Bell Which Clanged Out in Early Days is Freed From Fire Hall

The city's ancient fire bell, that veteran of many which figuratively was pushed from its perch by that new-fangled invention, the siren, came down from its tower this week when the job of rebuilding the fire bell tower was completed.

The bell, which stood more than 100 years ago, was hoisted to its perch in 1910 and in 1920 years it clanged as a warning of fires which almost always came from the west side of Prince Rupert.

The progress in the rebuilding of the fire bell tower was such that the old bell was freed from its perch in the tower. The bell was not rung until 11:45.

Missionary Outpost
in Newfoundland

ST. ANTHONY, Newfoundland (CP)—Forty-one British seamen rested today at this international Grenfell mission outpost after a five-day ordeal of being marooned on a barren rock on Newfoundland's northern tip after the Hull freighter Langleecrag went ashore on Saturday and broke in half. They were brought here last night by the Norwegian whaler Olaf Olsen which took them off the rock by means of a line after another British freighter, Empire McCallum, had been unable to send a lifeboat crew ashore. In fact the lifeboat crew which was almost lost, was driven ashore at another village ten miles away and left behind to be picked up later.

SHORTENED LANDING RUN OF BIG PLANES—Newly-developed four-wheel main landing gears are being installed on production-model B-36 super bombers at a San Diego airplane plant. The eight 56-inch wheels distribute the bomber's 278,000 pounds over a greater area than on two wheels and this weight distribution, coupled with shortened landing runs resulting from reversible-pitch propellers, will enable the giant six-engine bomber to utilize a greater number of airfields.

WOMAN SAVED FROM DEATH

Mrs. Mary Griffiths of Vancouver Owe Life to Presence of Mind of Motorman

VANCOUVER, ©—A motorman was credited last night with saving Mrs. Mary Griffiths aged 60, from death when she fell under his street car. Motorman William Robert Ken, aged 34, threw on the brakes when Mrs. Griffiths tumbled, hitting the safety strip under the front of the car and cutting off the power. Another few inches and she would have been killed. She was extricated 15 minutes later and taken to hospital where her condition was said to be fair.

Mr. King is Impressed

Canada's Prime Minister Had Honored Place at Royal Wedding

LONDON, ©—Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King of Canada drove by himself today from his West End hotel to Westminster Abbey to attend the Royal Wedding. His automobile did not follow the route of the royal procession but he won cheers when he was recognized outside the Abbey. Later the Prime Minister attended a reception at Buckingham Palace.

"The ceremony surpassed in solemnity and beauty anything I had expected," said Mr. King. The voice of the Princess was "sweet and melodious" and that of the new Prince "strong and clear."

Mr. King, as next in seniority of the Commonwealth Prime Ministers, sat next to Prime Minister C. R. Attlee.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis

Cloudy skies were fairly general over most of the province this morning. A cool air mass has pushed south over the central interior and, as a result of local clearing in the Prince George area, the temperature dropped to 7 above zero this morning. Thick fog over the southern mainland was expected to lift during the forenoon. A slowly moving disturbance is approaching the north coast and will bring some rain to those areas but is not expected to affect the rest of the province.

Forecast

Prince Rupert, Queen Charlottes and North Coast—Overcast today and Friday. Intermittent light rain beginning during late afternoon. Winds light. Little change in temperature. Lows tonight and highs Friday—At Port Hardy 37 and 47, Massett 36 and 47, Prince Rupert 39 and 46.

PLANE CRASH KILLS COUPLE

VANCOUVER ©—Two persons were killed on nearby Lulu Island today when their small Tiger Moth plane plummeted from 300 feet to crash near the intersection of Rbd No. 8 and the Westminster Highway.

The dead are Robert Lovell, aged 25, of Penticton, and Joan Little, 18, of Vancouver, reported to be his fiancée.

Rescuers said that Miss Little, who was riding in the front cockpit, was buried under four feet of earth. Only ten feet of the plane's tail showed above the ground.

The plane got into difficulty soon after taking off for a flight to Chilliwack.

FOUR KILLED AT LEVEL CROSSING

PORT ARTHUR ©—Four persons, one a child, were killed instantly and a fifth was seriously injured today when an automobile was struck by a Canadian Pacific Railway train at a level crossing at Loon Lake, 28 miles east of Port Arthur.

The dead are Francis Guse and Mrs. Harold Guse of Loon Lake, Mrs. Guse's child and Kay Sully, a school teacher from Schreiber, Ontario.

Harold Guse is enroute to hospital here.

BETTY WHITE SEES PARADE

LONDON ©—Sixteen-year-old Betty White of Winnipeg saw the royal wedding procession today from a fifth floor window of the Commonwealth Relations Office overlooking Whitehall.

