PIONEERS ARE BENEFICIARIES

Old Timers of Home Remembered In Will of John Lichtenberg

SAN FRANCISCO—John Lichtenberg, 81-year-old bachelor, in business for many years in Nome, Alaska, died here recently. His will provided for a trust fund of $10,000 for old timers living at the Pioneers' Home in Sitka. The will also provided that, should any relatives claim any part of the estate, they be given one dollar.

The will stipulates that the $10,000 be divided into five units with the residue of each unit, plus $1,000, to be distributed among the pioneers in the Home each Christmas.

Substantial bequests were also made to two friends in San Francisco and two friends in Seattle. These are war bonds.

First Large Scale Movement of Displaced Persons to Arrive Soon

Coming to work in the lumber industry in various parts of the country, the group, from the British and United States occupation zones of Germany, will number 600 lumbermen and more than 250 of their wives and children. They are expected to arrive in Canada about August 1 on a specially chartered United States vessel, the name of which has not been released.

This period will be from July 28 to August 3, and later, the vessel will take in the lower Quebec coast line and include the ports of Murray Bay, Rimouski and Gaspé. She will return to Halifax September 2.

PRAIRIES HAVE WARM WEATHER

Some Additional Rainfall Would be Helpful

WINNIPEG—Weather has been generally warm over the Prairies during the past week, with scattered showers and hail storms occasioning light damage. According to the weekly crop report of the Department of Agriculture of the Canadian National Railways.

Areas in west central Saskatchewan and east central Alberta have had below normal precipitation this season and additional rainfall is required there to prevent deterioration.

Hot weather is forcing the cherry crop in the Okanagan and cherries have now passed their peak at the southern end of that territory. Vegetables are moving freely and apricot and peach shipments have also started. No damage from any source is reported.

Before the week was done three more arrived to participate in the Marian Congress, to which Cardinal McGuigan was the specially appointed papal legate. The ceremony marked the opening of the Marian Congress.

The New Attitude

JUDGING FROM STATEMENTS he made in an interview at Vancouver yesterday, W. R. Devenish, vice-president in charge of western lines, Canadian National Railways, who was in Prince Rupert last week, has also been inspired by the new outlook for this port and district as have been many other recent visitors of importance here. He predicted great expansion of northern and central British Columbia and of shipping through Prince Rupert in the next few years. It is encouraging to hear officials such as Mr. Devenish speaking this way. Their new and publicly expressed interest and optimism will, undoubtedly, inspire action on our behalf as far as it is within their power.

INTERNATIONAL LOAD LINE

IT WAS A LONG FIGHT that the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce had to have international load line restrictions on this coast amended so as to put Prince Rupert on a basis of equality with Vancouver. Of course, the matter has not been settled yet and will not be until the international convention on the safety of life at sea is held in London. However, it is to be assumed that, with the recommendation of the Canadian government, the necessary change will come as a matter of course. Thereby, another step will have been taken toward the goal of establishing this as a world shipping port. A discrimination, for which there was probably never any very good reason, will have been removed.

MEN WEAR CLOTHES TOO

WOMEN'S CLOTHES are news. Much advertising is devoted to promoting the sale of things designed to be worn by women, from fur coats to garments of which men with proper Victorian upbringings used to be unaware. The women's pages of newspapers and magazines report the most trivial deviations in style. Fashion parades of women's clothes are held on the least excuse.

There is nothing wrong with this. Even a male can find some interest in such news and advertisements. Nor are men uninterested in clothes and men's fashions although a parade of men's fashions draws facile ridicule from the columnists and the occasional full-page newspaper advertisement of men's clothing does not emphasize novelty. No chatty little paragraphs about what men of distinction are wearing appear on the financial or sports pages.

Yet there is a news interest in men's clothes, or how would fashions ever change? A group photograph of 1910 will show the men looking as out of date as the women, and no matter how a man may affect to despise clothes he is peeved if his new suit is unnoticed.

