical part of the business; it is a crude apparatus by which we help to interpret the workings of the well-known scientific fact that the unconscious mind governs the workings of the body; any other arrangements of the letters would do just as well, and I am fully confident that there will some day be invented a delicate instrument that will record thought radiations with the greatest accuracy."

No "Crossed Wires"

"But what," I asked, "is there to prevent all thought from being received and recognized by all other minds if you prove that its transference is a matter of everyday significance?"

"Simply the fact," replied the archbishop, "that thought radiations are received by the unconscious mind and so are very rarely transferred directly to the conscious mind. This is, indeed, necessary, or the whole human thought and thinking would become a babel of what you might call 'crossed wires' and the whole race would run mad. The conscious mind acts as the governors of an engine, as a limited force and one that gives direction and restraint to the brain, which is an instrument of limited capacity."

"The thing I set myself to achieve was this: Being convinced of the universal radiation of thought between minds attuned to each other, it was obvious to me that a thought from one such mind was received unconsciously by the other mind or minds. The thing to do was to get it out, and for that purpose I devised these experiments that have been so successful."

"What I wish you to particularly note," continued the archbishop, "is this: The question of distance or direction does not enter in any way into this matter; the spiritual force of the mind of mankind is universal and inter-receptive, but is clouded and hampered in its inter-communication by the conscious mind or the will. In order that these experiments may succeed it is necessary for the receiver to keep his mind in a receptive condition and not to consciously exercise his power of thinking in the slightest degree—if he should do so the experiment is spoiled because the thoughts recorded by the pendulum are his thoughts and not those of the sender."

His Study for Years

"How," I asked, "were you led in to this field of inquiry in the first place?"

"Several years ago," he replied, "I was led to notice a pronouncement by the great French philosopher, Bergson, made in an address before the Psyché Research Society, to the effect that he believed in telepathy on historical grounds as profoundly as he believed in the defeat of the Spanish Armada and for the same reasons, but that he lacked scientific evidence in support of any method of producing it at will. It was with the object of supplying that evidence that I undertook my experiments."

I then inquired what developments of these natural human faculties he looked for and noted certain difficulties occurring to me as being in the way of this method of communication becoming generally useful in every day life.

"I am not greatly concerned with that aspect of the matter," replied his grace, "my sole definite object is to prove beyond question that the fact that thoughts are definite things and that they really and actually are radiated into the general thought body of the unconscious mind and that they are re-registered in minds that are receptive to them. I wish to prove to people that when they think, they are not committing an individual act, but one which has its effect on the lives and happiness of others, just as surely as any definite act of the body or any spoken word has such effect."

"Whether it will become scientifically possible to detach the thoughts of another person and record them at will and without the knowledge of that person, I do not know, but I do know that even the most evanescent thought admitted into the mind or formulated by the mind is a thing that goes about its work for good or evil in the world with no uncertain steps."

Would Make Happy World

His grace went on to declare that if he could convince the world of this great truth and thereby induce in people the habit of thinking good and beautiful thoughts, thoughts that make for happiness, thoughts as far removed from hatred, malice, jealousy and sin as day is from night, most of the great problems of civilization would be automatically solved and the reign of beauty, love and happiness would disperse the unhappiness, misery, deceit and distrust under whose dominion the world was groaning today.

Archbishop DuVernet, who has been a sense of humor and yet considerably amused by the attitude shown by the writers of a number of letters who regard, or affect to regard, his simple apparatus as a sort of "Ouija" board that can reveal the unknown."

Nothing he says can be farther from the truth and he desires to correct this impression definitely and at once. There is nothing miraculous in the matter and he was at very great pains to make me understand that thought transference into the unconscious mind is a matter of everyday occurrence, and it is on that definite fact that he bases his appeal for better and higher thinking."

Sport Chat

The Colts' Athletic Club and the Elks in conjunction are staging a smoking concert and boxing tournament in the Elks' home tomorrow night. There will be a good list of live bouts, calisthenic exercises and a snappy program of instrumental and vocal music. An abundance of cats and smokes is also assured.

Now that the basketball season is over and March is here, athletes and fans will commence to think of summer sporting prospects. There is little organization under way as yet but the annual meetings of the football, baseball and lacrosse associations will soon take place and then will come the assembling of teams. With many of the Senior players having left the city since fall, sport will be taken up more energetically than ever this summer by the Intermediates and Juniors and the prospects are bright for many interesting matches when the evenings are longer and warmer.

Of the eleven games played with outside towns this winter, the Prince George hockey team has won ten and tied one with a total of 71 goals as against 26 made by the opposing teams. Prince George has beat Vanderhoof three times, Smithers three times and Quesnel four times. Smithers was the only team to get a tie out of the boys from the Fraser River town. Naturally, they are proud of their enviable record and would like to have action with some more prominent club before the winter is over. The trouble with Prince George is that the town has no recognized amateur affiliation and therefore it is not easy to get into play with the organized southern teams.