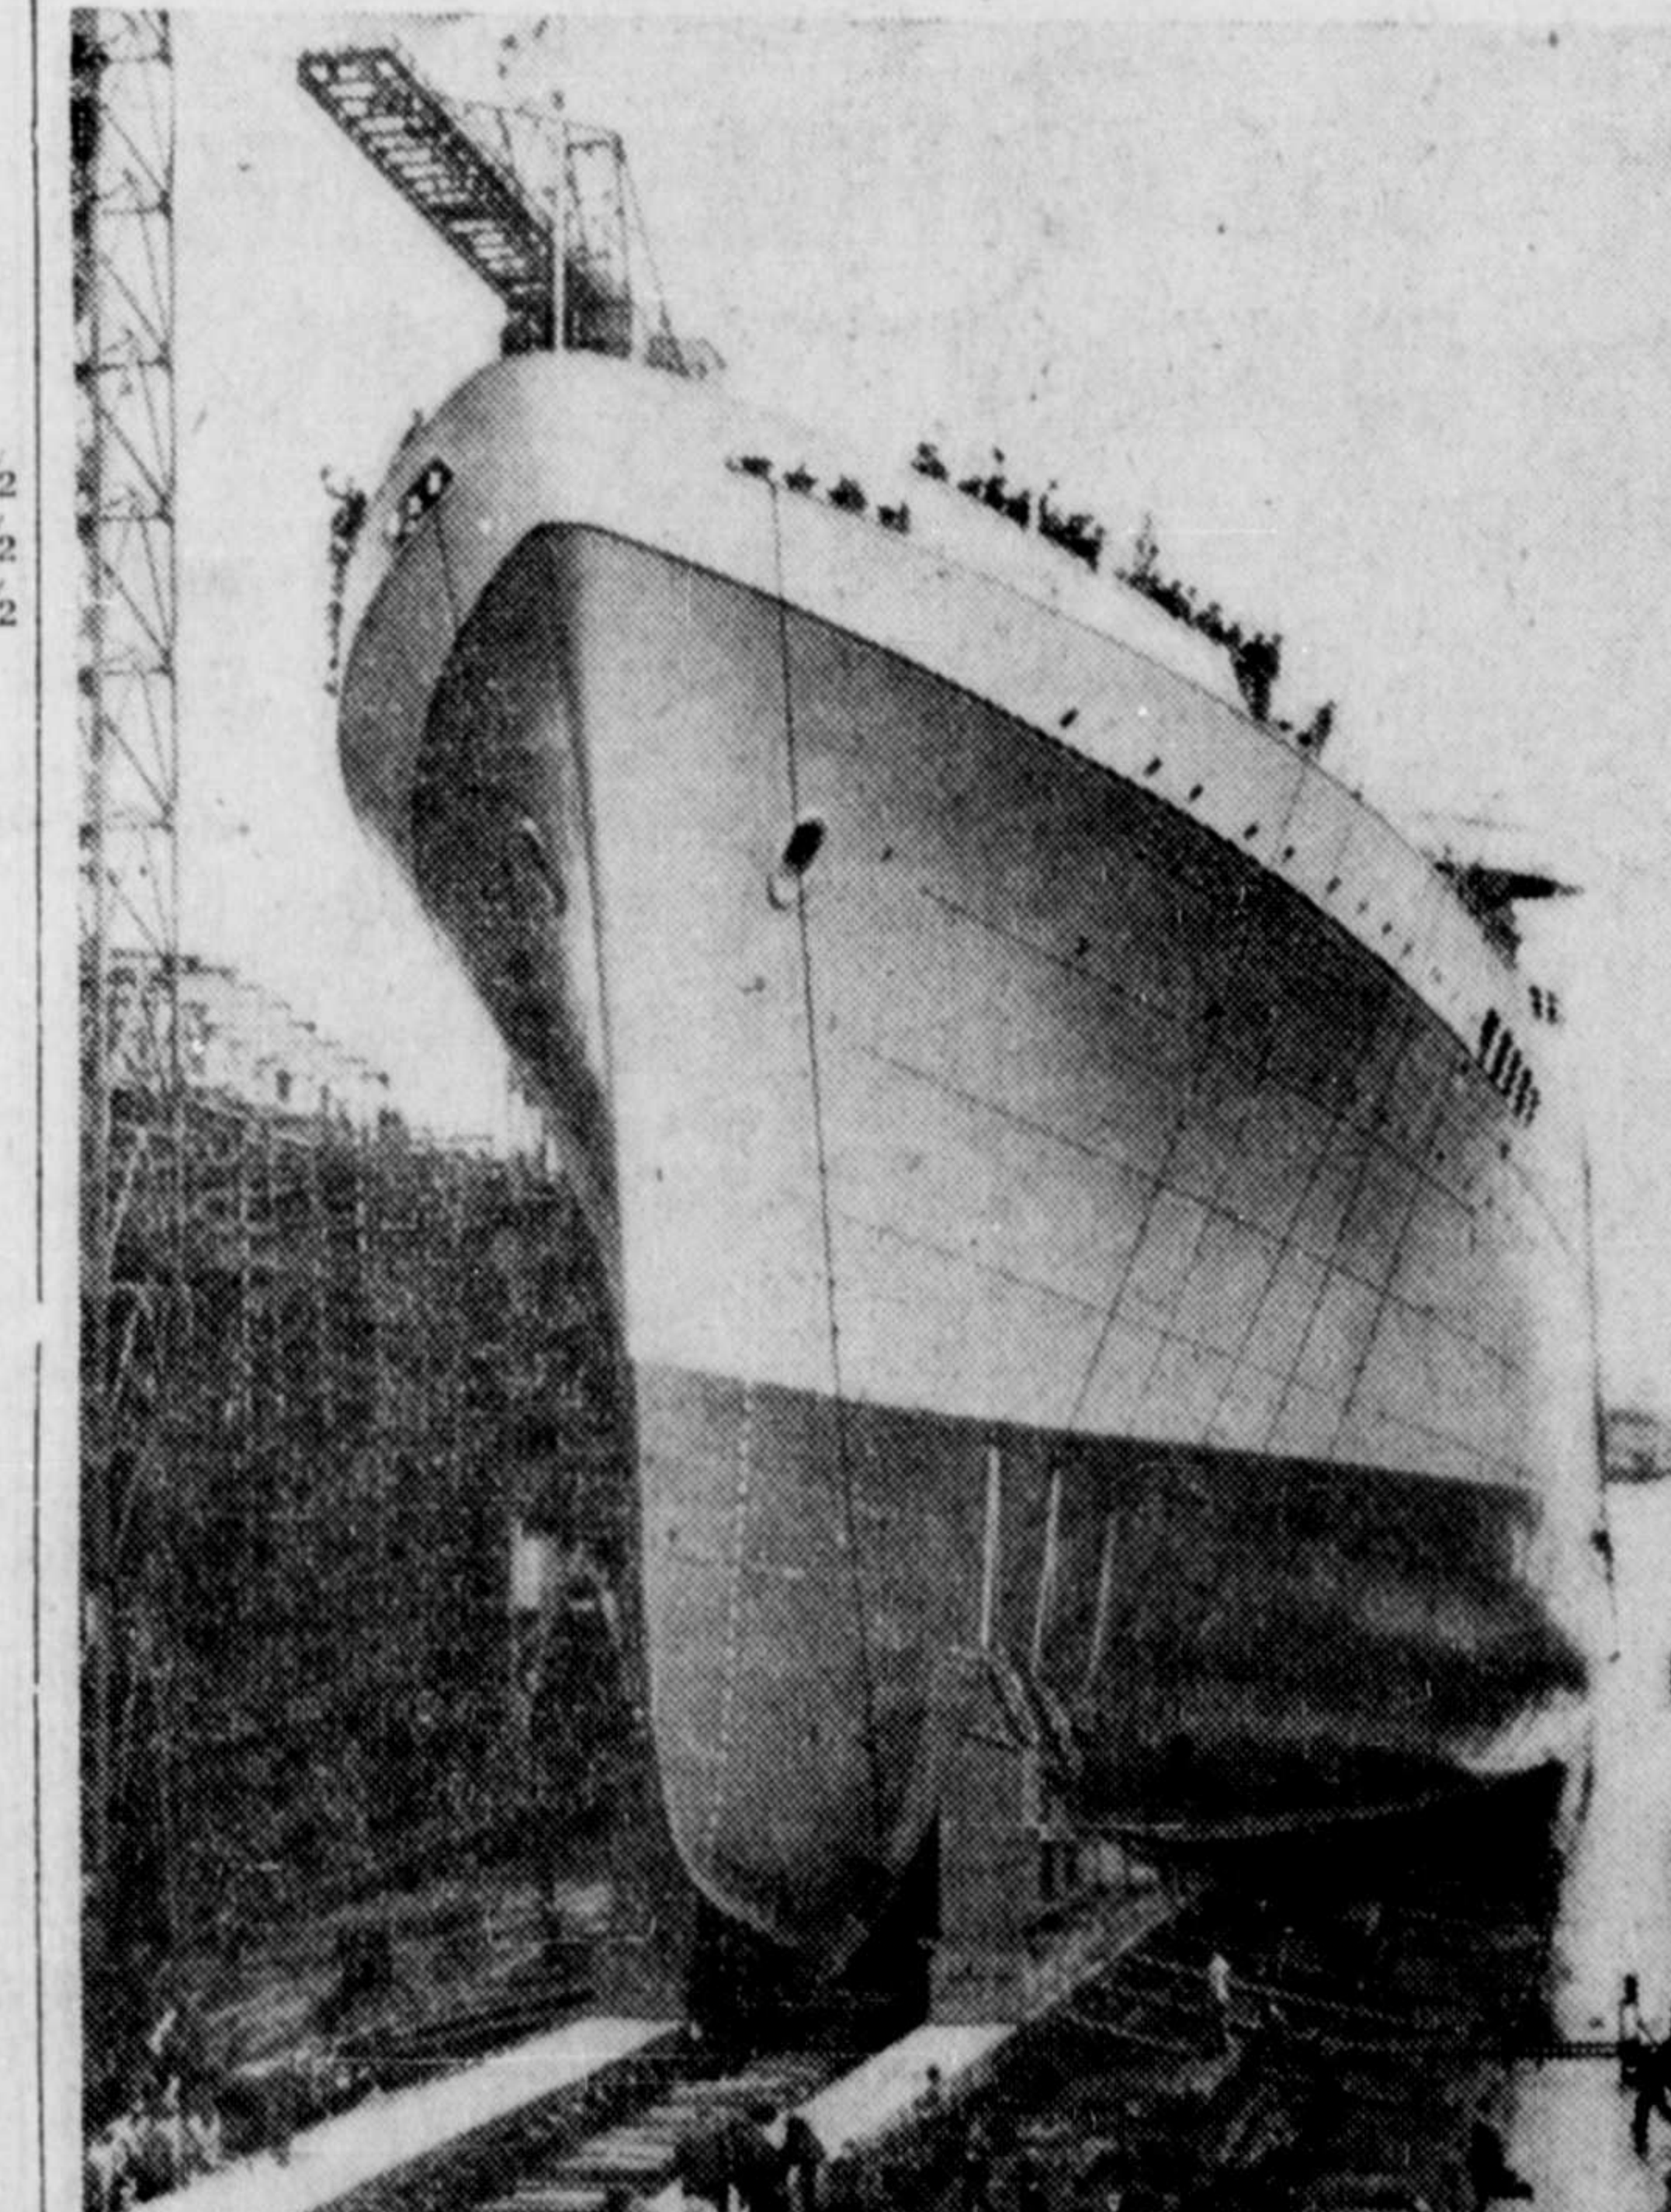

The vantage point was arranged for personally by Prime Minister Mackenzie King for the High School girl who missed Princess Elizabeth's wedding gift reception Tuesday when her plane was delayed enroute. Ralph Maybank and Stanley Knowles, Members of Parliament for Winnipeg, had cabled Mr. King requesting him to obtain a seat in the Abbey for Miss White but this could not be arranged.

Miss White was invited to London for the reception after she had sent the Princess a gift of a pair of nylon stockings.