It is possible to argue that men are more discriminating than women. A change of fashion in a man's suit may merely be a difference in the cut of a lapel or the width of a trouser cuff. To alter the fashion in women's dresses the designers have to add or subtract several inches from the length of the skirt and move the waist-line from the hips to the shoulders. Attempts to get men to accept more comfortable clothing succeed slowly, but a man dressed in the lightest tropical worsted suit is still carrying several ounces more weight than his womenfolk think requisite for either comfort or decency. Perhaps men would be better off if they gave more encouragement to the designers of their fashions. A little imagination applied to the business suit could work wonders.

$600 Norse Bounty Spurs Wolf Hunters

OSLO (C)—With a bounty of $600 per head, wolverines are being hunted in Norway as never before, the Norwegian government news bureau announces. Last year, doughty Norsemen killed 80 of the savage animals and collected $56,000, the bounty then being $700 a head. Doubts have been raised as to whether Norwegian hunters, not overly careful as to international boundaries, might not have been bagging wolverines in Sweden or Finland, neither of which pay bounties. It has been ruled that the district sheriff must vouch for the hunter in those sections where the three countries join.

TRADITION MEETING

Strawberry Banquet Enjoyed
Delegates to Convention

TRADITION—The Terrace Board held its quarterly meeting Tuesday, the occasion was attended by the addition, after a business session, of a banquet of Terrace strawberries. The present year's crop is an excellent one and this cheerful state of affairs was reflected at the banquet tables which were provided for the delegates. The meeting and social was held in the Orange Hall, a large commodious building, very suitable for such events. Present George McAdams, from the Terrace, welcomed to Terrace by those people who have moved up residence during the past two or three years. It was noted that these represented about forty per cent of the gathering, which totalled over a hundred delegates to the Convention of Associated Boards in August held in Prince Rupert were as follows: C. Haugland, D. K. Kerr, H. W. C. Osborne, W. Robinson, N. Sherwood and O. T. Sun-

TERRACE TENNIS CLUB DISBANDED

Assets are Handed Over to Civic Centre

TERRACE—The tennis club has ended its career and at the final meeting yesterday it was decided to hand over the assets to Terrace Civic Centre, a letter accompanying the bank book expressing the hope that a new tennis club will materialize in connection with the civic centre. President of the club, J. A. Barman, thanked his colleagues on the committee for their efforts during the past two or three years to keep the club going. However, present inflationary costs made it impossible to keep the old wooden court in repair and he thought the meeting had made the best decision they could under the circumstances. He hoped among the large number of younger people who have come to Terrace, that a prosperous club would be developed at the Civic Centre.

Penny Wishing Well Has Many Pilgrims

INVERNESS, Scotland—The annual pilgrimage to the Cloutie Well at Culloden, near this Highland capital, was attended by thousands although the church has protested it is a relic of a pagan custom. The well, known as a "wishing well" where hopes may be translated into achievement, demands a certain formula. A coin is thrown in the water, the water is sipped and a cloth or "clouties" is fastened to a nearby tree. Historians say this is exactly the ceremonial observed by pagans hundreds of years ago when they made their vows and prayers to the god of the well and asked his blessing and protection. When the visitors have gone the money is lifted from the well and most of it is given to a hospital fund.

ELIZABETH IS RADIANT

Receives Engagement Felicitations From All Over World

LONDON—The radiant Princess Elizabeth, her eyes sparkling like the three diamond engagement ring that glistened on her third finger, received best wishes from all parts of the world yesterday following the announcement of her betrothal to Mountbatten. "We are very, very happy," the 21-year-old Princess told a friend as she leafed through pile after pile of congratulatory messages in Buckingham Palace where her handsome 26-year-old fiance is also in residence. Outside the Palace a crowd that swelled to more than 2000 stood in steady rain for a sight of the Princess.

Seasonable Ideas for Housekeepers

COOKING SUMMER VEGETABLES; SOME TEMPTING DISHES HERE

The homemaker has two objects in view during warm summer. She tries to prepare appetizing meals and at the same time save herself from exertion.

At least one hot meal is necessary even in summer weather but this meal may be planned and cooked so that the kitchen does not get too hot.

Nature has provided tempting foods fresh from the garden. Vegetables are quickly cooked on top of the stove and so use a minimum of heat. If careful plans are made, double or even triple use may be made of one burner.

Home Economists offer several suggestions for making the best use of summer vegetables.