Roil Barnes, speaking for the Sons of Canada in regard to outdoor sports this year, states that the organization will have teams in the football and baseball leagues and all other lines of sport this season which will be able to sustain the honors held by the Canucks during past seasons. Work of getting the teams together is now under way and the Sons are getting their share of the talent that is offering in the city.

How often can We Advertise?

NOT How often should we Advertise?

WHY are the Canadian and American Manufacturers appropriating fifty per cent more dollars in Newspaper Advertising for the year 1923 than in 1922?

There's a Reason

BECAUSE they have implicit faith in the pulling power of Newspaper Advertising and in the future trade conditions for the coming year.

The daily newspaper has proved itself worthy of this tremendous responsibility and trust.

Men who spend millions of dollars on Newspaper Advertising yearly know what it has done for them in the past and feel safe in trusting their future fortunes to the advertising columns of the daily press.

HOW TO SLEEP ON A BARE FLOOR

It is more a matter of SLEEP, than of bed or board.

Some people can sleep sitting up, leaning up, even while walking.

Many people can't sleep in the comfort of downy beds; and all of them suffer occasionally from nerve-racking, wearying, tiring wakefulness at night.

There is always a reason for sleeplessness. Usually, it is a "sour" stomach, a liver that has "lain down" on the job, congested lungs, or biliousness.

When, just before retiring, take Chamberlain's Pills. They soothe an irritable stomach, encourage the organs of digestion and elimination to their natural activity, and assure you a good sleep no matter what.

CANADIAN CLUB HEAD SPEAKS

B. C. Nicholas Gives Address in Victoria on Immigration and Its Problems

VICTORIA, March 1.—"What we must do in Canada today is to attract to our country more people and make good Canadians out of them, to build up a strong, staunch, sterling citizenship and to develop a Canadian individuality and consciousness so that Canada may remain a conspicuous and important part in the Commonwealth of nations," declared Benjamin G. Nicholas, Dominion president of the association of Canadian Clubs, and a past president of the local Canadian Club, in addressing members of the Triangle Club here.

Mr. Nicholas referred to Canada's participation in the Great War, and as Canada had assumed certain responsibilities during the days of strife, it must now be interested in what is going on outside its boundaries. It must face the problems which confront it, or else turn its back on the 65,000 heroes who lie in Flanders' Fields.

Unity Needed.
The speaker said that problems just as difficult as are encountered now were surmounted by Canadian forefathers, who laid the foundation of a federal Dominion. With a courageous and optimistic spirit the obstacles should in time be overcome.

"We have not yet achieved unity throughout Canada. There are three distinct economic zones, the Eastern, Central and Coast divisions, and the political and racial differences have not been finally overcome yet by a long way," stated the speaker.

Stating that Canada's trade was greater than any other country per capita in the world, and that last year the trade of the Dominion totalled one billion seven hundred and fifty million dollars, Mr. Nicholas said that one of the vital needs of Canada was people. "We will never solve our problems until we have more people in our country. The statement that there would be more unemployment if immigrants were encouraged to come to Canada is nothing but a fallacy. If the United States had allowed this argument to interfere with its immigration policy, it would not have one-third the people that it has in its country today.

Compulsion of Necessity.
"The thing that starts development is the impulse or compulsion of necessity. The railroad problems and other difficulties will only be as a millstone around our neck, and will but make a continual hole in the treasury as long as we fail to encourage people to come to Canada, people who are ready to work, and who are willing to do the pioneering in the vast hinterland which is ours. We want people who will think that Canada is heaven in comparison to the country from which they have come, and who we hope will become good Canadians. The country as yet has only been sparsely developed and populated, and we could easily accommodate between fifty and seventy millions of people in the Dominion."

Another matter that should receive attention, continued Mr. Nicholas, was the relations between the east and the west. He stated that what was desired was for the East and West to realize that they each had equal justification for holding the viewpoint that they did, but that they should be brought to sympathize with each other in the problems which affect the Dominions as a whole.

Dominion Consciousness.
"Canada is in a most favorable position. The dollar and currency have come back and returned to normal quicker than the money of any other country except the United States. The best future that Canada can have lies within the Empire, and Canadians, by helping to develop the Dominion consciousness, can take pride in the fact that Canada is a Dominion in the Commonwealth of Nations. If everyone will keep Canada first in mind, would think continuously of Canada and its problems, and how they may be solved, then the Dominion will become one of the most powerful, largest and most conspicuous of the

Husband Didn't Dare Leave Her Alone Heart Was So Bad

Those feelings of faintness, those dizzy spells, the all-gone sinking sensations which come on from time to time indicate a weakened condition of the heart and a disordered state of the nerves.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have no equal as a remedy to strengthen the heart, invigorate the nerves and build up the run-down system.

Mrs. C. Vanburn, Ekville, Alta., writes:—"About a year ago I had heart trouble. My husband didn't dare leave me alone, and often had to stay up at night with me. I would just feel kind of faint and my heart would seem to stop beating. I would just faint away, and it would sometimes be an hour before they could bring me back to life. Someone told me about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got three boxes; I took them and felt much better, so continued all Winter, and now I never feel any such faintness. I surely do appreciate the good they have done for me."