LINER LAUNCHED BY NEW METHOD—The Edinburgh Castle, new liner launched by Princess Margaret, is shown going down the slipway after the launching. After naming the liner, Princess Margaret pulled a lever which sent the 28,500-ton vessel down the slipway in Musgrave shipyard, Belfast, Northern Ireland, marking the first time the actual movement of a liner had been initiated from the launching platform.

PAGEANT MARKS ROYAL RITES IN HISTORIC ABBEY

Tumultous Rejoicing As Old London Hails Happy Royal Nuptials

LONDON (CP)—Princess Elizabeth became the bride today of the newly named Duke of Edinburgh. Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of All England, intoned the words: "I now pronounce that they are man and wife" at 11:44 a.m. (3:44 Pacific Standard) as the bride and groom knelt before the altar in Westminster Abbey.

Standing before the gleaming gold plate of the altar, flanked by banks of flowers, the 21-year-old heiress-presumptive to the throne and her groom, the 26-year-old Duke of Edinburgh, until last night Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, exchanged vows so quietly that the words were scarcely audible to the congregation assembled.

The ceremony marked another page in Great Britain's storied history as Britons, by the hundreds of thousands, turned out on the streets of old London along the route from Buckingham Palace along the Mall and through Whitehall to witness the spectacle accompanying the marriage.

In the Abbey were nearly three thousand persons, including six Kings and six Queens.

King George gave his elder daughter in marriage with Queen Elizabeth and the eighty-year-old Queen Mother Mary watching the colorful ceremony in the ancient Abbey.

As the ceremonies came to a close, trumpets sounded a fanfare and the royal couple moved with their procession toward waiting thousands outside.

As Elizabeth and Philip passed the King and Queen the young duke bowed and his royal bride made a deep curtsy.

London crowds had stood for hours, red-nosed on cold, wet sidewalks, to roar with delight as the royal bride went by amid a glitter of cavalry in breast-plates and gold-laced uniforms. Before Buckingham Palace the crowds ranged twelve deep.

Returning to the Palace, the Duke took his place beside his bride in the glittering state coach and he reached out of the window to wave at the crowds.

The Princess smiled and waved as the procession proceeded under the Admiralty Arch. Cheers kept pace with the royal coach.

Shortly afterward the King and Queen, followed by royal guests, returned to the Palace for the wedding breakfast.

Not moving the crowds hung on, awaiting a balcony appearance of the Princess and Duke.

To tumultuous cheers, the bride and bridegroom appeared on the balcony followed by the King and Queen and other members of the Royal Family.

The face of the Princess shone above her ivory satin wedding gown encrusted with thousands of pearls. She wore a diamond tiara—her mother's.

Late in the day the Royal Couple left for a honeymoon in quiet rural Hampshire, far from the noisy celebrating city.

JEW SLAY FIVE ARABS

JERUSALEM ©—Police said today that ten gunmen whom they had identified as members of the Stern Gang, Jewish underground organization, had killed five Arabs near the town of Haanana last night, apparently in reprisal for assistance Arabs allegedly gave the police in trapping five of their members last week.

Royal Wedding Day

LET US JOIN wholeheartedly and free of dull care for the moment in this happy wedding day. True these are serious times of crisis and austerity but we can enter with clear conscience in relaxing approval of the joyous event of the day at historic Westminster Abbey. Lovely Princess Elizabeth, to whom destiny points as being one day Britain's gracious Queen, becomes the bride of a dashing sailor prince.

Who are we, even if times are serious and the world is full of trouble and sorrow, to even suggest that Britons should not have their bit of celebration, their pagentry and, possibly too, if they can get it, a mite of luxury?

The love of royalty, the symbolic show of splendor, are traditional with we Britons. Has this sort of thing not played a great part in keeping up morale in trying and dark days? It helps to hold the nation and the Commonwealth together.

When we observe with keen interest the plight of this royal troth it is with that sentimental spirit that would attend the rite of one of our very own. For that matter, who is Elizabeth if she is not one of ours—our own Crown Princess and our future Queen?

Yes, we may well take time out to join in the congratulatory and affectionate interest which all of us are feeling in more or less degree today.

And it is appropriate and fitting that this should be so.

Reminiscences

By W.J. and Reflections

When Prince Rupert lots were first auctioned, a certain avenue became known as a street set apart so to speak. There was nothing on the map to indicate the slightest distinction between it, and any of the other thoroughfares. Nothing of the way of a public announcement was ever heard or heard of. But an explanation of this exclusiveness was never necessary. No one had to be told. From the very commencement, people just naturally knew that here was part of the new townsite intimately identified with the most ancient of all professions. So what?

The lots did not remain vacant. Building was brisk. Plain dwellings—trim little bungalows multiplied. Traffic was liable any hour of the twenty-four. Children were never seen, constables occasionally were—also delivery cars, and people who tried to laugh it off. Canned music covered a wide variety of taste, and range of culture.

Wherever there are people, there must be some measure of hypocrisy. There was, in Prince Rupert. There was also preaching, but with the practising at times neglected. The avenue way down under the brow of the hill was sometimes described as a "valley of sin". Protests, reproaches, condemnations, went unheeded or drew at best a shrug or a smile.

Yet there did come a day when the indefinite sanctioning of the street became a local issue and forth went the order that all inmates must leave the city forthwith. For something had to be done on the part of officialdom. It did not get anywhere. Something resembling a movement out of town was staged. The campaign to make the community so very blameless seemed, somehow, to have been planted in arid ground. Passing years saw changes and, as population grew and developments expanded, concern in the morals of

It is easy going and knows when to quit which is more than can be said for Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, Labrador, Yukon, Northwest Territories and all islands in Hudson's Bay.