Nothing supplements the flavor of cooked vegetables as well as butter, but there are many other appetizing sauces which are delicious.

Here are a few. Pickle little beets whole and have them ready to serve on a moment's notice. In a salad or a relish with cold meat everyone enjoys them, but when quickly reheated in the vinegar and served hot as a vegetable they are extra good and require no fat. The vinegar may be thickened to serve as a sauce, if you like.

A little milk added to vegetables 5 minutes before they finish cooking will concentrate and thicken slightly if the lid is left off for those last few minutes. Of course, this applies only when vegetables have been cooked in the minimum of water. If there still seems to be too much liquid—it can be thickened with flour mixed with a little cold milk—no fat is needed.

Sweet Sour Beans

6 cups beans cut in 1 inch pieces
1 cup boiling water
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 tablespoons melted fat
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 tablespoon vinegar
1/2 teaspoon salt
dash of cinnamon

Cook beans in boiling water for 15 minutes. Brown onion in the fat. Add sugar, vinegar, salt and cinnamon. Add to cooked beans. Simmer 10 minutes. Six servings.

VISIT TO SEAL COVE PLAYGROUND AND SOME REFLECTIONS THEREON

(By M. E. ANDERER)

"Jimmy, look how high I can swing!" Jimmy paused long enough in his construction job to look up and say, "Oh, I can swing higher than that" but he kept on building.

It was at Seal Cove playground, one of the grounds operated and supervised by the Civic Centre Association with Miss Lovena Linney in charge at present.

Jimmy was very busy. He had started a construction job and was wholly engrossed in it. It was in the sandpile. It was quite an elaborate scheme and, while there was no blueprint in sight, it was very evident that the whole plan was in existence in Jimmy's head. In as much as he had the material at hand, and he was supplying his own labor he was not being held up by the usual current complaint "shortage of materials and labor".

There was a young lady equally absorbed in her major construction job. In fact she was so absorbed that she inadvertently "backed up" and knocked down some of Jimmy's handiwork.

"Oh, look what you've done!" And Mary turned round. "Oh, I'm sorry, I didn't mean to do it." "Oh, that's all right, I can fix it," and things were settled, just as easily as that. No need for a labor dispute; no jurisdictional differences; no need for a breakdown in relations!

Children can learn a lot more in a sandpile than just building sandcastles. And if the playgrounds taught nothing more than what was exemplified in this little incident, they would have made a major contribution to the art of living. The recognition of one another's rights, and of one's own faults; the learning to work in harmony, even when things go wrong, all go to make up the ideal way of living. The playground is one place where the foundations for rightful living are being laid.

But to swing back to the swings! The four small swings were in full use. The easy motion has a fascination all its own and the youngsters were happy. One had got out of his own swing and had twisted the chains around one another. Then he let go to see what would happen. It was interesting. What will he be when he grows up? An inventor? He was an adventurer anyway, and he was enjoying life.

Towards the other end were the bigger swings. They were all occupied too. The rhythm of the rise and fall is satisfying. "How do you like to go up in a swing?" Well, they had the answer. They liked it.

"Go, go, stop." They were really enjoying this game. Under the leadership of one of them, the girl seemed to be about twelve, a group of varying ages was playing the game zestfully. "You go back, May, and Johnny," and May and Johnny went back cheerfully. We felt that they were learning to do one of the hard things of life, to go back and start all over again. But they did it cheerily. And then the wise mistress of ceremonies with mature judgment suggested that May did not need to go right back to the start. She and Johnny would go back just to where Betty was. It was a thoughtful gesture; and there was no protest from any of the other players. Yes, there was a lesson there too. That is what should be "our way of life".

There is a little creek at the side, and the running water had its usual appeal for the four little boys, about four years of age, and a venturesome young lady of about the same age. And stones do make a nice splash; and the biggest rocks would make an even bigger splash! But George Ferguson (sr.) was not happy about it. He had already pulled a youngster out of the water—it is a foot deep—so he warned them to keep away from it. There were other things

SEAL COVE (A Coincidence)

"She didn't know whether the cove had much of a name. For herself, she had christened it Seal Cove, because once, at half tide, she had found a pair of the sleek lovely creatures basking on the rocks there."