Prince Rupert it is recorded, is one of three coast cities, to be so far this autumn, without Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick. That is not entirely correct, for there was a touch one morning just recently. Water pipes have been known to freeze. Yet in comparison with the rest

OPENING MISSION AT BURNS LAKE

To make preparations for the opening of a new mission of the Roman Catholic Church at Burns Lake, Father John Callaly, O.M.I., arrived in the city on Tuesday night's train from Lejac Indian Residential School where he has been stationed for the past year following his arrival from Ireland. His visit in Prince Rupert is to obtain the necessary furnishings for the newly acquired buildings at Burns Lake. The mission is to be opened early in December. One of three young priests who are coming to Prince Rupert November 29 from Ireland will act as assistant to Father Callaly in the Burns Lake district which includes a widespread territory north and south of that central interior centre.

Previous to coming to Canada, Father Callaly was a chaplain in the Royal Air Force stationed in England ministering to the spiritual needs of members of the faith engaged in carrying out the bombing missions to Germany. During his ecclesiastical duties, he met many Canadians of whom he has pleasant memories.

Convention Not Coming

Prince Rupert branch of the Canadian Legion was officially notified at its meeting last night of the decision of the executive council of the B.C. Command that, owing to their inability to make any definite arrangements with the coastal steamship companies to charter a ship or ships for next April, it would be impossible to arrange for the 1948 Legion convention to be held in Prince Rupert. The council, however, have made a strong recommendation that the 1949 Legion convention will be held here, probably in May of that year.

The meeting was held at the Legion Hall, President V. G. Houston in the chair. It was well attended.

Besides the regular routine business many matters were under discussion and many donations were approved. These included a donation of $50 to the Mayor's Fund for the purchase of Skeena River salmon for needy families in Great Britain, a similar amount to the Cana-

As it was found that the Legion premises were too small last year to handle all the children and parents that attended the Legion Christmas Tree, it was hoped that it would be possible to make arrangements with the Naval authorities to place the Navy Drill Hall at the Legion's disposal for this event. The meeting unanimously voted to invite the Rev. Chas. L. Lomas (chaplain of the forces) to become the chaplain of the Prince Rupert branch.

REGAL, HUMBLE, RUB SHOULDERS AS PRINCESS WED

Servicemen and Servants Had Seats

Royal Route Was Shorter Than Usual But There Was Second Chance To See Royal Couple

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Besides members of the Royal Family, foreign royalty, official guests and friends of the Princess and her fiance, about 100 men and women in humble walks of life occupied seats in Westminster Abbey at the Royal Wedding today.

They included men from the Princess's three regiments—Grenadier Guards, Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders and the 16th/5th Lancers—girls from the Auxiliary Territorial Service in which the Princess served during the war, and old servants and keepers from the Royal estates at Balmoral, Sandringham and Windsor.

Two special seats with a full view of the ceremony were set aside by the Princess for her former governess, Marion Crawford, and Anthony Buthlay, her husband.

Some of the Princess's fellow members of her old Sea Rangers troop at Windsor were invited to see the procession from the courtyard of Buckingham Palace because there was not room for them at the Abbey.

As the bridal route along the Mall and through Whitehall was slightly shorter, crowds did not have as much chance of seeing the bridal pair as they did at the weddings of the King and Queen and the Duke and Duchess of Kent who travelled back to the Palace by a detour.

But they had a second chance of seeing the couple when they set off from Buckingham Palace for the first part of their honeymoon at Broadlands in the New Forest of Hampshire. They drove from the Palace in the carriage procession to the station and from there went to Hampshire by special train.

About 2,000 troops lined the route. There were four bands—two at Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey and two along the royal route.

As Winston Churchill said: "Millions welcomed this joyous event as a flash of color on the hard road we have to travel."

The ministry of food quietly informed food officers recently that should schools hold parties they might be granted limited extra rations. And caterers were told they might apply for supplementary food should they run short during the rush on London.

Buckingham Palace is flooded on the night of the wedding to-night. By permission of the ministry of fuel, batteries of floodlights used in the victory celebrations are lighting its facade and large colored banners near the Palace are illuminated by fluorescent lighting.

Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada, sent a message of congratulations from Canada to the Royal Couple.

Dashing Greys Draw Coach At Royal Wedding

LONDON (CP)—Dressed in all the finery of a state occasion, F. McIlveen, the King's head coachman, drove the three-ton Irish State Coach in which the King and Princess Elizabeth travelled to Westminster Abbey today.

Drawn by four royal greys, the coach swept through Buckingham Palace gates sharp at 11:16 and proceeded at the regular pace of six miles an hour down the crowded, tree-lined Mall.

McIlveen, tall, slim and grey-haired, is an old hand at state processions.

"The horses usually settle down to their work within two minutes of leaving the palace," he said, "and I have little difficulty keeping them to the regular trot. In fact, they seem to have a way of scenting an important occasion. They are more likely to play up in rehearsals than on a big day."

The seven coachmen and four outriders who drove the entire Royal Family to the Abbey held a conference recently at which they were instructed by Major George Hopkins, superintendent of the Royal Mews, who is responsible for the procession.

Veteran coachman Ralph Land drove the Queen to the Abbey in a 30-hundredweight coach. After the ceremony he drove the Princess and her husband back to the Palace in the famous glass coach.

Nurse Blooms For Wedding

Choicest Carnations Being Saved For Elizabeth's Marriage

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON—All over Britain carnations growers in great country houses and in cottages nursed their choicest blooms for Princess Elizabeth's wedding.

The idea came from F. W. Alesworth, honorary secretary of the British Carnation Society, who wrote to the Princess offering a gift of carnations from members.

"There is this about the carnation," Mr. Alesworth said: "It is the flower of the poor man equally with the rich. It can be grown at this time of the year in any little greenhouse, or even a home-made cold frame, just as well as in a large greenhouse."

Hundreds of members had since promised blooms and some of them, now in South Africa and the United States, flew their blooms over a day or so before the wedding.

The Princess will receive a list of all who have contributed. The flowers are decorating the state rooms and dining tables at Buckingham Palace during the wedding week, supplemented by blooms from the Palace gardens.

Princess Elizabeth's wedding bouquet was presented to her by the Worshipful Company of Gardeners. It is a tradition that the Company presents a wedding bouquet to a British princess and to a queen on her coronation.

The Princess chose her own flowers and the design for the bouquet before it was made up by members of the Company as was done for the weddings of the Duchess of Gloucester and the Duchess of Kent.

TENSE MOMENT

There was a tense moment as the procession entered the Abbey. One of the trainbearers, Prince Michael, son of the Duchess of Kent, stumbled and tugged at the train. Princess Margaret, principal bridesmaid, resourcefully stepped forward and steadied the lad.

A new picture of the Royal Bride and Groom, Elizabeth and Philip.

Philip—Sailor Prince Is Groom

Tall, Blonde Mountbatten Is Real Man's Man

Tall, blonde Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, R.N., came to the British people as a gay and jolly Lancelot in a distraught, unromantic period of their history.

The times and his background enlisted to make him an anachronism of sorts.

Born a prince of the Hellenes, although having no Greek blood and little or no agility with the classic tongue, he helped defend Britain in war, and in peace charmingly won the hand of her future Queen—and a Commonwealth's affection for a man's man.

But the great-great-grandson of Victoria, could not long remain an anachronism to Britons.

They soon discovered—early in 1946—that of all the eligible young blades in post-war Britain, it was Philip who most intrigued Princess Elizabeth.

From then on, the handsome naval lieutenant, who combined "pusser" King's Rules and Admiralty Instructions bearing with strikingly effective ability to wear crisp-cut barathe uniforms, became the dashing hero of bobby-soxers, spinsters and co-eds the Commonwealth.

Bold-face type and newspaper stories began to tell of Philip. He who had wooed and won tomorrow's Queen became public domain, as far as his previous life was concerned.

Adulators, admirers and critics read:

He was born at Corfu, largest island in the Ionian Sea, June 10, 1921. His father was the late Prince Andrew of Greece, and his mother Princess Alice, eldest daughter of Prince Louis of Battenberg.

Two years after Philip's birth, his uncle, King Constantine, abdicated and fled Greece to Palermo, Italy, where he died in 1923.

Then Philip and his sisters became exiles. With his family, the child prince sailed to England where he spent most of his childhood with relatives—particularly "Uncle Dickie," now Admiral Earl Louis Mountbatten, Governor-General of the Dominion of India.

The shy, pale-faced boy soon began sprouting legs and outgrew knickers. Private tutors could be fine, but Philip was old and big enough to go to school where he could have intimate association with lads his age. Besides, that shyness hardly became a Mountbatten!

So Theodora, one of his four beautiful sisters, decided she should enter him in Salem School, Baden, Germany.

At Salem the Nazi "kinder" incultation became the order of the day. However, when the Nazi salute was called for, Philip became convulsed—with laughter. No warning of dire discipline could halt his merry guffaws.

Nervous relatives removed him from Salem during a mid-summer term and packed him off to Gordonstoun public school, Elgin, Scotland.

Within its walls, youthful Britons—aristocrats all—painfully memorized the adage: "There ain't no such animal"—insofar as class distinctions were concerned. Philip soon caught on to the school's central theme of democratized association and how to live like a he-man.

The life-companion of Elizabeth—

Elizabeth—Pink Bundle Bride Today

Was From First, Seemingly, Destined To Be Queen

The pink bundle yawning, burbled and blew bubbles—and seconds later, as dawn whipped across London's Mayfair on April 21, 1926, elderly Sir William Joynson-Hicks, then Britain's home secretary, greeted His Royal Highness, the Duke of York, and said:

"It's a girl!"

Then Sir William hustled off to the Lord Mayor to herald the news that former Lady Elizabeth Angela Marguerite Bowes-Lyon had borne "a babe, female, of true royal blood" who in a few short years would have all Britain at her chubby knees, and in two decades would be the central figure in a romance of world interest.

Observers of 21 years ago were quick to sense that Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary would never be far from the shadow of a crown. But few who stood around the font in the private chapel of Buckingham Palace five weeks later could guess how close that shadow lay.

HISTORIC

Her kicking legs warmed by an antique robe which had covered the infant limbs of a queen and three kings, Elizabeth's christening came when, among other events of the times, the British Commonwealth of Nations arrived at maturity.

Her arrival coincided with the joint decision of Britain and the Dominions to define themselves as "autonomous communities within the Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate to one another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs though united by a common allegiance to the Crown."

She graduated from the nursery and entered the schoolroom when the Statute of Westminster in 1932 set solemn seal to that concept. While a gangling teen-ager self-consciously opening the door to public life, she watched the Commonwealth link arms in defence of that concept.

At 21, a young woman in love and marriage a few months away, she called on her generation to walk with her in perpetuating "our union."

Flipping back to the newspapers of that time when a proud, sparkling-eyed mother softly told her first child to "shush" as the ancient ceremony of the Church of England came to a climax, today's reader would discover that:

Gentle King George V of the neatly trimmed iron-grey beard.

who was to dote on this baby, was enjoying vigorous health.

DESTINY

CALLS

Debonair Edward VIII, then Prince of Wales and Elizabeth's "Uncle David," was still unmarried. Even if he clung to bachelorhood, her own parents—the quiet, shy Duke and Duchess of York—might have a son who would sit on the throne.

But the news columns of the period would also tell how the shadow of the regal headdress became each hour more substance than fancy after Elizabeth's 11th birthday in 1937.

"Grandpa England," as Elizabeth fondly called her grandfather, was dead, the new king had abdicated to retire with "the woman I love" and her father was gravely weighing the responsibilities of the crown he wore.

A slim, nervous and retiring child, Elizabeth could not comprehend fully the implications of these muddled weeks.

Perhaps that's why she could grin and wave on Coronation Day as she joined her tired parents, her stiff-backed Granny and their retinue on a Buckingham Palace balcony.

"HELLO, LILLIBET!"

Far from that balcony, far from the cheering throngs who cried "Hello, Lilibet!" loomed the future—the great, inescapable responsibility of being the sixth British queen since the Norman Conquest.

There on the balcony was fathoming to guide and inspire a young king who defeated by sheer will—

U.S. TRIBUTE TO ELIZABETH

MONTREAL—An musical tribute to Elizabeth immediately the British Broadcasting Company's broadcast at wedding. On conclusion of the which was heard through British Empire, three of a United States, were played as American congratulations to couple. PRINCESS ELIZABETH LAYS CORNER STONE FOR LEGE—Princess Elizabeth is photographed as she lays the foundation stone at the new St. Mary's College during her honeymoon in Hampshire, England.

CHORISTERS PREPARE FOR THEIR BIGGEST JOB — Boy choristers of the Westminster Abbey choir school gather around Westminster Abbey organist, Dr. W. M. McKie, and practice the hymns they sang at the royal wedding of Princess Elizabeth today. Among their selections was one chosen by the Princess: "We Wait for the Loving Kindness of God," composed by Dr. McKie. The famous choir has six centuries of tradition behind it. It now includes 40 boys from nine to 13 years of age. They receive a general education here and an excellent musical upbringing.

WEAVERS OF ROYAL CLOTH PREPARE FOR PRINCESS ELIZABETH—The bridal train for Princess Elizabeth's wedding dress was hand-woven at the Warner & Sons Ltd. factory at Braintree, Eng., where the tradition of fine hand weaving has been handed down from the Huguenot immigrants of the 17th century. Although a great percentage of the firm's production is done by power looms, hand looms are still being used for important parts of the work. While it was possible to show these pictures of the persons who have been responsible for the preparation of the material, the color and the design of the cloth remained a great secret and was not made known until near the time of the wedding. The Warner firm have had long experience in the making of royal robes, having been responsible for the making, among others, of the following—the wedding gown for Queen Mary when she was Princess Mary; satin for the wedding dress of H.R.H. Princess Mary; coronation King George VII.; King George V. and King George VI. were responsible for the material of the Queen's dress. Princesses robes and other fabrics for the coronation of King V. Pictured above (left) is Peggy Lynn, 25-year old skilled. This operation calls for great skill and dexterity. With hand she turns the wheel of the hand spinner while her guides the thread on to the spinn, or quill, which fits shuttle and provides the weft yarn. One of the great art of hand spinning is that the thread is not subject to strain and straining. Miss Lynn spun the thread for Princess Elizabeth's bridal train. On the right is John William Beard, been with the firm for 51 years and is an expert at hand spin" and also the firm's "twister" a most delicate and operation. The warp thread is seen being prepared on to the er's beam, which is later placed on to the loom. He is an important part in the creation of Princess Elizabeth's train.

JOINS NAVY
In the summer of 1947, a former teacher at Gordonstoun wrote:

"During 1939 the Royal Navy asked for a confidential report on his (Philip's) character.

"I often reflect . . . since his engagement to Princess Elizabeth was announced . . . of what we said: 'Philip is a born leader, but he will need the exacting demands of a great service to do justice to himself.'"

Perhaps it is a throwback to the Danish seafaring blood in him, but even at the Scottish school Philip made no bones about his love of the sea.

At 15 he belonged to a band of juvenile, but sincere, seamen. He came to know knots, basic seamanship and could take out a cutter, command it and bring it safely to dock—without an instructor.

Accepted, Philip entered the Naval College, Dartmouth, as a cadet.

A good matelot, he gained four firsts and one second to nudge him into the sub-lieutenant class. While there he won the King's Dirk as the best cadet on his team.

Then came his maturing, going to sea in actual war at-mos-her. In 1940 he was serving in battleships and cruisers. By 1942, at the age of 21, he became first lieutenant of a destroyer—responsible for his seawarrior mates' discipline. Three years later he participated in action through the Mediterranean and on the Pacific. He was a witness of Japan's surrender in Tokyo Bay.

After restless peace settled over the world, Philip was chosen as an instructor in one of the Royal Navy's stiffest training courses.

photographer, dodged policemen patrolling Holywell Cliff, hid in a gully and took his picture from a distance of a quarter of a mile with a telescopic lens. Coming across the picture recently, Deal showed it to the Mayor of Eastborne, Ald. E. C. Martin, who sent it with best wishes to Lieut. Mounbatten.

Wedding Gift—
Mayor's Fund, Rotary Drive

Prince Rupert Hoping for More Food Donations

The Mayor's Fund for a wedding gift for Princess Elizabeth—which will take the form of food parcels for the people of Prince Rupert—has been set up.

The fund will be used to purchase food—probably canned salmon—and the shipments will be made in conjunction with the Prince Rupert Rotary Club food and clothing campaign for the people of the south coast city of Poole.

Originated by Mayor Arnold a month ago, the fund was started off with a $100 contribution by the city, since then Mayor Arnold herself has contributed $10, and Mrs. Jessie Jacobs $5.

The Rotary Club's drive for food and clothing is a public appeal in which receptacles have been placed in local grocery stores to receive non-perishable food articles. P. H. Linzey, chairman of the Rotary Club committee, this morning described the campaign as "disappointing" so far. However, he feels that it will get better during December.

"We plan to send the shipment early in the New Year," he said. "We feel that at that time the articles will be even more acceptable than at Christmas time when other agencies are operating."

Distribution of the parcels will be made by the Rotary Club of Poole, England, and it is understood that an effort will be made to see that they go to people who have not already received food and clothing parcels from abroad.

Within the parcels will be cards telling of the origin of the food and clothing. One card will credit the Rotary Club for its gesture of international good will and another inform the citizens of Poole that the articles are part of the wedding present for Princess Elizabeth from the people of Prince Rupert.

Hello Folks

"An important part of my diet ever since my first born has been Crown Brand Corn Syrup. Now, that may be right for a little character like myself, but let me tell you these grown-ups sure are lucky what with Mom serving them Crown Brand Corn Syrup with so many of their dishes. And she uses it in her baking, too, as a sweetener. I can hardly wait until I'm old enough to have some hot waffles or pancakes smothered with delicious Crown Brand. If it's as good as it is in my cereal—mmmmmm!"

For years doctors have recommended the use of Crown Brand Corn Syrup as a satisfactory carbohydrate acting as a milk modifier for bottle-fed infants.

Elmer was quite a spooner!

1. You should have seen Elmer make goo goo eyes at a tempting dish of Grape-Nuts when that really different, delicious cereal appeared on his breakfast table back in the Nineties. And you should have heard his lips smack as he spooned his way through each glorious serving.

2. Millions of folks are enjoying that malty-rich, nut-sweet taste today in curly, golden-brown POST'S GRAPE-NUTS FLAKES as well as Post's Grape-Nuts. And it is giving them carbohydrates for energy; proteins for muscle; phosphorus for teeth and bones; iron for the blood; other food essentials.

3. There's double goodness in Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes. That's because they're made of two grains—wheat and malted barley—specially blended, baked and toasted for malty-rich, sweet-as-a-nut flavor and easy digestion. And no fuss or bother—they're ready to eat from the package.

4. That hard-working fellow who runs the grocery store down at the corner has been busy all morning stacking Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes on his shelves so they'll be ready when you get down there. Why not "like down now and pick up a couple of packages. See recipes for making cookies and other good things on every package.

power his nervous speech defect. Behind him, calm, steady, was her grandmother, Queen Mary, to whom regal precedence, duty and devotion to a proud dynasty were all-important.

"The Bambino," as Queen Mary called Elizabeth, would have a good life. There would be cracking good family parties, outdoor trips, riding and friendly companionship.

From the first, the King and Queen were determined to have their daughter's life as free from clammy traditionalism as possible.

She had to be a natural child. And, the result, at 21, was a sturdy, vibrant young woman with a lot of her father's serious mien, but not at all lacking in her mother's sense of humor.

Although slow in appearing, her smile was broad and unaffected when it lit her face.

LOVED, LONDON

And it lit her face often in early life. Perhaps the atmosphere of the Bruton Street home of her maternal grandparents, the Earl and Countess of Strathmore, where she was born, had a lot to do with it.

Later, she and her parents moved to 145 Piccadilly, a bigger home with black doors and a large garden, where one could play and wave and chortle at the sightseers who insisted on peering through the iron railing.

Then, there were long trips to the country—Glamis in the Scottish Highlands, where younger sister Margaret was born in 1930. But smoky London always remained a place of adventure from the day "Grandpa" first sent a coach to take her driving through Kensington Gardens—and Queen Mary ordered an urban excursion.

Forbidden to have an automobile of her own, Elizabeth chalked up a personal triumph during the war by driving a military car through rush-hour traffic, twice around Piccadilly Circus. That marked her graduation from the Auxiliary Territorial School where she had been a member since her 18th birthday.

KNEW THE PEEOPLE

As is the case today, she knew London's teeming peoples, the rich and the poor. On VE-Day, 1945, she and Margaret stood with their parents on Buckingham Palace balcony, waving to the adulating crowds below.

This time, however, the tumult and rejoicing were too much. While the city went wild, she slipped away into the throng to get her first street-eye view of her tired but happy King and Queen.

Peace had again come to her island, and with it new demands, tedious tasks and sober responsibilities of an heiress called "Princess" by rights of royal birth, but lacking a title in peerage and rated a commoner by law.

Princess Elizabeth then seemed to blossom.

Early in 1947 she and Margaret Rose accompanied the King and Queen to South Africa. It was her first visit outside the British Isles and her first intimate contact with that Commonwealth whose destiny she would dedicate herself to at legal maturity.

PLEDGE OF FAITH

At Capetown she observed her 21st birthday with this pledge of faith to her Empire:

"There is a motto which has been borne by many of my ancestors—a noble motto—'I serve.' Those words were an inspiration to many bygone heirs to the throne when they made their knightly dedication as they came to manhood.

"I cannot do quite as they did, but through the inventions of science I can do what was not possible for any of them. I can make my solemn act of dedication with a whole Empire listening."

"I declare . . . all my life . . . shall be devoted to your service and the service of our great imperial family to which we all belong, but I shall not have the strength to carry out this resolution alone, unless you join in it with me . . . God help me to make good my vow, and God bless all of you who are willing to share it."

HOW CAN I ???
By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I clean gold-leaf signs?

A. If the letters of signs are laid with pure gold-leaf, and have become covered with soot or dirt, they can be cleaned by moistening a sponge with alcohol and rubbing lightly. Or spirits of turpentine is effective.

Q. How can I remove discolorations from aluminum ware?

A. Fill the vessel with a cold weak solution of vinegar and water, about one tablespoon of vinegar to a quart of water, bring to a boil, and let boil five minutes.
